An Eventful Year.
Example for Europe.
Do We Know Ourselves?
Kelly Still in Prison.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON, NRA administrator, says this dying year has been the most eventful in the nation's history, and he may be right.

It is the first year in which the government has interested itself in millions idle, worried and hungry. Such conditions previously have been left to "supply and demand."

GEN. JOHNSON believes that in this year "democracy, under the leadership of a President embodying the sense of democracy in its highest sense, has reached a pinnacle in its climb upward, which will serve as an example to the people of the entire civilized world, and bring lasting contentment to his people," meaning President Roosevelt's people.

THAT IS not an exaggerated statement, although there are "ifs, buts" and "perhapses" to be considered.

If dollars continue scarce, that may lower the height of the "pinnacle" and, on the other hand, if inflation, in spite of efforts to control it, should be too violent, that would damage the "pinnacle" considerably.

But at least the government is TRYING to do something, apparently aware that it is responsible for the people that live under it, and that trying is important and highly gratifying.

IN TEXAS, on the Mexican border near El Paso, many workers who need jobs and wages will soon be employed on a great project in connection with flood control in the Rio Grande basin.

The United States and Mexico are co-operating in this work, sharing the expense. Americans and Mexicans will work side by side, earning wages, making the earth safer for its inhabitants.

THAT SETS a good example to Europe. There, when different nationalities come close together they are usually squatting in trenches, blowing each others' heads off.

Mexico, the United States and Canada, ruling all of this continent, from the North Pole to the southern side of the Panama Canal, should work and cooperate in brotherly fashion, in a genuine league of "American nations," setting a good example to the rest of the world.

A YOUNG woman wearing a "Daughters of the American Revolution" pin, found wandering in the street, could not tell who or how old she was.

Apparently about twenty-five years old, she looked in a glass and said:

"I must be more than sixteen."

That seems strange to us, yet we are all in much the same condition. Here we are on earth, identified by names given to us. We don't know who we really are, whence we came or whither we are going when we leave here.

We go to and fro for a few years, eat, talk, grow old, then move on, and the names that we had for a little while are put on tombstones.

But who we are, of what we are, or why we come here and then go, we know as little as the unfortunate victim of amnesia.

WHEN "MACHINE GUN" KELLY went to Leavenworth prison for life, for kidnaping, he said proudly to a guard:

"I'll be out of here before Christmas."

Christmas is past and "Machine Gun" Kelly is still in his isolation cell, and will probably stay there, as will Bailey and Bates, the two sentenced with him to life imprisonment.

Other Leavenworth prisoners have changed his nickname from "Machine Gun" to "Blabbermouth," according to the warden, for excessive talking has caused prison restrictions to be tightened.

If "Machine Gun" Kelly leaves Leavenworth he will change to a cell on Alcatraz Island, prepared especially for "hard boiled" criminals.

Shooting or abducting unarmed men is an easy thing, getting away from a federal prison is different, and that should be generally known.

HONGKONG reports 26 persons killed in an air raid at Foochow, China. The bombing occurred on Christmas night.

Chinese airplanes that did the bombing did not bomb Japanese that recently took Manchukuo away from China. Chinese airmen bombed other Chinese, with whom they disagreed politically.

You don't find the Japanese doing that. They bomb foreigners.

Mohammedans fight Hindus, making government by Britain in India simple. Chinese bomb and fight Chinese, making annexation and invasion by Japan easy.

AFTER OUR four-year depression, there are still running in the United States, according to "Motor," leading magazine of the automobile industry, 23,723,399 automobiles.

The number has diminished since 1929, but this country still has, by many millions, more automobiles in use than all the rest of the world put together, so many that every man, woman and child in the country might travel by automobile at the same moment.

HORSE TOSSES MRS. HITCHCOCK

AIKEN, S. C., Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Mrs. Thomas Hitchcock, Sr., M. F. H. of the Aiken drag hounds, was hurt yesterday as her horse faltered at a hurdle and fell with her.

Physicians said the extent of her injuries had not been definitely ascertained, pending further examination.

Mrs. Hitchcock, of the famous social and sporting family, was removed to her home here, suffering from shock. Physicians said they would await her recovery from the shock before making a complete examination.

Mrs. Hitchcock is the mother-in-law of Margaret Mellon Hitchcock, Banker W. L. Mellon's daughter and the former Mrs. Alexander Laughlin, Jr., who in 1928 married Thomas Hitchcock, Jr., international polo player.

Former Princess Sues for Divorce

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Dec. 27.—(INS.)—Suit for divorce was filed by Mrs. Bruce Smith, the former Princess Bertha Cantacuzene, of Russia, against her husband today in Jefferson circuit court here.

Mrs. Smith is a granddaughter of former President U. S. Grant. She and Smith were married October 10, 1925, in Washington, D. C., and separated October 14, 1933, according to her petition.

Reed, Bride Plan New Year's Party

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—James A. Reed, former United States Senator, and his bride, the former Mrs. Nell Donnelly, wealthy garment manufacturer, have returned home from their recent honeymoon in the South and are planning a reception for their friends New Year's Day.

County Fights Repeal of Tax on Savings

RECORD COLD BRINGS DEATH HERE

FIRST LIQUOR FOR STORES ARRIVES

Car Loads Placed in Warehouse Awaiting Jan. 2 Opening

Liquor by the car load has arrived in Pittsburgh and will be sold in some of Allegheny County's state stores January 2, Dean A. Marshall Thompson, Pittsburgh member of the State Liquor Control Board, today told the Sun-Telegraph from Harrisburg.

Roy A. MacGregor, agent here for the board, announced that at least one store in downtown Pittsburgh and some others throughout the county would be ready for business on the opening date.

BANK ROOM OPTIONED

MacGregor disclosed that an option had been taken on the closed Bank of Secured Savings, Beaver avenue and Juniata street, Manchester, to be used as a liquor store.

Dean Thompson decided against the sale of liquor from unfinished stores which MacGregor said could be opened "temporarily" for sales purposes January 2.

A "considerable" supply of liquor, including imported foreign brands, has arrived in the state warehouse in the Try Street Terminal Company's building, Thompson revealed.

It is reported that between five and seven carloads of whisky and other liquors have been received in Pittsburgh.

INCREASED SUPPLY

"In the next day or so there will be an increased supply of liquor in Pittsburgh's warehouse, including imported brands which were delayed, but are now coming through following announcement of Pennsylvania's quota of imported liquors.

"We're not going to have as complete a warehouse stock as we would like, but there will be sufficient. A new price list is being announced today."

ONE VACANCY HERE

MacGregor has closed the deals for all stores in Allegheny County excepting one in Bloomfield, he said.

Bids were advertised today for furnishing and remodeling five additional stores at 1362 Tennessee avenue, Dormont; 1001 Liberty avenue; 1805 Carson street; Iroquois Building, Forbes and Atwood streets, and 761 Penn avenue, Wilkinsburg.

Park Files Bardolph Appeal

District Attorney Andrew T. Park today took to the Supreme Court an appeal in the case of Charles A. Bardolph, former president of the Franklin Savings and Trust Company, discharged 10 days ago by the Superior Court on a conviction on 11 counts of false entry in connection with the management of the bank, which failed in 1931.

Park filed his appeal to the Supreme Court asking it to review the question. The appeal said:

"Park avers the question involved is of great and vital importance to the welfare of the citizens and of great importance in the administration of the laws concerning banks and banking in Pennsylvania."

Pinchot Scores Gen. Martin as Mellons' Agent

The executive, suffering from shingles, a nervous disorder, said that the recent special session of the Legislature "shows that sweatshops and the money lords still control Gen. Martin and that Gen. Martin still controls the Senate."

'INTERESTS' SLIPPING

But, he said, Martin and the "selfish interests" are "slipping."

The "strongest evidence" of that, he said, is that they were "unable to defeat the demand of the people that Pennsylvania ratify the Child Labor Amendment to the Federal Constitution."

He asserted another indication is that the Legislature passed an old-age assistance measure.

He blamed Martin for the death of minimum wage and maximum hour bills in the Senate. He said, too, that Martin "takes full credit" for the Senate's refusal to act on the Governor's nominations to the Public Service Commission.

MARTIN 'REACTIONARY'

He said:

"The idea is, of course, that Martin thinks that the next Governor of Pennsylvania is going to be an old line reactionary organization Republican—like Gen. Martin.

"But as usual Martin is reckoning on what the Mellons want—not on what the people will do.

SAFETY POST STILL IN DOUBT

If Mayor-elect William N. McNair knew who will be his Director of Public Safety after his inauguration next Monday, he was the only man in the city today who knew.

M. L. Benedum, oil man and party financier, didn't.

Joseph F. Guffey, who doesn't have a title, but does have influence, didn't.

County Chairman David L. Lawrence didn't.

CANDIDATES' LIST

The candidates include Attorney B. B. McGinnis; Supt. F. W. Weir, of Spang-Chalfant & Co.'s Etna and Sharpsburg works; Republican James F. Malone; former Prohibitoin Administrator John D. Pennington and Col. W. R. Dunlap, present Director of Supplies.

McGinnis and Weir are reported to have refused the job. McGinnis and Malone are reported to have been disqualified. Pennington is reported definitely beyond consideration. Democrats doubt Dunlap has a chance.

McGinnis is reported not to have refused the job and Weir is reported to have been refused the job. McGinnis is reported to want the job and Malone is reported to be on the verge of winning it.

Pennington is reported a likely choice and the name "Dunlap" still provokes loud laughter, al-

Flames Peril Hotel Near Greensburg

GREENSBURG, Pa., Dec. 27.—Temperatures ranging from 2 to 4 degrees below zero gripped this district today, following a blizzard which raged until midnight. Between seven and eight inches of snow fell.

Firemen from Greensburg and Latrobe battled a fire which destroyed a large garage at Mountain View Hotel, four miles east of here, last night, burning two cars and threatening the hotel.

BANK SAVING TAX REPEAL FOUGHT

County Insists Return Be Made on Money At Interest

Allegheny County will test the legality of state legislation exempting holders of interest-bearing bank accounts from the personal property tax.

According to T. Ralph Barr, superintendent of the personal property department of the Board for the Assessment and Revision of Taxes, a test suit will be started as soon as an instance of failure to make a return on such money arises, Barr said:

"We are going to take it in for a clear understanding even if we have to go to the Supreme Court."

ADVISED TO REPORT

In the meantime assessors are advising taxpayers to fill in section 8, which includes money in bank bearing interest. No tax will be levied, Barr said, until a decision is rendered by the courts.

Money in bank bearing interest was taxed under a provision which was eliminated December 22 through a bill sponsored by Senators Morris Einstein and James J. Coyne. Barr declares that the state constitution provides what property can be exempted, and that interest-bearing bank accounts are not included.

LEGISLATIVE TANGLE

The 1913 Legislature imposed a 4 mills tax on all obligations due creditors in Pennsylvania. Section 1 applied to obligations held by individuals. Section 17 applied to obligations held by corporations.

Later Section 1 was amended to allow counties to collect the per-

ILLINOIS ENDS PROPERTY TAX

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Illinois today abolished its state tax on property, which last year was 50 cents on each $100 of assessed valuation.

Revenues from property will be replaced next year by the 2 per cent retail sales tax.

The decision was announced by the board, consisting of Gov. Henry Horner, State Treasurer John C. Martin and State Auditor Edward J. Barrett, at its annual meeting.

A year ago the levy board increased the state tax from 35 to 50 cents on each $100 assessed property valuation. Gov. Horner said:

"Illinois for the first time in 115 years has been able to relieve real estate and personal property of the state tax.

Babies Put in Bed For Warmth Smother

CHICAGO, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—It was 8 below zero last night, too cold for two 15-month-old babies to sleep in their crib.

So Blanche and Barbara Marshall, twins, were snuggled into bed with their mother and father and 4-year-old brother. When the mother awoke at 6 a. m. her babies were dead. They had smothered.

Will Rogers Puffs Pipe—and Was His Face Green!

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—A sequence in a motion picture called for Will Rogers to smoke a pipe. He smoked. He began to take on a greenish color. He yelled to Director Cruze:

"Jim, I'm sick!"

Rogers never before smoked.

Production was held up 10 minutes while a messenger went to a drug store for an aromatic herb commonly smoked to relieve asthma.

FLIER JIMMY WEDELL . . . . HE STREAKED TO BALTIMORE

Wedell Pilots Plane After Prince Yields Place to Baby

BALTIMORE, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Five-month-old Sue Trammell today waited in the Harriet Lane Clinic the hand of Dr. Walter E. Dandy, noted brain specialist, to relieve the pressure on her brain and possibly save her life, after a hazardous airplane dash from Houston, Tex.

Braving strong icy winds and poor flying conditions, James R. Wedell, famous speed aviator, drove his red monoplane over the 1,400-mile trip in slightly more than 11 hours, bringing the plane with its sick baby down on snow-encrusted Logan Field here without mishap.

WAITS OPERATION

Deeming it not necessary to operate immediately, Dr. Kunkel diagnosed the child's ailment as hydrocephalus, probably due to a congenital lesion. Hydrocephalus is an infantile disease, described as an accumulation of watery fluid

Troopers' Wild Dash Saves Life of Girl

VINELAND, N. J., Dec. 27.—(Universal.)—Heroic riding of state troopers on motorcycles saved the life of Miss Ethel D'Irio.

She was in a dying condition from blood poisoning when word reached Atlantic City Hospital yesterday that a serum they had would save her. Troopers were summoned and carried the serum 27 miles, over snow-covered roads, and through a blizzard in 22 minutes.

'Schnozzle's' Father, 82, Sees Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Eighty-two years old and on his first trip from New York City in 52 years, B. Durante has arrived with his son, Jimmy Durante, movie actor, for a visit in Hollywood.

*Below zero.

Winter's icy hand dealt death and suffering today as the mercury fell to an official 1 above and to below zero in many outlying communities, breaking all records for the season. Tonight the mercury is expected to hover around 10 above. More snow is promised for tomorrow.

Twenty-one CWA workers were saved from possible injury or drowning by their foreman's warning when an ice flow turned Girty's Run, Millvale, into a raging torrent that rose three feet in less than two minutes shortly after noon today.

The men were at work clearing the creek and building retaining walls, near the Millvale car barn, when Louis Herb, foreman, of 828 Stanton avenue, Millvale, saw the jagged ice blocks rushing down the stream.

SHOUTS WARNING

He shouted a warning to the men, who climbed up the creek banks as the flood swept by the spot where they had been working, carrying away their tools and wheelbarrows.

According to Herb, the water rose three feet almost before the last man had climbed out of its reach.

Burned when her clothing caught fire at a coal grate in the dining room of her home, Blanche Kowalski, 12, of 4722 Blair street, died early today in the Magee Hospital, the Coroner reported.

In the same room where the child was burned fatally, the mother and six other children were huddled in bed in an effort to keep warm, neighbors informed police.

AGED WOMAN BURNED

Mrs. Rose Coulter, aged 80 and blind, was burned seriously when her clothing ignited from a small gas stove in a bedroom of her home, 1672 Perrysville avenue.

Her screams were heard by Herbert Cox, of 3 Semicir street, who was waiting nearby for a street car. He and Patrolman Joseph Ackerman rushed into the aged woman's home where she lived alone, carried her out and commandeered a passing bakery truck to take her to Presbyterian Hospital. Attendants said she had little chance for recovery.

On the front porch of the Coulter home, delivered a few minutes before she was burned, was a package, presumably a Christmas present from her only son, Harvey Coulter, of Sacramento, Cal.

ICE PERILS TRAFFIC

Pedestrians faced a bitter 16-mile-an-hour wind this morning that added to the cold's intensity. During last night's blizzard the wind reached 28 miles.

Four inches of snow which yesterday was largely slush was a

Associated Press.

Winter continued its icy rule of much of the North American continent today, with howling winds, snow storms and far below normal temperatures that brought both death and suffering to many.

There was no letup in sight for the affected areas, except the promise of some moderation in the Central West. Colder was the prediction for the East and even Dixie, which escaped the first of the week's bitter cold, was threatened.

Several scores of persons were estimated to have died as a direct result of the frigid blasts. The East was blanketed by snow.

Eight fishermen died when a roaring gale, accompanied by snow, swept the southeast portion of Lake Michigan.

Canada was hard hit. Several of the deaths occurred in the Canadian provinces.

Roosevelt Re-Affirms Opposition to Saloon

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—President Roosevelt today reaffirmed his opposition to a return of the old-fashioned saloon and pointed anew to the Democratic national platform pledge of 1932 declaring against this form of liquor dispensary.

Mr. Roosevelt's statement was made in reply to a questioner's remark that 8,000 old-fashioned saloons are reported to be operating in Chicago alone.

Complaints on the return of the saloon have been received by the President from Missouri and other states, he declared.

Paul Mellon, in Sleigh, Wins Champagne Race

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—Paul Mellon, son of former Secretary of the Treasury A. W. Mellon, and New York's heaviest snowfall since 1926 today shared the honor of reviving an old Manhattan custom.

In pre-prohibition days, Mellon said, while at luncheon at the Central Park Casino, a magnum of champagne was awarded the party first arriving at the Casino by sleigh in the season's first snowfall.

Young Mellon, Mrs. K. S. Brown and Lucius Beebe decided the custom should be revived. The maitre d'hotel agreed.

Rushing from the luncheon table, the trio buttonholed Paddy Rafferty, driver of one of the few hansom cabs still operating in the city. Rafferty obtained a sleigh, hitched his horse to it and the party drove triumphantly to the Casino where the magnum was ceremoniously presented.

Another party of musicians and entertainers, seized with the same idea, arrived a few minutes later and were given a magnum as a consolation prize.

JOHNSON GIRDS TO BATTLE LABOR ON 30-HOUR WEEK

GREEN TO FORCE ISSUE WITH CONGRESS

NRA Chief Sides With Industry, Warns Of Perils

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—A tug-of-war over maximum working hours provisions of NRA codes has developed between Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, and organized labor, with the fight now slated for decision by the coming session of Congress.

Johnson definitely has aligned himself with industry and against any national program of maximum working hours. He said today a steady campaign was being waged by labor to reduce code provisions on working hours and that he would resist it in every possible way.

OPPOSES FLAT RULE

He added:

"You can't lay down one rule for all industry. To try to impose a 30-hour week or any-hour-week universally on all industry would just raise the dickens. It simply cannot be done."

Opposing Johnson in this theory are William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor; Edward McGrady, labor adviser to Johnson, and others. They and individual union leaders have fought steadily for further reduction in hours. Particularly was this true in the construction industry code, where Green went into open battle with NRA officials.

FORCES COMPROMISE

Green finally obtained a compromise, but plans to continue his fight on other codes.

Johnson expects 30-hour week legislation to be vigorously pushed in the coming session and is prepared to meet it. His aides now are preparing a mass of statistical reports to offset this legislation. He expects industry to give him united support.

Those close to Johnson believe, however, that if necessary to prevent a flat 30-hour week, he will consent to reopening of numerous codes for some slight, but not drastic, cut in working hours.

G. O. P. Insurgents Balk As NRA Sponsors

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Senate Republican independents who were recently invited to serve on a new board under the Recovery Administration to hear complaints from small businessmen are now balking at the idea that Hugh S. Johnson wants the board to be a contact organization between the recovery unit and Congress.

Senator Nye (Rep.), North Dakota, said if Johnson wanted the board to be a contact group instead of serving entirely under the Recovery Administration the project should be deferred until Congress expressed itself.

If Congress wanted such a board, he added, it could say so and appoint its own members.

Nye expressed doubt whether a resolution for a congressional investigation of the Recovery Administration could be approved, but said there was great need for revising many of the codes to protect the independents in business from "monopolies."

Senator Borah (Rep.), of Idaho, the other Senator asked to serve on the board, has turned down the request flatly unless Johnson sees the way he does on the anti-trust laws.

Major Codes Awaiting Roosevelt Approval

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—The Recovery Administration has announced presidential approval of seven new codes covering such industries as electrotyping, photo-engraving and producers of medium and low priced jewelry.

These codes, signed by President Roosevelt December 23, become effective around January 1. The list of those approved today did not include any of the major codes in the list of 50 which were taken to the Chief Executive by Hugh S. Johnson just before the Christmas holidays.

The other codes approved included watch case manufacturing, silverware, the commercial refrigerator industry and the paper distributing trade.

In the list of codes still before the Chief Executive were such major pacts as the newspaper code, the one covering the printing and engraving trade, and a master code for the construction industry.

About Time, Too

By QUIN HALL

FIGHT SAVING TAX REPEAL

sonal property tax from individuals. The state continued to collect the corporate loans tax (also 4 mills) under Section 17.

To prevent levies on interest-bearing bank accounts by counties, Einstein sponsored a bill last spring, which became a law. It amended Section 1 only, and provided the tax payable by individuals should not be levied on the bank accounts.

After Einstein's bill was signed, the Attorney General's department ruled that under Section 17 the tax still was payable, but by the banks themselves instead of by the depositors. The theory of this ruling was that the bank accounts represented a debt of the bank to Pennsylvania residents, and therefore was taxable. Coyne, late in the regular session, sponsored a new bill to correct the oversight, but it was vetoed because the administration wanted the money.

RUM REVENUES AID

The Einstein-Coyne bill, signed last week, amends Section 17 by removing the bank accounts from the taxable list of corporation holdings in the same manner as the bill last spring amended Section 1 to remove them from taxable subjects of individuals.

By striking the bank accounts from both sections, they are eliminated from all state and county tax.

The effective clause of the law signed last week is phrased to prevent collection of any tax which might have accumulated under the Einstein bill of last spring. It provides:

This act shall become effective immediately upon its approval by the Governor and shall be applicable for the calendar year ending the thirty-first day of December, 1933, and for any fiscal year ending during the year 1933, and for any calendar or fiscal year ending prior thereto or thereafter.

The administration's financial obligation last spring to relieving the bank accounts from tax payable to the state has been overcome by the estimate that liquor revenues will be sufficient to replace the $8,000,000 it had expected to receive from the banks.

FINAL BUDGET ACTION PENDS

Final action on the city's 1934 appropriations was pending today while City Council awaited delivery of the ordinance from the printer.

The ordinance carries an appropriation of $21,253,000 to operate the city government in 1934. In 1933 a total of $21,14[illegible],000 was set up. The 1934 total includes $120,000 for the police pension fund. This item was not listed in the 1933 budget, but the money was expended.

Although the present Councilmen have decided to pass the task of paring expenses to their successors, Mrs. R. Templeton Smith, budget representative of Mayor-elect William N. McNair, has not ceased studying the budget and drawing proposals for reductions.

Mrs. Smith said late yesterday she intends to submit her recommendations to the new Council.

COWBOY YELLS GREET O'BRIEN

Cowboy whoops—or a reception committee's idea of them—greeted George O'Brien, of the movies, and his bride in the Pennsylvania Railroad Station last night.

O'Brien is he who saves [illegible] in the screen's wide open [illegible] and the whoops were ca[illegible] to make him feel at home. George did not reply in kin[illegible] stead he gave voice to his impression of a steamboat whistle.

Later O'Brien said he is through with western pictures; at least until there is a greater demand for them. Contrary to popular belief, the movie cowboy's life is not a daredevil career, according to the brawny movie hero. He said:

"All you have to do is sit on a horse in the open and shave every morning."

O'Brien and his wife, formerly Margaret Churchill, stopped here en route to New York, where Mrs. O'Brien will shop around for a play and he will visit business acquaintances. They were welcomed by John Harris, of the theater, his wife and mother and several friends.

This welcoming group vocalized in cowboy fashion by way of greeting and then took the O'Briens to the Variety Club, where George swallowed many cups of coffee before they continued their journey to New York.

BILLION DEFICIT FAILS TO STIR ROOSEVELT

White House Expects Figure to Mount Higher

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt displayed no surprise today at the latest Treasury statement showing a deficit in government finances of a billion dollars and it was reported at the White House the figure would mount even higher as a result of the recovery program.

The Chief Executive was said authoritatively to be interested in making certain that income in revenue keeps pace with the normal current expenditures and he understands this income and outgo is about on an even basis.

The deficit is expected to represent only a part of the extraordinary expenditures being made by the government in behalf of the recovery drive.

CALLS MORGENTHAU

Continuing his preparation of the budget to be submitted to Congress next week, President Roosevelt called in Henry Morgenthau, Acting Secretary of the Treasury, and Lewis Douglass, budget director.

Mr. Roosevelt told newspapermen at his press conference that he has not started writing his budget message nor his message on the state of the union to be read to Congress on the opening day, January 3.

Asked to give his views on past events and predictions of those to come at the turn of the year, the President replied that he was willing to let the same old forecasters do the job and continue to be the goat.

As to foreign trade, the Department of Commerce reported a favorable balance of 56 million dollars for November—184 million dollars in goods going abroad, while 128 million dollars came in.

DEPOSIT INSURANCE

Another development was an estimate by Walter J. Cummings, chairman of the Deposit Insurance Corporation, that the temporary guarantee fund becoming effective next week "will completely guarantee 97 per cent of the bank accounts of the nation."

Meanwhile, lines for a Congressional skirmish over monetary matters, predicted for early in the approaching session, were being drawn today both at the White House and on Capitol Hill.

Senator Reed told newspapermen yesterday he felt the President had made "four mistakes" in his monetary activities. He predicted that unless Mr. Roosevelt took a definite stand against inflation there would not be enough votes to stop "currency debasement."

The Pennsylvanian asserted there had not been so far "any real inflation, and added:

"It is not too late for the President to put down his foot and say, 'No, we won't do it.' If he were to do that, there would be an outburst of confidence such as we have not seen in the United States since the depression settled down. And there is nothing we need so much at the moment as confidence in the future."

NRA Continues Lowest Wage Code

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—The Recovery Administration today permitted continuance until January 14 of the lowest wage scale thus far approved for any industrial group, 14 cents an hour for laundries in eight Southern states.

BIDDLE URGES CASH FOR NEEDY

State Director Holds System of Orders Unsatisfactory

HARRISBURG, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Eric H. Biddle, director of the Emergency Relief Board, recommended today that "cash, and cash only" should be paid to Pennsylvania's needy in any long-time relief program.

In his annual report to Gov. Pinchot, he said:

"The attempt to distribute relief in kind has resulted in an immensely cumbersome system which involved the issuing, auditing and disbursing of millions for relief orders distributed monthly.

"The present system of relief has created a tendency to think in terms of separate types of relief, rather than in terms of the total needs of the individual receiving relief.

"Relief grants made in cash instead of in kind is the only remedy."

He asserted:

"If there is anyone left at this late date who would protest against cash relief as being a dole, let it be remembered that we are already giving a dole, whether it be in the form of relief orders for food or other necessities of life.

"Cash relief affords the family some opportunity for freedom and initiative and, as a matter of fact, has far less of the psychology of 'charity,' than do the stereotyped orders for particular types of commodities."

Pointing out that the present set-up in Pennsylvania is not equipped to transfer immediately from kind to cash distribution, he recommended that the present system be continued temporarily and that the 1935 session of the General Assembly pass legislation to permit payments of cash.

frozen, glassy surface today endangering motor traffic.

Sledding was enjoyed by thousands of school children, free for the holiday season.

The cold wave will continue today and tonight. Observer W. S. Brotzman said, with the mercury between 5 and 10 above zero tonight. The skies will be fair.

ROADS OPEN, SLIPPERY

Every highway in Pennsylvania was slippery today, the State Highways Department announced. More than 3,700 men and 1,000 plows and trucks are on the roads, cindering the curves and clearing the drifts, it stated.

All roads are open, however, with the exception of a few feeder routes in Franklin and Adams counties. The new Bloomfield-Germantown road was closed for a time early today, it was said, and parts of U. S. Route 15 were reduced to half width in spots on either side of Gettysburg.

Blizzard and Cold Wave Sweeps State, Two Dead

Associated Press.

Pennsylvanians muffled themselves for a blizzard that swept across the state from the West today in the wake of the season's heaviest snowstorm, which already has claimed at least two lives, grounded airplanes and seriously hampered rail and highway traffic.

The two fatalities reported occurred in Western Pennsylvania. John Rankin, 74, died after being found unconscious in a snowdrift near his mountain home in Jumonville, Fayette County, where he apparently had succumbed to a heart attack while battling the storm.

Last night, Leonard Lethaby, 37, walked into the path of a train and was killed near his home in Erie.

30,000 Men Get Jobs Removing N. Y. Snow

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—An army of more than 30,000 workers continued today to dig New York from under an 11-inch covering of snow which fell yesterday in a 10-hour storm.

Colder weather greeted New Yorkers today. The city was prepared for additional snow, as the Board of Estimate appropriated another million dollars for snow removal.

Baby Boy Born In Car Stalled In Snowdrift

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—An eight-pound baby boy was born yesterday in an automobile, stalled in a snowdrift.

His father—a New Rochelle rug merchant—was hurrying his wife to a hospital, but just before he got to the entrance his automobile bogged in a snowdrift.

HUSKIES, NURSE TO RACE STORK

WONALANCET, N. H., Dec. 27.—(AP.)—The sons and daughters of some of Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd's best malamutes were ready today for an 11-mile dash across drifting snowflakes to carry a nurse to the bedside of an expectant mother within the shadow of Mt. Chocorua.

When the team of 11 dogs pushes off, Mr. and Mrs. John Milton Seeley, proprietors of a kennel here, will be on the sled that will carry Miss Beatrice Coots, district nurse, on her errand of mercy.

Miss Coots must be at her destination some time late today. There is a 20-inch fall of snow hereabouts and in exposed places it has drifted into miniature mountains, but the Seeleys have promised to have her there on time, although, they said, the going undoubtedly would be difficult. Any other means of transportation, except dog-sled, would be out of question.

Many of the Seeley dogs are among the huskies which Admiral Byrd is taking with him to Antarctica.

FIVE EAST END FIRES IN HOUR

Five fire alarms within an hour today kept four East End fire engine companies busy.

Damage of $1,500 followed a short circuit in the Christmas tree decorations in the home of F. J. Lind at 625 Pitcairn place.

Coals from a grate in the rooming house conducted by Mrs. Elizabeth Spaeth at 812 South Aiken avenue caused a fire with damage estimated at $50. An overheated furnace in the residence of Fred Lowry, 118 Collins avenue, caused a fire on the second floor with damage of $100.

Fire from an overheated flue did damage estimated at $100 in the basement of the East End Hardware Company, 6451 Franks-town avenue. A fire from a similar origin was extinguished with $10 damage in the basement of a three-story apartment house at 5524 Howe street.

Overtime Pay For Telegraphers

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Telegraphic communication companies were given permission by NRA to work their employes in excess of 192 hours a month for a four-week period only, starting today.

All work above the 192-hour limit in the modified re-employment agreement for the industry shall be paid for at a rate of time and one-half.

Wedell Speeds Plane To Hospital After Prince Gives Aid

within the ventricles or between the membranes of the brain.

The child probably will undergo an operation within the next several days.

Dr. Dandy tentatively decided on the operation after an examination this afternoon. He confirmed the diagnosis that the baby had water on the brain.

Dr. Dandy said that the disease was very serious, but that it often can be treated surgically with success.

Mrs. W. B. Trammell, the baby's mother, said:

"I didn't know what was the matter with Sue, except that she is very sick—and I hardly want to know."

Sue is the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Trammell, their other child having died of a similar ailment.

BALTIMORE TRIP URGED

The baby became ill last Saturday when relatives noticed changes in the contour and size of her head. Houston physicians were called in and they, failing to diagnose the ailment, recommended she be brought to Baltimore for an operation by Dr. Dandy.

Wedell stepped into the picture shortly after noon yesterday. The New Orleans pilot, who holds several records, on an hour's notice, took off from Houston at 2:50 p. m. (Pittsburgh time) in a fast plane with the Trammell party.

After a two-hour hop, he stopped in New Orleans 20 minutes to take on 80 gallons of gasoline and was off for Atlanta. A stop of less than 25 minutes was made there to refuel.

PRINCE YELDS SEAT

The first lap from Houston to New Orleans was expedited by Prince Louis Ferdinand, grandson of the former Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany, who, with other passengers, gave up their seats in the fast plane to the Trammell party.

Reports of bad flying conditions to the north and snow in the vicinity of Baltimore did not stop Wedell. Leaving Atlanta at 9:25 p. m. he reached Greensboro, N. C., at 11:50 p. m., where he refueled in five minutes and was on his way again.

After receiving reports of the spectacular flight, Mayor Jackson placed the facilities of the city to the aid of the pilot and the family of the stricken child. The airport was ordered to turn on its flood lights and the municipal ambulance was sent there.

Wedell's landing on the snow crust, which broke under the wheels of the plane and sprayed about the ship, was described as excellent by port officials. The plane taxied up to the administration building before the passengers alighted.

'WEDELL WONDERFUL'

Mrs. Fondren was the first to get out. She was followed by Mrs. Trammell and then came the nurse bearing the child. All the passengers were warmly dressed. They passed through the administration building with little comment, to the waiting automobile. Trammell said:

"All I've got to say is that it was a wonderful trip and Jimmy Wedell is a wonderful pilot."

Wedell said:

"The fog was bad between New Orleans and Atlanta, and the winds were pretty strong between Atlanta and Baltimore, but other than that there wasn't anything out of the ordinary about the trip. I just followed the air-line beacons."

Wedell, who was dressed in a business suit and blue overcoat, took off again 35 minutes after arriving here for Washington "Just for the ride," after answering the question if he was tired by saying:

"I ain't started yet."

The only food taken by the air travelers on the trip was some coffee and sandwiches at Atlanta. The baby, who weighs 14 pounds, received its malted [illegible], but attendants at Johns Hopkins were told her appetite is only fair.

Miss Swinson, the nurse who held the baby on her lap throughout the entire trip, said:

"She didn't cry much in the air but she did cry a little bit after she got in the ambulance."

Unified Bank System Plan Faces Defeat

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—The campaign of Wall street bankers for legislation creating a unified United States banking system today appeared doomed to failure at the coming session of Congress because of opposition from a strong state bank bloc.

The state bank bloc demonstrated its strength last summer by forcing inclusion of state banks in the federal guaranty of bank deposits. This provision has given the government a real problem, since the Deposit Insurance Corporation and Reconstruction Finance Corporation must decide how to include some 600 state banks, which have impaired capital.

On the other hand, 7,000 state banks, outside the Federal Reserve system, were strong enough to qualify for federal insurance without governmental aid.

The demand for a unified banking system was started in Wall street months ago. Winthrop W. Aldrich, head of the Chase National Bank, was among the first to advocate it. Now the Guaranty Trust Company, dominated by J. P. Morgan & Co., has joined the crusade. Both Aldrich and Guaranty officials declared it should be approached by extending branch banking by national banks.

Aldrich proposed modification of the banking laws to permit branch banking by national banks throughout their own states in towns under 15,000 population, despite state laws to the contrary.

Dill Asks Regulation Of Radio Advertising

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—A sweeping reorganization of the Federal Radio Commission was proposed today by Chairman Dill, of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, unless it shows more "initiative" in regulating advertising and keeps alert to new developments in the broadcasting field.

Dill also said there would be no legislation proposed for unifying all communication services, such as suggested by President Roosevelt's inter-departmental committee, until conferences were had with Chairman Rayburn, of the House Interstate Commerce Committee, and full hearings held. He said:

"The problem of uniting communication services is made much more difficult by the existing relationships between the telegraph, cables and radio as now owned by Western Union and International Telephone and Telegraph."

Dill said unless the Radio Commission became a "more effective body and took hold to do [illegible]thing," he would propose reducing it to one director with a board to hear appeals from his decisions.

MRS. M'ALISTER AWARDED $6,000 YEARLY ALIMONY

JUDGE ASSAILS HUSBAND'S DEFENSE

Former Auto Man's Wife Gets Limited Divorce

Mrs. Dorothy McAlister was granted a limited divorce with $6,000 a year alimony from her former automobile salesman husband, Raymond P. McAlister, in a decree handed down today by Judge Ralph H. Smith in Common Pleas Court.

The husband previously at a hearing, had testified he anticipated only $3,500 income for the year, altnough he admitted to being worth about $617,000, almost half of which is in cash.

JUDGE'S COMMENT

Judge Smith, in his opinion, comments on this. He said:

"It is inconceivable that one of his recognized ability, initiative and energy should so poorly manage so liquid an estate for the ensuing 12 months so as to yield so meager an income. To accept that estimate would be to presume that the respondent had suddenly lost all of the skill, acument and deftness with which he had previously managed his financial affairs.

"Such a conclusion is not warranted by either his physical condition or his general mental attitude as displayed on the stand.

"It is not the policy of the law, nor the purpose of the court to permit such evasion of responsibility. The respondent is not permitted so to manage his estate as to make impossible the earnings of what would be a normal income to the end that he may deprive his wife of her just rights while he continues to live in the accustomed style from what he chooses to call 'withdrawal from capital.'"

LIVE APART

Mrs. McAlister has been living at the Royal Yorke Apartments while her husband has been maintaining a separate home at 1401 North Highland avenue. He put her out of the home, the wife declared in her divorce suit, charging cruel and barbarous treatment.

Prior to their separation, Mrs. McAlister declared her husband maintained for her a beautiful home and frequently took her on trips to Florida and elsewhere on his private yacht. He separated from her without cause, she said.

Judge Smith also allowed the wife, who was represented by Attorney Oliver K. Eaton, $1,200 for counsel fees.

JOE JEFFERSON HOME BURNS

BUZZARD'S BAY, Mass., Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Crow's Nest, once the summer home of the famous character actor, Joseph Jefferson, and now owned by Arthur Shaw, Wellesley florist, was swept by fire early today with a loss estimated by firemen at $20,000.

The big, three-story house was not destroyed, although the flames raced from basement to roof and drove the Shaw family into a swirling snowstorm. The origin of the fire was not determined.

Lasky, Jr., Stricken After Writing Story

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Jesse L. Lasky, Jr., son of the veteran motion picture producer, underwent an appendicitis operation yesterday and today was reported resting comfortably.

Young Lasky was stricken at the home of his father, just after he had finished writing the story for a movie for the elder Lasky to produce.

WOMEN FLIERS SHOW STRAIN

International News Service.

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 27.—The endurance flight of Frances Harrel Marsalis and Helen Richey entered its seventh day today, and found the two young women beginning to feel the strain as they approached the present record mark of eight days and four hours.

They were taking hourly rest periods as the Outdoor Girl circled over the city, but otherwise everything was going well. Concern which had been felt over smoke in the cylinders of the ship disappeared as the trouble cleared up, and mechanics with the refueling ship said the engine apparently is in good condition.

They will equal the record at 5:09 p. m. tomorrow, if they remain aloft.

THUG, OFFICER DIE IN DUEL

SCRANTON, Pa., Dec. 27.—(AP.)—A policeman and a suspected burglar were killed in a blaze of pistol fire early today and a few hours later a youth and his sister were arrested.

The pistol duel occurred in a hotel as Police Capt. Albert Gleason and Detective George Donaldson went to a room occupied by John Hrebenor, alias Conway.

Scranton police arrested Peter Sedock, 19, of Dunmore. His sister, Mary, 22, described as Hrebenor's friend, was jailed in Philadelphia.

Police said the girl, who had an 18-month-old baby with her, was wearing a mink coat which was said to have been stolen from a Mrs. Conboy in Binghamton, N. Y.

LINDY EXHIBIT TO HONOR ANNE

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Anne Lindbergh, "commercial wireless operator, third class," is going to have a very special place of her own in the Lindbergh saga as it is preserved for posterity by the American Museum of Natural History.

The museum curators were getting ready today to place on exhibit the 70-pound wireless transmission set by which Mrs. Lindbergh assisted her husband to fly safely the 30,000 miles of their recent aerial survey.

The little set goes into the museum as part of the equipment of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's plane, which he presented to F. Trubee Davison, museum director.

Professional "key pounders" from the Arctic to the Equator, who picked out of the air the unfailing messages from the Lindbergh plane, early hailed "Operator Anne" as a respected member of their fraternity, Hugo C. Leuteritz, chief of Pan-American Airways' communication system, who constructed the equipment, called her performances "unprecedented."

Last Two of 'Petter' Bandits Go to Pen

GREENSBURG, Pa., Dec. 27.—Two "petting bandits," the last of the gang, today were sent to the penitentiary to serve from seven to 14 years. Harry Harris and Paul Sullivan were sentenced by Judge W. T. Dom after state police testified they and five others had held up 47 persons. All but one of the gang are serving sentences now.

STONE AGE GIRL UPSETS ORIGIN OF RACE IDEA

Cro-Magnon Woman Believed Smarter Than Moderns

BOSTON, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—A real "old fashioned girl" of the stone age, who was smarter than her modern sisters if you can judge by brain capacity, gave a new idea of the origin of the human race today before the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

She was a true "Minerva" of 10,000 years ago and an Amazon as well. Her brain capacity was 1,430 cubic centimeters as against 1,300 for the average young woman of today and 1,450 for modern man, and though only 20 years old she stood nearly six feet tall.

Study of this and other skeletons of the old stone age shows that new measurement of the many bones of ancient man now in museums may greatly clarify the mystery of the origin of the present human race, said Prof. Gerhardt von Bonin of the University of Illinois. Out of the old stone age, presumably, came the modern human race. The professor explained:

"It has become abundantly clear that we are in need of much fuller data than we possess at present, data which renewed measurements of the human remains now known to us could easily supply."

The new evidence shows, he went on, that there was probably only one race on earth during the old stone age instead of three as many scientists have formerly believed.

This race, the Cro-Magnon man, may have undergone minor changes during the several thousand years of its existence, accounting for the previous belief that there were three races. Some believe Cro-Magnon man was developed into modern man, others that he died out for some unexplained reason. There is much evidence that Cro-Magnon man drove out or replaced the ape-like Neanderthal man who had a much smaller brain capacity.

New Disease Immunity Discovery Revealed

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Discovery of the body's first line of defense in immunity to disease, a chemical mechanism which "anchors" bacteria so they cannot circulate, was announced to the American Association for the Advancement of Science today.

The discovery widens the possibility of immunity to include the entire body, instead of being confined mostly to the protective powers of the blood, as has hitherto been the general idea of immunologists and medical men. It was described by Reuben L. Kahn, M. D., director of the clinical laboratories of the University of Michigan.

The "first line" for immunity under these findings is the skin, formerly considered only a "neutral bystander" to which the blood rushes first aid. The skin is 10 times better able to combine with immunizing substances and so "anchor" infection than the other parts of the body.

Next in efficiency comes the peritoneum, the inner lining of the abdominal cavity. After that come the muscles, the brain and finally the blood and its serum.

McCormick Daughter To Marry Editor

CHICAGO, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—The engagement of Miss Eleanor McCormick to marry Sargent Collier, of Boston, was announced today by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hall McCormick.

Collier is the son of Mrs. E. Pomeroy Collier and her late husband. He is editor of the House Beautiful magazine. Eleanor is the elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. McCormick, of the prominent Chicago family of that name.

RULE GRANTED ON FORNEY INN

A rule was granted by Judge George V. Moore in Common Pleas Court today on Alfred W. Forney and his wife, Tracey E. Forney, owners of Long Vue Inn, to show cause why a judgment of $525 against Edward B. and Freda Pope Hess, operators, should not be reopened.

The judgment, obtained on allegations by the Forneys for alleged breach of contract, has to do with the legal sale of liquor on the premises. The Hesses claim they had an oral agreement to the lease on the inn that permitted them to sell liquor after repeal, but the Forneys claimed extra rent. In answering the judgment, the Hesses also claim $2,288 owed them by the Forneys on loans from July 1, 1931, up to date.

Grief Kills Mother Of Football Victim

SOMERSET, Pa., Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Mrs. Elmer Pugh's 17-year-old son died three weeks ago from injuries received in a sandlot football game.

Yesterday Mrs. Pugh died—from a heart condition brought on by grief over her son's death, physician said.

Fancy Dogs Help Show Fate of Humans

BOSTON, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—The fancy breeds of dogs on view at every dog show are serving a new purpose for science—showing that heredity chiefly decides whether human babies will grow up to be dwarfs, giants or normal.

Through experiments in cross-breeding such dogs, new evidence has been found that a deep-seated, inherited quality called "tissue constitution" is what primarily governs a baby's response to gland secretions, Prof. Charles R. Stockard of Cornell University told the American Association for the Advancement of Science today.

School at Night Lands Boy in Cell

TULSA, Okla., Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Jimmy Stout, Collinsville youth, today learned it's against the law to go to school.

Harve Simms, Collinsville city marshal, arrested Stout for going to school. It was night. The school was closed. The youth got in and valuables disappeared, said the officer, and according to the construction he placed on Oklahoma law it was burglary.

SISTIE, BUZZIE TO SEE HUSKIES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt said today she was going to take her grandchildren, Sistie and Buzzie Dall, to see Slim Williams and his Alaskan dog team whom she first met at the Chicago Fair.

Slim, first person ever to drive a dog team from Alaska to Chicago—it was on a bet—rounded out the long trek by driving it on into Washington to urge Alaskan projects.

Bank Bandits Kidnap Three, Get $40,000

MARLIN, Tex., Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Four men robbed the First State Bank of Marlin at the opening hour today and kidnaped three employes, one a woman. Bank officials estimate the lost at about $40,000, although an exact check had not been completed.

Those kidnaped were M. V. Bradshaw, vice-president; Miss Andrew Peyton, an assistant, and a Negro porter.

BISHOP MURDER QUIZ TO HOLD KNIFE SELLER

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Officials seeking to trace a butcher knife with which Archbishop Leon Tourain was assassinated in Holy Cross Armenian Church, Sunday, decided today to ask that the owner of a midtown cutlery store be held as a material witness.

Assistant District Attorney Joseph Cohen said he would request Judge Corrigan to hold Nigal Odabashian, the shopkeeper, in $15,000 bail.

Cohen said the knife with which the Armenian Apostolic Church archbishop was struck down was similar to nine knives found in Odabashian's stock. Odabashian denied that any of five men held in connection with the killing had bought a knife from him.

Cohen said the store owner acknowledged membership in the Tashnak, an Armenian revolutionary group to which the five suspects also belong. Cohen said:

"We feel Odabashian knows more than he is telling us."

Meanwhile, police extended the search for the slayers to New Jersey, Connecticut and Pennsylvania, indicating more than 20 arrests would be made before the investigation is completed.

City.

Prosecutor Cohen said he had questioned half a dozen persons during the night, including a man who gave his name as Mihran Aslanian, of West New York, N. J. Aslanian was quoted as saying he was a member of the Tashnak and that he was in the church at the time. He denied knowledge of the crime.

Cohen said he would question several Providence, R. I., persons who belong to the Tashnak in that city.

PRIZED VAMPIRE BAT DIES IN ZOO

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—Leaving an orphaned son and a film record of her blood-sucking proclivities, the vampire bat that stirred the research zeal of Bronx Zoo scientists was dead today, dying in the fourth month of her captivity. Dr. Raymond L. Ditmars, curator, said:

"The cause of her death is one of the many mysteries that have confronted us in dealing with the vampire.

"She was apparently in good health, and thriving on her diet of defibrinated blood. Then suddenly she died, while her baby was at her breast.

Dr. Ditmars has an imperishable record of the bat's life and habits, a lengthy motion picture film which is the result of tireless photographic effort since the vampire's arrival from Central America three months ago.

Weather Conditions.

The disturbance that caused the snowfall over the lakes and central valleys yesterday and last night, is now off the New England coast (Boston 29.90), while a large high extending from the Canadian Northwest (Edmonton, Alberta, 30.48), southeastward over the northern plains to the central valleys (Louisville, Ky., 30.08), now dominates the weather over most of the country east of the Rocky Mountains. Philadelphia reports four inches of snow on the ground and New York's nine inches this morning. Temperatures are now below the seasonal normal nearly everywhere east of the Rocky Mountains, except in portions of the Gulf states. The lowest temperature in the states was at Duluth, Minn., 26 degrees below zero, and in the Canadian Northwest, 31 degrees below zero at Edmonton, Alberta, and Prince Albert, Sask. Pressure is relatively low in the far West, and it is somewhat warmer in the Central Rocky Mountains and portions of the western plains.

River Conditions.

The rivers are now stationary or falling slowly. Stage at Franklin is 5.5 feet; Lock No. 7 (Mon.), 12.8, Pittsburgh, 14.8; Dam No. 4, 10.7, No. 6, 12.0, No. 10, 11.7, and No. 12, 12.6. The dams are down. The rivers will continue to fall.

the King with excommunication.

The threat was enough. The Archbishop murdered at the altar, died in defense of what he believed to be his rights and those of the church.

Henry, who had him murdered, died "as he turned his face to the wall muttering 'Shame on a beaten King'", as you may read in Mrs. Green's most interesting history of that monarch.

FLOOD WATERS backed up in the mountains of the Northwest Pacific coast have broken loose with deadly results, houses crushed, a number dead, towns flooded, transportation demoralized.

There is plenty of room in the great mountain canyons to provide storage for dangerous excess waters. Proper control of the Columbia river would do away with one danger.

Now that government begins to spend money, it might undertake flood control in earnest, from ocean to ocean.

DEMOCRATS CONFUSED

That's how confused the Democrats are, virtually on the eve of inauguration day. And McNair hasn't taken a stand, one way or the other.

The Rev. Dr. George W. Shelton, who led a group of 58 pastors of Pittsburgh churches yesterday in urging Pennington on McNair, is the only man who seems to give Pennington a chance to being appointed.

Dr. Shelton was said by friends to have received assurances from one member of the ministerial group heretofore pledged to Malone that his support could be enlisted for Pennington. The Malone pledge was made, it was said, at the time when Pennington's eligibility was uncertain.

Mayor Herron today removed the last obstacle to Pennington's appointment when he signed the ordinance introduced last week by Councilman W. Y. English repealing the ordinance of 1902 which required all city department heads to have been a resident of the city for four years at the time of appointment.

BENEDUM FOR MALONE

Malone, former Republican president of Council under the late Mayor Charles H. Kline, and long chairman of the Republican Fifth Ward, supported the Democrats after losing out for Council in the Republican primaries. He can probably definitely have the supplies job Dunlap will lose next week.

McGinnis, old Democratic machine war-horse, has powful backing and McNair's friendship, but strong and dangerous opposition from some of the reform element.

Weir's name was discarded Saturday and now there's doubt that he'll take the job if they do ask him.

Supporting Pennington, Dr. Shelton said:

"It's better to get an outside man who has no political alignments and no debts to pay off here."

Sharply contradicting McNair's assertion that the ministers advanced Dunlap as second choice, he said:

"We are irrevocably committed to Pennington. He is fitted above all others to conduct a police department separated from politics.

"There is no second choice. There's no reason why there should be."

Discussing candidates, Dr. Shelton said:

"It will not be Malone nor McGinniss.

"Weir won't be named, either. If McNair names him his troubles will have just begun."

CHARTER 'REPEAL'

Stating that McNair had not promised to accept the ministers' choice when he asked them to nominate a man for the job, Shelton said McNair "asked us to get Council to repeal the charter ordinance requiring the director to be a resident of Pittsburgh.

He continued:

"We did that and now there's nothing to stand in Pennington's way, so far as I can see."

Next in importance to the selection of a Safety Director, the organziation of the new City Council next week took precedence in the discussions of the new administration.

Friends of Councilman-elect William A. Magee predicted that he will cast the deciding vote for a Democratic-controlled Council in the belief that the 20,000 majority of Democratic votes cast for him warrant such action.

WAGES SILENT

Magee himself continued his refusal to announce how he will vote but said that he will announce his position on Friday or Saturday of this week and will not wait for Council to meet.

Both John M. Huston, Democratic caucus choice, and Robert Garland, Republican, but long opposed to the Republican machine heretofore in control, have conferred with Magee, asking his vote. Each has four votes.

Magee, his friends say, feels that McNair and his Democratic associates in Council should not be confronted with a "muddled" situation in Council. He is likewise said to feel that the 70,000 "independent" Republicans who voted for him should be considered.

Guffey, Lawrence, Benedum, McNair, and Councilmen-elect John J. Kane, Thomas J. Gallagher, John M. Huston and Walter R. Demmler met in Guffey's offices in the Benedum-Trees Building before 2 p. m. yesterday. The meeting didn't break up until after 6 p. m.

Guffey, Lawrence and others were at it again after dinner, continuing their discussions far into the night.

NO DECISION MADE

But there wasn't any decision on safety.

All but McNair backed George E. Evans for director of works. McNair was against Evans because Evans withdrew after winning a nomination to Council in the primaries in favor of McNair's declared enemy, former Mayor William A. Magee, who won on Republican and Democratic slates.

Yet McNair and Magee were seen chatting amicably on the street yesterday if that's any indication that McNair's sparring with the councilman-elect is at an end.

Attorney Cornelius D. Scully is agreed upon as city solicitor. Percy R. Williams is agreed upon for chief assessor. James P. Kirk is unopposed for city treasurer. Dr. Frank Moyer seems to have a grip on the health department, being McNair's nominee. Southard Hay will probably be the new director of welfare, turning to a brand new field after a life of contracting and acting as bank receiver.

CHINESE BOMBS WRECK CHURCH

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Vice Consul Gordon L. Burke at Foochow, China, reported to the State Department yesterday that the church and other property of the American Board Mission there had been damaged when eight Nanking government planes dropped between 20 and 30 bombs on the city at 1 p. m. on December 24. No Americans or other foreigners were injured, but 15 Chinese were killed.

Six Nanking planes bombed Foochow again on Christmas afternoon, Burke reported, causing property damage, but no injuries to foreigners.

Foochow is the capital of the newly established Fukien Communist government which is defying the authority of the central government under Gen. Chiang Kai Shek in Nanking.

Consul Lynn W. Franklin at Amoy also reported to the department that no Americans were injured or American property damaged when 12 Nanking planes bombed Changchow, 32 miles west of Amoy, on December 22.

New York Eases New Year Rum Ban

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—(Universal.)—A New Years' gift to hotels, cafes, restaurants and eating places of all kind was delivered today by the State Alcohol Control Board when it announced that all could remain open until 5 a. m. on New Years Day instead of closing at 3 a. m.

Nebraska Village Acts to Baffle Demon Rum

BATTLE CREEK, Neb., Dec. 28.—(AP.)—Battle Creek children aren't going to develop the habit of drinking if the village board can help it. In the current issue of a local newspaper appears a display advertisement with the information the board will pay $25 in cash for information leading to the arrest and conviction of any person who sells or gives to a minor child "spiked" beer or other liquor of illegal alcoholic content.

TERRY FAVORED AS MAGISTRATE

The Morals Court Citizens' Committee was on record today in favor of the appointment of David J. Terry, former director of the Children's Service Bureau, as Morals Court magistrate under Mayor-elect William N. McNair.

They named Terry as their first choice of four after surveying the field for a candidate who would avoid politics and conduct the job with an eye principally to social service.

In naming their candidates, the committee ignored the recommendation of Mrs. R. Templeton Smith, McNair's adviser on city finances, that Morals Court be combined with downtown police court.

College Grads, Many Long Idle, Welcome Rum Store Clerkships

Job's a Job Now, Remarks Son of Ardent 'Dry'

Nearly three out of four appointees to positions of liquor store clerks are college graduates, many of them recent ones, a cross section poll of the successful applicants for Allegheny County showed today.

Many were going on their first "steady" job and to a man expressed as "glad of it."

One, a son of a Bellevue druggist, bone-dry in prohibition days, refused even to let the compunctions of his father stand in the way of acceptance of one of the liquor-dispensing jobs. He is Elliott G. Denslow, 24, graduated just two years ago from Ohio Wesleyan College. Said he:

"Well, a job's a job these days."

CHANGES POLITICS

Denslow, who said he was normally a Republican, declared he voted the Democratic ticket last election but was quick to insist "politics had nothing to do with his appointment."

Of the other successful applicants for liquor store clerkships, one said he was a graduate architect out of school only four years, and had a wife and baby to support. Another, 23, was graduated this year from Carnegie Institute of Technology. In answer to questions, he said:

"No, I've had no experience with liquor, but do I know what it is? Well, who doesn't?"

For the most part, Allegheny County's 124 appointees are from the middle strata of life, the majority of those selected residing in the city proper, although a goodly number come from surrounding boroughs and townships. Practically all are from the ranks of the unemployed, some of them having been without jobs two or three years.

'CHRISTMAS GIFT'

One successful applicant, a former storeroom clerk in a downtown restaurant, declared his appointment was "a welcome Christmas present." He is not a college graduate.

Among the managerial and supervisory appointments are several with previous liquor handling experience. Philip W. Gundelfinger, of Coraopolis, son of a pre-prohibition wholesaler of local fame was named district superintendent for Allegheny County. He was previously associated with his father in the liquor business and recently had been assisting the Liquor Control Board at Harrisburg.

New appointments to positions under the Pennsylvania Board of Liquor Control were announced today in Harrisburg:

FOWLER LEAVES HOLLYWOOD TO 'SAVE MIND'

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Gene Fowler, the writer, returned from a sojourn in Hollywood and said the reason he left was that "I feared for my mind." He declared:

"Now, I don't want to be a common scold, and I don't want to describe Hollywood, because that isn't possible in the public prints. I want to be dignified. Just before I left, they docked $1.85 from my pay. I never knew why, but I think they thought I was talking against them. My statement is, I left because I feared for my mind."

Fowler, who spent part of his time in Hollywood on a picturization of his book, "Timber Line," decried the payment of large lump sums to writers. He said:

"To stay on and on in Hollywood at a fabulous salary is corrupting. It is bad for everyone. I've been there three months and my next book is going to be about 18 pets that I've had from time to time. It won't make a dime, but I'll like doing it. One of the pets is a frog named Zooker, but that is a long story."

Still on the subject of money, Fowler said the new screen trend of "making good pictures out of nice old books," if continued, will result adversely for the modern writer. He added:

"If they go on with the nice old books, doing good jobs of putting them on the screen—as they did with 'Little Women'—us boys are going to stay in the poorhouse."

Very Unoriginal, Says Hollywood of Fowler

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Critical comments on the movie colony attributed in New York to writer Gene Fowler of a tenor instantly familiar here, although no one cared to voice an immediate formal rejoinder.

Probably no less than a dozen writers and actors have shown up in New York in the last three years after servitude in Hollywood and given vent to jere maids on the state of the movie business.

One studio representative on hearing of Fowler's remarks, said:

"Very unoriginal."

As for the $1.85 Fowler said was "docked" from his pay just before he left here, possibly because "they thought I was talking against them," the spokesman said "it probably was for a studio cafe luncheon check."

HOLLYWOOD HAZARDS

Fowler said he left Hollywood because "I feared for my mind," but whatever hazards he encountered along this line were encountered under rather diverting circumstances.

For some time he and Ben Hecht—another writer who, while in New York, has expressed esthetic pain at Hollywood—maintained an elaborate suite at a studio here, rejecting the cubicles ordinarily assigned to writers, as "not Hollywood enough" for them.

At the entrance of the suite they kept a secretary, always clad in evening dress. She was supposed to "insult" such persons as Fowler and Hecht wanted insulted when these persons appeared.

The suite was a sort of studio within a studio, a neo-bohemian abode, full of surprises to the visitor. The last gasp in ornate furnishings were on display, and some rather bizarre pictures and photographs decorated the walls.

PLAN 15-MILE ROCKET SHOT

CLEVELAND, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Plans to shoot a self-propelled rocket 15 miles into the air for purposes of scientific research were disclosed yesterday when Ernst Loebell, German engineer and designer, tested—with apparent success—a minature model of the rocket's terrifically powerful "motor."

The Cleveland Rocket Society which is sponsoring the rocket research, conducted yesterday's test on the suburban estate of Carl H. Hanna.

Loebell's miniature motor is six inches long and an inch and a half in diameter. The power plant, a combustion chamber only, receives oxygen through one tube, and gasoline from another.

Protected from possible death in the event of an explosion, Loebell stood behind a steel shield to adjust the valves during the test. The test was so successful, he added, that another model, much larger, will be constructed at once. No attempt will be made to make the rocket large enough to carry a man, but it will be designed to carry a small cargo such as scientific apparatus or mail.

LOST SON VIGIL ENDS IN DEATH

KANE, Pa., Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Death has ended the long, unceasing vigil Mrs. Lillian Adams kept for the return of Edward Paul, her kidnaped son.

Twenty-four years ago two men snatched away Edward Paul, then 8 years old, as he and two other boys were returning from a fishing trip.

For years the boy has been sought, but no clue ever was found as to his whereabouts, however the mother never gave up hope. Only a few days ago she said:

"Every morning I awake with the feeling that this will be the day of my son's return."

Mrs. Adams died yesterday of a heart attack—her boy still missing.

RAILROAD BRIDGE BROKEN APART BY THE NORTHWEST'S FLOODS NEAR LONGVIEW, WASH.

FREEZE TRAILS COAST FLOODS

International News Service.

PORTLAND, Ore., Dec. 27.—Flood waters throughout the Pacific Northwest were receding rapidly today.

The crest of the floods, which inundated thousands of acres of rich farming land, driving 5,000 from their homes and causing five million dollars damage, was finding its way to the Columbia River and the Pacific Ocean.

Farmers in the lowland regions of the Columbia were forced to seek higher ground as the surging waters rushed by to the ocean.

Moose to Build Addition to Home

Moose Hill Top Lodge has let a contract for a $10,000 addition to its building at 128 Ormsby avenue, Mt. Oliver. The building committee is composed of Dictator Robert Danner, Vice Dictator Frank C. Miller, Secretary Frank Scherer, Treasurer William Harold, and William Franke, James Curnan and Louis Schmidt, trustees.

Islam Grotto Fetes Children at Party

Islam Grotto is holding a Christmas party for children of prophets and for children in several North Side orphanages at its lodge headquarters, 107 East Montgomery avenue, this afternoon. A Santa Claus and movies were included in the program.

'Y' OPEN HOUSE NEW YEAR'S

Open house will mark observance of New Year's Day at the 14 branches of the Pittsburgh Y. M. C. A. Features of the day will be aquatic exhibitions, tournaments and volleyball and basketball games.

Climaxing festivities at the Downtown Y. M. C. A. will be a New Year's dance. A choral concert, a family dinner and a play, "The Hour Glass," are scheduled at the Allegheny branch.

A dance, preceded by an eight-act dramatic performance, "Around That Corner," also will be held by the East Liberty branch, and a New Year's dinner, by the North Boroughs branch.

DOOMED YOUTH BEGS TO LIVE, FEARS GAS

International News Service.

CANON CITY, Col., Dec. 27.—Walter Reppin, 18-year-old Newark (N. J.) youth condemned to die in the Colorado lethal gas chamber for the death of Vincent Regan, Colorado Springs taxi driver, today pleaded with Warden Roy Best that his life be spared.

Reppin called the warden into conference in the death house and asked him to write C. W. Dolphs, his attorney, of Colorado Springs, and his aunt, Mrs. Emma Birmbum, of Newark, N. J., to make strenuous efforts to keep him from death next week.

FEARS GAS DEATH

Reppin fears the new kind of death with a horror that makes pins of fire of his beady, close-set eyes. He has learned that tests are to be made of the new device this week, and keeps asking if they have been held and how they have come out.

Reppin has assumed a deeply religious attitude, reading a Bible and other religious works avidly, more so than any condemned man in recent years.

Reppin went into detail with Warden Best in describing the shooting of Regan. He said he only intended to hold him up, but Regan fought back. Reppin described with a laugh how he fooled Regan by dropping one gun to make the man think him disarmed. Then, he said, he pulled a second gun.

'FIRED TOO QUICK'

Reppin told Warden Best that he would not have pulled the trigger but thought Regan was coming up with his own gun. He said:

"I knew an instant later it was Regan's glasses instead of a gun. I fired too quick."

Reppin had no word of regret for Regan, but only for himself.

VOLUNTEER FIRE UNITS READY TO OPERATE

In Carrick, Overbrook and Hays, three communities recently merged with the city, the volunteer organizations are still operating—but only socially. City departments have taken their seats on the fire wagons.

READY FOR COMEBACK

But they're ready to stage a comeback, and fight fires again, and allow Mayor McNair to balance his budget.

Mark F. Roberts, treasurer of the Allegheny County Firemen's Association, today said:

He pointed out that in Carrick, where he's been a volunteer for over 30 years, the volunteer company operated on its own for 12 years, then got $700 each year from the borough for the last seven years. Since the city took over the borough, the cost of operating a fire engine house there has reached $30,000.

FIREMEN'S TERMS

But the boys are ready to resume for light and heat, Roberts said.

He explained that in Overbrook, the city department pays $20,000 a year, and in Hays $20,000 a year.

Mayor-elect McNair announced a month ago that if his budget didn't balance he'd resort to volunteer companies in the remote city sections.

DOCTOR HUNTED AS SLASHER

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Dr. Manuel M. Doria, prominent San Diego physician, was sought today for questioning in connection with the serious stabbing in his office of Mrs. Nettie Rasmussen.

At the time the woman was attacked, apparently with a surgical instrument, the doctor was free on $500 bond on a charge of attempting to shot the woman's husband, R. I. Rasmussen.

Rasmussen told police he had wrenched the pistol from the physician last Thursday night as the doctor pulled the trigger, and the bullet went wild.

Mrs. Rasmussen had gone to the office with her 18-year-old daughter, Olive. She said she intended to urge Dr. Doria to stop his assertedly excessive drinking.

Fire Drives Family Into Zero Weather

WELLSBURG, W. Va., Dec. 27.—Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bailey and their small child were forced out into zero weather early today when fire destroyed their dwelling. Mrs. Bailey suffered burns about the head. The home belonged to C. H. Wright, a grocer, who lost $400 he had been saving to make a payment on the property.

Carpet Magnate Dies at Age of 74

RUSS EDUCATOR DIES IN FRANCE

MENTON, France, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Anatole Lunacharsky, former Commissar of Education in Soviet Russia, died here Tuesday after a long illness.

Anatole Lunacharsky once declared:

"If Christ had been alive today he would have been a Bolshevik."

Lunacharsky came from an ecclesiastic family and was educated at the Kiev University during the reign of the Czar. He was arrested many times for revolutionary activity as a student and, upon his graduation, was deported to Siberia where he spent several years.

SOVIET LEGATE RUSHES TO U. S.

MOSCOW, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Alexander Troyanovsky, Soviet Russia's first ambassador to the United States, left Moscow last night in a race against time in order to sail to America on the same boat as William C. Bullitt, United States ambassador to Russia.

Troyanovsky departed hurriedly in response to insistent urgings from Bullitt that they travel on the same ship. Bullitt is returning to Washington after making plans for an embassy in Moscow. He is to sail from Havre, December 30, on the Liner Washington.

Madame Troyanovsky and their son do not intend to sail with the envoy, but plan to remain in Paris until they sail at a later date.

"Clap-ons"—dashing little off-the-face hats and tricornes, to wear with sports, campus and street clothes. Of crystalline angora and corded crepes, as light as the mind of a collegienne on Christmas vacation. In rust shades, copper-rose, red, green. $5.00

Demure White on Sophisticated Black—snowy-white "bibs" of lingerie fabrics and hand-crocheted lace. Stiff frills of bengaline or a grosgrain ribbon. Great choux of organdie, lace-edged . . . Choice is grand in the Misses' Shop. $17.50 and $25

Fair Isle—the new thing in wool-knit sports frocks—borrowing the name from an island off the Scottish coast, and patterns and colors from the rampant Mexican influence of the moment. Two-piece frocks with gay tops and finely knitted plain skirts, in a choice of vivid colors, make a holiday special at $7.95

New Galterry Tweed Suits in colors that chant Spring, but with coats interlined so they can be worn right now. Tan shades with flecking of gold, orange, green and ivory; and haze blue flecked with indigo, chartreuse and copper. $29.75

NEW LAW tightens up on Driver's Licenses

Before you put on those 1934 license tags—remember this! The new Pennsylvania Law says you must show financial responsibility up to $11,000 in case of accidents while driving your automobile. And that's a lot of money in cash or bond deposit!

Your easiest solution is a policy in Manufacturers' Casualty Insurance Company. A non-assessable policy giving you full protection at a lower initial premium and a share in Company profits that together save you approximately 25% each year.

37 MORE CWA PROJECTS SENT FOR APPROVAL

Providing 1,500 more Civil Works jobs, 37 projects are on the way to Harrisburg today for the approval of the State Administrator. Plans cleared through the Pittsburgh CWA office to date will employ 30,000 men and women in the county when fully sanctioned and in operation.

Flooded with requisitions for workers, the CWA employment bureau has been compelled to add new quarters to its office space, it was announced today. Workers will be installed later this week on the first floor of the Marine Bank Building, at Third and Smithfield streets.

KEEP BOTH OFFICES

Applications for work will be accepted and interviews granted to applicants there, leaving the present office at 108 Smithfield street free to concentrate on the placing of employes.

Approval of a project requiring 393 laborers was received yesterday by James L. Stuart, county CWA administrator. The plan involves the grading and draining of North Ridge in North Park, a county property.

Other approvals received from the state capital totaled 20 opening jobs for about 700 workers.

10,000 PUT TO WORK

CWA employes will number more than 10,000 by the end of the week, it was said at headquarters. Job assignments are being turned out of the employment bureau rapidly, in spite of the absence of a directing head.

A. W. Motley, state director, had not returned to the office last night. Ralph W. Gibbs, named for the position, but as yet not appointed officially, is occupying a desk at the bureau until his appointment comes through. It was hinted yesterday that Gibbs will be definitely installed this week to expedite work at the office.

ARTISTS HERE AT WORK ON PROJECTS

More than a score of artists of Western Pennsylvania are sketching busily—and merrily—today. For 21 are working on designs for public buildings, given them by the regional committee and to be paid for by the federal government's public works of art project.

Most of the designs ordered so far are for Allegheny County, although Greensburg has one plan worked out. West Virginia and other sections of Western Pennsylvania are included in this territory, and may apply for work. The projects listed so far, according to John O'Connor, Jr., secretary of the regional committee, are:

A study for the decoration of the court rooms in the new Post Office and Federal Court Building; mural painting for Allegheny County Court House; study for three mural panels for the Council Chamber of the Municipal Building, Mt. Lebanon Township.

Model of Fort Duquesne; historical decorations for public schools at Ambridge, Pennsylvania; copies of paintings in the Permanent Collection of the Carnegie Institute for use in the public school system; mural decoration for the Dormont High School.

Portraits of historical personages in Western Pennsylvania; Lithographs of industrial Pittsburgh; Study for mural decorations for Greensburg public schools; series of drawings of the activities of small children; decoration for public cafeteria at Carnegie Institute.

Decoration for a room in a children's ward of a Pittsburgh hospital; a series of lithographs on educational activities for the Board of Public Education, Pittsburgh; decoration for auditorium of Crafton High School, Crafton, Pa.; two panels for Administration Building, Board of Public Education, City of Pittsburgh.

Two murals at Mifflin School, Pittsburgh; series of wood block prints on industrial or historical Pittsburgh; two panels in Administration Building, Board of Public Education, Pittsburgh; one large panel in Administration Building, Board of Public Education, Pittsburgh; a series of paintings dealing with children's stories, for the public school system.

Sculptor to Ask PWA Aid on Bridge

Frank Vittor, Pittsburgh sculptor, with a member of the County Planning Commission, will be delegated to seek a grant of $80,000 from the Public Works Administration for sculpture work to beautify the Westinghouse Bridge.

The County Commissioners so moved yesterday on learning that a special fund had been set up under the PWA for such purposes.

Counterfeit Bills Passed on Newsboys

Choosing newsboys as their victims, a man and a woman passed counterfeit one-dollar bills at Oakland street corners last night, according to a report to police. The woman was described as attractive and well dressed.

Two newsboys turned counterfeit currency over to police. Each said he had given the couple 97 cents in change after they had given him a bill in payment for a newspaper.

Men in Stolen Car Held in Gas Theft

Thomas Krumenaker, former Pittsburgh policeman, and a companion, James McPherson, arrested while draining gasoline from a parked automobile in Sewickley to fill the tank of another car they are alleged to have stolen, were in the county jail today. They were unable to furnish $2,500 bond after being held for court before Justice of the Peace Lawrence V. Gibb last night.

LAND OPTIONED FOR MINERS

Options on more than 1,900 acres of land near Scottdale, Westmoreland County, have been taken by the government in its plan to rehabilitate stranded miners and their families in the vicinity, it was disclosed today.

Clarence E. Picketts, head of the abandoned mining and industrial properties of the Federal Department of the Interior, said today that, while most of the 200 families to be placed on sites where they can raise most of their foodstuffs will eventually live in new houses, arrangements are now being made to house them in properties of the H. C. Frick Coke Company.

Louis Brandt, engineer assistant to Picketts, will visit the Frick properties this week to make an appraisal of those now being considered for the rehabilitation project.

Simultaneously with the home project the government will seek to bring new industries into the section, abandoned since the mines were closed.

CWA to Expand Symphony Here, Aid Musicians

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27. Uncle Sam expects to make the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra the first of a group of musical organizations covering a nation-wide area to play under the sponsorship and through the support of the Civil Works Administration. It is the initial step by Administrator Harry L. Hopkins to assist individual unemployed musicians.

This announcement followed a conference today at CWA headquarters between Mrs. William Maclay Hall, president of the Pittsburgh Symphony Society; Edward Specter, manager of the orchestra; Congressman Henry Ellenbogen, Administrator Hopkins and Julius F. Stone, Jr., technical adviser on music on the CWA staff.

The tentative plan calls for materially increasing the personnel of the orchestra and enlarging its scope so that it could furnish classical music at popular prices not only in Pittsburgh and the suburbs, but in towns and cities over a wide area in the tri-state territory.

Concerts would be given alternately in Pittsburgh and in the outside region, extending as far east as Harrisburg and westward to Columbus and into West Virginia, probably to Charleston.

Assistance through the CWA would in no wise conflict with the series of concerts now provided through the support of the people of Pittsburgh. Under the system of government aid to assist musicians the CWA concerts would be conducted independently of the Sunday series which has now become a tradition with the symphony Society in Pittsburgh.

PITT JOB BEGUN DESPITE COLD

Braving near-zero cold, 150 workmen today began the task of completing the University of Pittsburgh's Cathedral of Learning under the CWA.

Carpenters, electricians, plumbers, riggers and other skilled workers, their fingers numbed, undertook the task of closing the lower floors of the structure.

Additional men will be put on from day to day. By the end of this week it is expected 800 will be employed.

Chancellor John G. Bowman said the tower cannot be completed until more stone and other supplies have been obtained.

DIVORCE GIVEN ON WIFE'S PLEA

Margaret Zeidman, 7008 Hermitage street, was granted a divorce by Judge James H. Gray yesterday from Nathan Zeidman, Steubenville. The wife said her husband gave more time to drinking with "boy friends" than he did to business.

Mrs. Zeidman testified:

"His mother gave us a store for our wedding present and instead of attending to business and staying in the store, he would go out at 3 in the afternoon and come home at 2 and 3 in the morning. He liked to go out with his drinking boy friends."

Mrs. Zeidman charged cruel and barbarous treatment and indignities. They were married December 27, 1931.

Confessed Slayer Gets Death Penalty

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—A jury of seven men and five women today convicted Edward Anderson, 25, confessed slayer of Hewlett Tarr during a theater holdup, of first degree murder. As no recommendation for leniency was made, the death penalty is mandatory.

Wife Finds Mate, 'Other Woman' Slain

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—The bodies of Charles Scofield, 30, and Mrs. Ileen Redmond, 24, were found in Scofield's apartment last night by his wife and police said it was a case of murder and suicide.

Detectives said Scofield shot Mrs. Redmond and himself.

BELGIUM JOINS FRANCE IN ARMS

PARIS, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Common defensive measures for France and Belgium to guard against a repetition of the German attack in 1914 were worked out today at a conference between Edouard Daladier, French minister of War, and Paul Hymans, Belgian foreign minister.

Belgium seeks to develop its own defensive system in co-operation with the French although remaining independent of that country.

Hymans asked for information on France's plans to fortify the eastern frontier, as announced by Daladier December 19.

Under this program, the "iron ring" of fortifications would be extended along the German frontier for enough to include Belgium's front.

For three years workers have been building a defense chain in Eastern France, based on a trench and casemate system. French officials have expressed concern over the strength of Belgian defenses.

N. Y. BANK GETS CITY AID BONDS

A premium of $23,506 offered by the Chemical Bank and Trust Company of New York today obtained for it the $1,400,000 issue of City Work Relief bonds. The next highest bidder was the Union Trust Company, which offered a premium of $22,401.

The $1,400,000 issue, which bears interest of 4½ per cent per year and is redeemable in 20 years, is the last of the two million dollar work relief bonds authorized. Of the total $700,000 is to be devoted to the city's share in Civil Works Administration projects in the city and the remainder will be allocated to several projects on which no federal aid will be received.

SIAM'S RULERS TO VISIT U. S.

BANGKOK, Siam, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—The King and Queen of Siam are expected to return to the United States shortly and reliable quarters said today they have been invited as White House guests of the President and Mrs. Roosevelt.

King Prajadhipok, it was said, will take her majesty and the royal party aboard a specially chartered East Asiatic liner directly to Europe and then on to America.

The forthcoming royal visit to the United States is necessitated by King Prajadhipok's eye trouble. When he reaches the United States it will have been about three years after a former operation undergone at Purchase, N. Y., at which time a cataract was removed.

Internal affairs in Siam, since the recently suppressed rebellion are tending definitely toward government support. Parliament today gave a unanimous vote of confidence to the cabinet of Premier Phryabahol.

New York Business Better, Whalen Says

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—(INS.)—Tremendous improvement has occurred in business conditions in New York City during recent weeks, Grover C. Whalen, NRA administrator for New York, today told President Roosevelt.

Whalen attributed this improvement to co-ordination of the administration's recovery program.

CREDIT GROUP PLANS STUDY

Community credit problems and policies will be studied in January by the Retail Credit Men's Association of which David H. Goldman is president, it was announced here.

A community retail policy is being inaugurated in each city throughout the country.

Council Allows CWA Check on Activities

City Council has given permission to D. D. Moreford, supervisor of city work under the Civil Works Administration, to use his employes in gathering facts in various city departments for a history of civic activity. Four "white-collar" employes under Moreford are now available for this work.

Show Planned at Father-Son Dinner

A novelty show will be presented in connection with the Chamber of Commerce's annual father and son banquet tomorrow night. Entertainment will include two screen comedies and an exhibition of magic. Burtin H. Mustin is chairman of the committee.

County's Buffalo, Sled Bargains Popular

The county has started out on its after-Christmas bargain sales with receipt of a check for two buffaloes and new low price tags for its toboggans.

The checks, $300 for the delivery of two buffaloes to Deer farm, Indiana County, showed up in yesterday's mail. And Commissioner C. C. McGovern immediately announced he was ready to go out to South Park, crate them, and take them up. He added:

"We were ready to corral those buffaloes last week, but, of course, I wanted to be with my family over Christmas."

Bringing the matter of the 70 county toboggans again to the attention of the Commissioners, Director of Supplies Ray Sprigle said the snow and newspaper publicity had clogged his telephone with requests for the sleds. He wanted a price.

The Commissioners set it at $5 per large toboggan, and $3.75 per small. It's a bargain. The large ones cost $9.50 new.

HOWARDS
LOWER CLEANING PRICES
For the People of Pittsburgh

We told you cleaning prices were too high in this city. We asked you to join us in a protest of these unfair, unjust prices. TOGETHER WE HAVE WON.

With many signed protests from Pittsburgh our attorney and our representative explained conditions to the folks at Washington—and of course the reasonableness, the fairness of your and our claim was seen: AGAIN HOWARDS HAS SAVED THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS for Pittsburgh. Pardon us if we say "It DOES PAY to patronize Howards."

HOWARDS WINS PRICE CUT

FAIRNESS TRIUMPHS

Howards has always, and will always, try to merit your support. Howards recent public stand on cleaning prices is additional proof of Howards fairness of purpose, and Howards desire to really serve. Howards is your protection against high prices.

A MUTUAL VICTORY

Our mutual victory is won but at considerable cost to us though Pittsburgh will be saved thousands by Howards efforts. You have seen what Howards has done for Pittsburgh. Now try Howards finer, smarter, quality cleaning. Support the firm that fights for you.

RECIPES HELP IN NEW YEAR HOSPITALITY

Keeping open house for your friends on New Year's Day is a grand way to start the year off with a spirit of real congeniality, Prudence Penny believes. No need to go into elaborate preparations for such an open house, she insists, for it's much better to retain an air of informality by means of simple foods.

A cup of tea and some small cookies on hand for the visitors will fill the bill. Or if you want something a little more, homemade candies, such as apricot candies, salted nuts or chocolate creams, published in today's prize list, would be delicious.

And speaking of candies, there have been a number of requests made for additional reliable candy recipes. Send yours in with any other recipes you may favor to Prudence Penny, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. Prizes are given daily for the best recipes received—one $5 prize and 10 $1 prizes.

No recipes will be returned.

Five Dollar Prize Winners

JANE LEONARD
107 Park Road, Rosslyn Farms, Carnegie.
TIMBANT FISH

Two and one-half pounds halibut.
One quart milk.
One-half pound butter.
Four eggs.
One-half small loaf bread.
One-half onion.
Sprig parsley.

Steam fish until tender, pick apart.

Put milk, onion and parsley in double boiler; when scalded remove onion and parsley, then add three tablespoons corn starch and cook until it thickens, then add one-quarter pound butter and season highly, eggs well beaten and cook three minutes.

Melt other one-quarter pound butter and brown slightly and add bread crumbs. Take layer of sauce, then fish, and alternate until baking dish is full. Cover with crumbs and bake in moderate oven about one-half hour.

Ten $1 Prize Winners

MRS. LOTTIE A. BELL,
736 Excelsior street.
APRICOT CANDY

Three-quarter cup dried apricots.
Three-quarter cup cocoanut.
One-half cup nuts.
One tablespoon lemon juice.
One-half teaspoon grated lemon rind.
One teaspoon grated orange rind.
Powdered sugar.

Combine apricots, cocoanut, and nuts. Put through food chopper using medium knife. Add rinds and juice. Knead thoroughly. Turn onto lightly sugared board. Roll in sheet one-fourth inch thick, and cut in squares and roll in powdered sugar. It is delicious used for stuffing dates, or combining with fondant.

MARGARET F. BAITY,
2447 Braddock avenue, Swissvale
MOCK TURTLE SOUP

One marrow soup bone.
One-half teaspoon cinnamon.
One-fourth cloves.
One teaspoon celery salt.

Tie cinnamon, clove, celery salt in cloth with long piece of cord to lift out of kettle. When done fry bacon and lift out into sieve brown onions in bacon fat. Put bacon, onions and one can tomatoes in sieve, have enough stock to let the tomatoes, bacon, onions cook into stock, to flavor stock, lift ingredients out of sive and spices also, season to taste, thicken with flour. Cook about two hours.

MRS. J. H. INDERWISH
222 Lavina Avenue.
CHOCOLATE POP CORN BALLS.

One and one-half cups sugar.
Two-thirds cup water.
One-third cup light corn syrup.
One-third cup molasses.
Three tablespoons butter.
Three squares unsweetened chocolate, melted.
Four quarts pop corn, warmed and salted.

Combine sugar, water and corn syrup. Place over low flame and stir constantly until sugar is dissolved and mixture boils, washing down sides of pan occasionally with wet cloth. Cover and boil three or four minutes. Uncover and cook without stirring until a small amount of syrup forms a hard ball in cold water. Add molasses and butter, and continue cooking, stirring constantly, until a small ball of syrup becomes brittle in cold water. Remove from fire. When bubbling ceases, add chocolate and vanilla and blend. Pour over pop corn and mix well. Roll lightly with buttered hands into 2 inch balls. This makes 20 pop corn balls.

MISS BEATRICE HELY,
6453 Aurelia Street.
DOUBLE BOILER BOSTON BROWN BREAD

One cup flour.
One cup corn meal.
One-half teaspoon soda.
One cup graham or whole wheat flour.
Three teaspoons baking powder.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One and three-fourths cups sweet milk.
Three-fourth cup molasses.

Method: Sift dry ingredients into a bowl, add milk and mix well. Lastly beat in the molasses, pour into the well-greased upper part of double boiler and steam for 3½ hours. Be ure to keep plenty of boiling water in lower part of boiler.

MRS. MARY MARCH,
Library.
HUNGARIAN CAKE

Twelve eggs.
Twelve tablespoons bread crumbs.
Twelve tablespoons ground nuts.
12 tablespoons sugar.
One tablespoon vanilla.

Beat yolks until light, add sugar and beat, add nuts and bread crums, beat until light and fluffy, beat whites of egg dry and fold in mixture. Bake 30 minutes.

ICEING:

One box powdered sugar.
Two tablespoons cocoa.
Vanilla to suit taste.
Two tablespoons butter.
Two tablespoons black coffee.

Mix sugar, cocoa and butter with coffee, add vanilla to suit taste, make iceing stiff enough to spread on cake. Sprinkle nuts on top.

MYRTLE A. DE HOVEN
156 S. Main Street, Washington.
UPSIDE DOWN MEAT PIE

One pound meat (left over steak, veal or pork).
Three medium-sized potatoes.
One small can peas.
One green pepper.
One small onion.
One cup tomato soup.

Brown meat and potatoes together in butter until tender, thicken slightly with flour; add peas, chopped pepper and chopped onion; pour in tomato soup; place in baking dish and cover with biscuit dough; bake until dough is down and brown; remove and turn upside down on large meat platter.

MRS. LEONARD PRINGLE,
609 Ivy street.
SALTED NUTS

Select raw peanuts or fresh almonds, walnuts, or pecans. Remove skins from the almonds by pouring boiling water over and allowing them to stand from two to three minutes or until skin is loosened.

Place nuts in a wire basket and lower it into deep fat heated to 390 degrees Fahrenheit (bread browns in 40 seconds). Fry until delicately browned, remove, drain on paper and sprinkle generously with salt.

ELIZABETH J. WARD
1709 Crafton Boulevard, Crafton.
APRICOT ICE CREAM IN MERINGUE GLACEES

Ice cream:
One pint milk.
Two tablespoons flour.
Two tablespoons water.
One cup sugar.
Two egg yolks.
One cup heavy cream.
One can apricott pulp.

Mix flour and water. To this mixture add milk, sugar and egg yolks. Cook in double boiler until substance is thick. Remove from stove, add heavy cream and apricot pulp and freeze.

Meringue glacees:
Four egg whites.
One-half teaspoon vanilla.
One and one-fourth cups powdered sugar or 1 cup fine granulated sugar.

Beat egg whites until stiff. Add gradually two-thirds of sugar and continue beating until mixture will hold its shape. Add flavoring. Fold in remaining sugar. Shape meringue glacees mixture with a spoon in rounds the size of a cookie. Bake 50 minutes in very slow oven. Separate from paper. Remove soft part with spoon and place meringues in oven to dry. Fill meringue glacees with apricot ice cream. Garnish with whipped cream forced through pastry bag and tube.

MRS. P. J. COULTER,
18 Woodside road, Bryn Mawr, Wilkinsburg.
BRAN HEALTH COOKIES
(Children)

One cup shortening.
Two cups brown sugar.
Two eggs.
Two cups flour.
One teaspoon soda.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One-half cup cocoa.
Two cups bran.

Cream shortening and sugar well, add eggs and beat again. Sift flour three times when salt, cocoa and soda and add with the bran and vanilla to the first mixture. Shape in a long roll. Chill in refrigerator for two hours, then slice as thin as possible and bake in hot oven.

MISS MARIE PETERS,
915 McKean avenue, Charleroi.
CHOCOLATE CREAMS

Beat the whites of two eggs to a stiff froth. Gradually beat into this two cups of confectioner's sugar. If the eggs are large, it may take a little more sugar. Flavor with one-half teaspoon vanilla, and work well. Now roll into little balls and drop on a slightly buttered platter. Let the balls stand for an hour or more. Shave five ounces of unsweetened chocolate and put into a small bowl; place on the fire in a saucepan containing boiling water. When the chocolate is melted, take the saucepan to the table and drop the creams into the chocolate one at a time, taking them out with a fork and dropping them gently on the buttered dish. It will take half an hour or more to harden the chocolate.

Infantile Paralysis Vaccine Being Developed

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—(INS.)—Development of a vaccine by which it may be possible to immunize human beings against infantile paralysis has been disclosed by the Bureau of Laboratories of the City Health Department.

The immunizing agent, it was stated, is being developed under the direction of Dr. W. H. Park, director of laboratories, who said he was working "along the same lines as Pasteur—to find a serum which it will not be dangerous to administer."

Dr. Park warned against too much emphasis being placed on results of his experiments with the vaccine, but said that he had succeeded in immunizing monkeys and other animals for varying periods.

The serum consists of dead virus of the disease, treated with formaldehyde which kills the organism but leaves the immunizing properties undisturbed.

Patricia Pitt

When the debs woke up late yesterday morning to find a Christmas-card world, with holiday coverings of snow on everything and the air swirling with flakes, they, like their elders, felt revivified, and ready for a week fuller even of entertainments than the one just past!

And such holiday weather puts us all in the mood for more holiday decorations. The entertainments yesterday were gay with Christmas greens and spring flowers, too, a gesture to spring.

At Virginia Evans' debut dance last night—her mother, Mrs. T. Raymond Evans, entertained in the Pittsburgh Golf Club—there was something new in the way of debutante Christmas decorations.

Christmas Tree Ablaze With Lights Background

The receiving line had as a background a huge Christmas tree, aglitter with ornaments and tinsel and ablaze with a myriad of colored lights. At several of the parties there have been Christmas trees, but not huge ones, nor ones decorated like those "at home."

The mantelpieces of the club were banked with white flowers with green for background and Christmas greens decorated every possible view.

Miniature reindeer — something new at deb parties this winter— were used in decorating, too. And in the dining room, the tables were covered with blue cloths and centered with pink bouvardia.

Attractive Flower Muff Carried by Debutante

The debutante carried one of the most attractive flower muffs I've seen this season—it was of white tulle, covered with tiny pink rosebuds. Her gown was of white net with fluting at the hemline and about the neck. With her black hair and ivory skin, white was notably becoming. Her sister, Mrs. Berdan, chose a gown of turquoise blue crepe. Mrs. Evans appeared in a wine-red satin gown, and had a corsage of gardenias.

Christmas decorations again were used. Grace chose a snapdragon yellow crepe gown, draped high in front, and cut in a deep V in back, and her cousin appeared in a turquoise blue crepe gown.

Cousin Gives Dinner For Deb at Club

There was another dinner last night for a debutante—a dinner-dance—which Mary Colwell Jennings gave in the Allegheny Country Club for her young cousin, Katharine MacConnell, debutante daughter of the junior Thomas MacConnells.

Although no definite entertainment for debutante Katharine is being called a debut, the entertainment last night was surely brilliant enough for any girl's coming out party.

This holiday season the debs are favoring white and pastels more than they did earlier in the season. Katharine looked charming in a lustrous white satin gown having a slight train. The bodice was draped high in front, and cut low in back. Both Collie, the deb's tall, blonde cousin, and Collie's mother, Mrs. Richard G. Jennings, chose black gowns.

Frances Pinkney Gott Being Presented Today

Today, as every day in the holidays should be, is again a day of many debuts.

First of all—Frances Pinkney Gott will be presented at a tea-dance her parents, the Estep T. Gotts, will give in the Edgeworth Club—the hours are from 4 to 6 o'clock.

Peggy Leiper, Frances Frampton and Susan Isabel Gott are the deb's aides, and Mrs. Frank R. Dravo, Mrs. L. Hays Gott, Mrs. Welford Tyler and Mrs. Byron E. Rhoads are assisting the hostess.

The A. K. Olivers will present their daughter Margaretta at a dinner in the family home tonight. And later will come a ball which the J. Frank Drakes will give in the Fox Chapel Golf Club to present their daughter, Constance.

Holidays Lavish With Betrothal News, Too

The holiday season has not only been lavish with parties and gifts and snow (a little belated), but with betrothal news as well.

J. Dorothy Meyer is wearing an engagement ring. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Meyer, of Shady avenue, announced her engagement to W. Kenneth Squires, son of Mr. and Mrs. Burton R. Squires, of Wayne road, Christmas Eve. No date has been set for the wedding as yet.

Miss Meyer is a graduate of Winchester and National Park, and her finance went to Shady Side and is a Colgate University man.

Helen M. Leslie Married to R. J. Book

Mr. and Mrs. Emery E. Leslie, of Johnston avenue, Hazelwood, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Helen Leslie, to Ralph James Book, of Milwaukee, Wis., which was solemnized Saturday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the manse of the Presbyterian Church, Homer City, Pa. Officiating was the bride's uncle, the Rev. Harry C. Prugh.

The bride wore a gown of aquamarine velvet with a corsage of gardenias. Mrs. Merle R. Leslie, as her sister-in-law's matron of honor, wore black velvet. Dr. Merle R. Leslie was the best man.

The bride is a graduate of the University of Pittsburgh and the bridegroom is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin. Mr. and Mrs. Book will make their home in Milwaukee.

Mary L. McAlarney, R. A. Haddock III, Engaged

Announcement is being made in Pittsburgh of the engagement of Miss Mary Louise McAlarney to Rollins A. Haddock III, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rollins A. Haddock, Jr., of South Graham street. The betrothal was made known by Miss McAlarney's father, James R. McAlarney, of Barnesboro, Pa., on Christmas eve.

Miss McAlarney is a house guest during the week-end of Mrs. Edward H. Hegmann, of East Beau street, Washington, Pa., sister of her fiance. Mr. Haddock is a member of Pittsburgh Chapter of Temple University Alumni and a member of Delta Sigma Pi. He attended Massanutten Military Academy, after which he took post graduate work at the University School, Howe street, East End.

Freda Lillian Cowan Weds Morris Kimmelman

Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Cowan, of Centennial street, McKeesport, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Freda Lillian Cowan, to Morris Kimmelman, son of Bernard Kimmelman, of Grandview avenue, McKeesport, which took place Saturday evening. Officiating was Rabbi B. A. Lichter in his study in the Temple B'Nai Israel.

Ellis School Alumnae Luncheon on Saturday

The annual Christmas luncheon of the Ellis School Alumnae Association will be held Saturday afternoon at 12:30 o'clock in the College Club, North Craig street.

Following the luncheon will be an election of officers for 1934. Miss Betty Daugherty is receiving reservations.

New Years Eve Concert, Dance at Wildwood Club

Wildwood Country Club will celebrate New Years Eve with a concert from 10 to 12 o'clock and a dance from midnight to 4 o'clock, with breakfast at 2.

Polo Player Engaged To Park Avenue Girl

A member of the Pittsburgh and Rolling Rock clubs and a noted polo player is engaged. He is Edward Kenneth Jenkins, son of the Edward E. Jenkinses, of Pittsburgh and Leeton Hill, Warrenton, Va.

Mrs. Samuel Willets, of Park avenue, New York, is announcing the engagement of her daughter, Betty Willets, to Mr. Jenkins. They will be married this summer, it is planned, when Mr. Jenkins expects to receive an appointment to the United States diplomatic service, for which he is now studying.

He prepared at Groton and is a graduate of Harvard, class of 1931. At Harvard he was a member of the Hasty Pudding [illegible] Spee club.

Betty is attending Miss [illegible] School. She's a member of an old Long Island family, and is a descendant of Lord Westbury, the first white man to receive a grant [illegible]. She was an usher at the wedding this past summer of his cousin, Clara Dorothea Jenkins, to Edwin Rhea.

Hibernian Auxiliary Card Party Saturday

[illegible] Ladies [illegible] Hibernians will hold a card party in Oppenheim Collins auditorium Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Mrs. Mary Toal is chairman.

Yule Trees Background For Christmas Bride

A holiday-week bride will have Christmas trees and Christmas decorations for the background of her wedding tonight, and she will most surely fulfill the mandate of wearing something old, in keeping with that old behest to brides to wear "something old, and something new; something borrowed and something blue."

She will wear the wedding gown of the mother of two of her bridesmaids, Mrs. J. Paull Fife, will carry a prayer book given to her own mother by a bishop at her wedding, and a necklace with a diamond pendant, once worn by European royalty, now an heirloom in the bridegroom's family.

The bride will be charming Katherine Duvall James, daughter of the Henry Duvall Jameses, of Locust street, Edgewood, and the bridegroom, Gordon Ritchie, Jr., son of the Gordon Ritchies, of West Harwich, Mass.

The Rev. Dr. William Porkess, of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, Wilkinsburg, will officiate at the wedding, to take place tonight at 8 o'clock in the James home.

Smilax will entwine the stairway, down which the bride will come. And the prie dieu will be placed in the living room before two Christmas trees.

The wedding gown is of ivory satin having a train, trimming of Duchess lace and sleeves puffed to the elbow. She will wear a veil of ivory tulle cascading from a cape of the lace and will carry her mother's prayer book, given to her mother when she was a bride by Bishop David L. Ferris, now bishop of the Episcopalian diocese of Rochester, N. Y. The prayer book will have a marker of gardenias and lilies of the valley.

Her matron of honor, Mrs. Paul Autenreith, will wear a gown of coral-pink mossy crepe with a draped neckline, and the bridesmaids, her sister Virginia Sartwell James, Margaretta and Mary Elizabeth Fife, will wear similar gowns of seafoam green mossy crepe. They'll carry gladiolas to match the coral-pink of the matron of honor's gown.

The bride's mother will wear orchid crystelle velvet and a corsage of orchids.

L. Val Hood, of Washington, Pa., will be best man, and Curtis James, Robert Scott Tully and L. Hamilton Phillips will be ushers. A wedding dinner will follow the ceremony.

Mr. Ritchie and his bride will go to Miami and St. Petersburg, Fla., for their wedding trip. In St. Petersburg they'll visit Mr. Ritchie's parents, who are spending the winter there. Because of ill health they were unable to attend the wedding.

Eleanor G. Banderoff To Wed Leo Greenberg

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Banderoff, of Bedford avenue, announce the betrothal of their daughter, Miss Eleanor G. Banderoff, to Leo Greenberg, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Greenberg, of McKees Rocks. Miss Banderoff has chosen March 11, 1934, as the date for her marriage. There was a reception on Christmas Eve in the Banderoff home in honor of their daughter and her fiance.

Ella Greenfield Guest Of Elka Amdursky

Miss Ella Greenfield, of Bentlyville, is the house guest of Miss Elka Amdursky, of the East End.

Mrs. T. E. Cottman Betrothed to Englishman

This holiday time an engagement has been announced of two members of the fashionable set, who will be married January 3 in the New York apartment of Mrs. Harry Darlington.

Stephen Bennett, of Boston, has announced the engagement of his daughter, Mrs. Thomas E. Cottman, to Col. Cyril Tate O'Callaghan, of London. Mrs. Cottman is the widow of Thomas E. Cottman, of Baltimore. She is a granddaughter of the late Harry Darlingtons, of Pittsburgh.

Polish Intercollegiate Ends Convention Friday

The Polish Intercollegiate dance will be held at 9 o'clock Friday night in the Fort Pitt Hotel closing the convention of the Polish Students Association of America which is being held today tomorrow and Friday in the Hotel. Anatole Club to Hold Frolic New Year's Eve

The Anatole Club will have a New Year's Eve frolic Sunday night at the Fort Pitt Hotel, beginning at midnight. From 11 to 12 o'clock there will be a concert.

School Set Makes Most Of Its Fortnight of Rest From Classes

While their older brothers and sisters are dining and dancing at the many holiday debutante entertainments, the school set with a precious fortnight of vacation is not sitting home at night.

The school girls and boys are having a minor debutante season, and when their deb days come along in a year or two or three, they'll be ready for the deb season.

Young Henrietta Craig, a Sewickley Academy girl, was honor guest at a school set dance last night, which her parents, the Albert Burchfield Craigs, of Sewickly, gave in the Edgeworth Club.

This evening there'll be another entertainment for the school set. The Morgan B. Schillers will entertain in their Sewickley Heights home, Brandywine Farm, in honor of their daughter, Peggy, home from the Greenwood School in Maryland.

Jacqueline Club Giving Dance On Friday

The Jacqueline Club of St. Francis Xavier Church is sponsoring a Christmas dance and card party to aid the church on Friday evening in the School auditorium.

Miss Ruth Stimmler is general chairman, assisted by Miss Margaret Hallstein, Miss Anna Marie Haney, Miss Rita Corcoran, Miss Mildred Hytha, Miss Alice Quinn, Miss Marie Inserra, Miss Mildred Slopan, Miss Marion Daley, Miss Cecelia Lucey, Miss Margaret Sullican and Miss Agnes Haney.

Mr. and Mrs. Forest A. Foraker, of Macon avenue, have announced the marriage of their daughter, Miss Elaine Kathryn Foraker, to Edward Harris Kemp, Jr., son of Mrs. Edward Harris Kemp, of Raleigh, N. C., on Saturday.

The bride is a graduate of the University of Pittsburgh and a member of Kappa Alpha Theta, and the bridegroom is a graduate of Wake Forest College, North Carolina, and he is at present a fellow at Clark University. Mr. and Mrs. Kemp will reside in Worcester, Mass.

Miss Elsie Czukerman's Betrothal Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Czukerman, of East Pittsburgh, announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Elsie Czukerman, to Alexander Solomon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Salomon, of Turtle Creek. The formal announcement was made at a family dinner party Thursday night.

University Students Of Whitaker Plan Dance

Whitaker University students will give a Christmas ball December 28, from 9 to 1 o'clock, in the Elks' Temple, Homestead, with Miss Alice Dublin as general chairman.

State College, Pa., Girl, Pittsburgh Man to Wed

Dr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Ritenour, of State College, Pa., announce the engagement of their daughter, Anne Ritenour, to Frank M. Harbison, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Harbison, of Dithridge street.

The wedding, to be simple, will take place early in the spring at the Nittany Lion Inn, State College. Because of the recent death of the bride's grandfather, Dr. John M. Richmond, she will have no attendants.

Mr. Harbison is a member of the Phi Kappa Sigma fraternity at Penn State. The bride-elect is a graduate of Pennsylvania College for Women.

Miss Zitzmann Bride of Teacher

At a quiet wedding in her home in Olympia street, Duquesne Heights, Miss Claudia Zitzmann became the bride of Nelson T. Miller on Friday evening. The bride is a daughter of B. C. Zitzmann.

Officiating was the Rev. Adolf Ebert, former pastor of the Zion Evangelical Church, Mt. Washington. There was a wedding dinner later.

The bride's father is editor of the Mt. Washington News, and the bridegroom is a member of the faculty of Allegheny High School.

Anglo-American Colony Returns To '400'

By BARONESS ELIZABETH WRANGEL

Universal Service Special Cable.

PARIS.—While New York society has long outgrown its modest "400," the Anglo-American colony here has returned to it. The Parisian Ward McAllister is the Hon. Mrs. Adrian Holman, otherwise known as Ann, whose official position as daughter of Lord Tyrrell, British ambassador, has given her power to say who's who.

Among those honored by her accolade are Mr. and Mrs. Welles Bosworth, Prince Christopher of Greece, Princess Antoine Bibesco, Mr. and Mrs. John R. Drexel, Senora Porfirio Diaz and Lady Deterding whose pearls, according to the French humorist, Maryse Choisy, are attracting almost as much attention as she is.

Also among the elect are the American-born Princess de Faucigny Lucinge, James Hazen Hyde, Lady Mendl, who is the former Elsie Dewolfe, of New York; the Duchess de Talleyrand, formerly Anna Gould; Mme. Paul Dupuy, wealthy American owner of the Petit Parisien, France's most powerful newspaper, and, among the eligible French, Jean Borotra, the tennis star.

While acknowledging the Hon. Mrs. Holman's eminence, gossips point out that there is no mention at her parties of the two smartest American hostesses here, Mrs. Constance Crowninshield Coolidge, of Boston, and Mrs. Honore Palmer, of Chicago, without mentioning Ganna Walska, Mrs. Lehr and Roussedana Sert, sister of the Mdivani brothers.

CAN SPRING BE FAR BEHIND?

By PRUNELLA WOOD

An enchanting formal frock for North or South is sketched right. It is aquamarine crepe trimmed quaintly with rose pleatings of self-material. Note how the train is carried gracefully away from the side seam split which is camouflaged with a fan of the pleating. The cape is along the lines of the Vionnet flung-back cowl which arrived with the early season.

ALL IS NOT tinsel in the fashion scheme, in spite of the popularity of lame, the perennial American passion. Suddenly it is the dusty pastels, unrelieved by any contrasting tint or trim, that have come to the fore—a phenomenon that overtakes styles on the dot of late December every year.

It's a swell idea, too, for of all the colors there are, none is as becoming to both the winter tanned or snow bleached complexion as a real chalky pastel.

* * *

THE TWO prime favorites are aquamarine and rose quartz, and nothing is going to put them in a back seat, but there is a very likely newcomer this year in an off-tangerine shade, aptly yclept "melon."

It is a honey for blonde or brunette, one of those subtle colors that do not require any special make-up tricks to make them becoming, being by nature one of the shades that clears the skin.

The chosen green pastel for this year is a bit more like lettuce than chartreuse, and it is another tint that looks bilious on few women.

* * *

THESE PASTELS are naturals for costume jewelry of the more delicate sort, looking good enough to eat when worn with crystals, rose quartz, jade, pearls, and so on. The woman who chooses one of the most becoming shade, and sets it off with hat and shoes that match her fur coat, assembles a joyous costume to display on a dark, dirty winter day. As a style, it is a cheery relief, like the first spring flowers, after two months of tweeds and other severe, warm tailored outfits.

Farmer, 33 Children Homeless After Slide

MERANO, Italy, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—A farmer and his 33 children were deprived of a roof here when the rock side of a mountain split in two and wrecked their five-centuries-old home.

The house had served many generations of the Gamper family before Leonardo, the last owner, fell heir to it. All of his children, 19, by his first wife and 14 by his second, were born there.

State Considers Slow Traffic By-Way Plan

The State Highway Department is studying the plan of A. W. Robertson, chairman of the board of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, who proposes by-ways on two-lane highways to permit slow traffic to pull in and allow fast-moving traffic to pass.

Sam S. Lewis, secretary of highways, in a letter to the Chamber of Commerce announced his department was experimenting with a similar plan.

Minister to Speak On 'Life of Paul'

The Rev. Dr. S. S. Lappin, pastor of the Central Christian Church, will be the speaker at the Friday noon lecture period at the Downtown Y. M. C. A. His subject will be "The Life of Paul."

BUICK PRICES ANNOUNCED

The price range of the new 1934 Buick automobiles with their knee action wheels was announced today. The 119-inch wheel base ranges from $1,045 to $1,165; the 128-inch base from $1,305 to $1,575 and the 136-inch base from $1,745 to $2,055.

President Harlow H. Curtice said these prices represent either no increase over 1933 list or only minor increases, the greatest increase being seven and one-half per cent, which is well below the average increase of about 15 per cent of the industry.

Grandchildren Lead Tribute to Wilson

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Two grandchildren of Woodrow Wilson—Francis B. Sayre, Jr., and Eleanor Sayre—will take part in the observance tomorrow of the War President's birthday.

They will go to Washington cathedral, with Roland S. Morris, president of the Woodrow Wilson Foundation, and lay a wreath on their grandfather's tomb.

Yule Singer Injured In Auto Crash Dies

BUTLER, Pa., Dec. 27.—James A. Bickel, 19, of Parkers Landing, died here today from a fractured skull, suffered Sunday night when a car skidded down an embankment. He was en route to sing Christmas carols at the time of the accident.

Two Affairs Listed by Alliance

Two evening affairs are scheduled by the Alliance Francaise for January. The first of these is a meeting in the Twentieth Century Club on the sixteenth, with Emile Majerus as speaker.

He will lecture on "Some Portraits of the Bonaparte Family." On the twenty-fourth of the same month Sidney Prentice will address a meeting in the College Club, illustrating his talk on Marie Bashkirtseff with slides.

Mr. Prentice has made an exhaustive study of Marie's diary, which throws much light on events of her time.

400 Attend Vets' Chirstmas Party

Interesting Events Listed On January Program of Woman's City Club

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

All sorts of especially inviting activities have been planned for January by the Woman's City Club, the first of these being an informal afternoon of bridge on the sixth. In addition to the regular monthly drama meeting on the 23rd, Mrs. George Phelps Rose has arranged a meeting for discussion of Broadway successes and a group reading on the 9th.

Elmer Kenyon, of Carnegie Tech drama school, will address the meeting. The buffet supper on the 11th will be followed by a talk which Mrs. Taylor Allderdice will give and will illustrate with slides showing pictures from the International Art Exhibit and the permanent exhibit at Carnegie Institute.

On the thirteenth there's a book review luncheon, the review to be given by Frederick Way, Jr., author of "The Log of the Betsy Ann." Mrs. Franklin Bell is arranging the Sunday musicale for the fourteenth when the program will be presented by Margaret S. Klingelhofer, contralto; Milton Lomask, first violinist of the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra, and Miss Hulda Lefridge, accompanist.

A current events luncheon is being planned by Mrs. Clark Hammond and Mrs. E. J. Searles for the twenty-fourth of the month and on the twenty-seventh comes the regular club luncheon. On this occasion Miss May Beegle will present Mrs. A. B. Sharp, who will speak on "Parades," many of which she saw during a year's residence in France and Italy.

The final event is the musical luncheon on the thirty-first at which Miss Marianne Genet will present a program of her Oriental compositions. Edward Dunbar and Charlotte Shallenberger Mulloy will do an Arabian caravan suite in costume and Miss Sara Jamison Logan will also appear on the program.

Joyce, Goff On Hospital Program

The Ladies' Hospital Aid Society announces an addition to its list of entertainers for the annual linen ingathering tomorrow. Teddy Joyce and Jerry Goff will present songs, dances and instrumental music. The ingathering is held annually for the benefit of the Montefiore Hospital and is under auspices of the sewing committee of which Mrs. Louis Goldman is chairman. It's to take place in the Y. M. and W. H. A.

The program will also include dances in solo and chorus by children under the direction of Rose Zieder and Gene Kelly.

Official of Lumber Firm Dies in Office

Harry E. Simon, 55, partner in the M. Simon's Sons Lumber Company at 127 Anderson street, North Side, died suddenly today in his office from a heart attack.

Simon, unmarried, lived with his sister, Mrs. Clara Oetting. He also leaves a brother, Charles, with whom he long has been in business, and another sister, Mrs. Emma Schmitt.

Viewing the New

* * *

On with the kaleidoscopic array of after-Christmas come-and-get-its! Today we start off with some suggestions for that New Year's party you're having at home. You will want something like this . . .

New appetizers—hors d'oeuvres and canapes which one kindly store is going to show you how to make. Thursday and Friday afternoons is the time when you can rally 'round a newly appointed bar and watch a skilled chef make every little gimcrack you could want to serve. No charge for being shown, of course!

* * *

And from this we progress to one of the "makings" of really tasty bites (in omelettes for breakfast as well as canapes for late hours) . . .

Smithfield Ham . . . that royal ham-of-hams whose flavor is unrivalled! Too many of us heretofore have been ruined for true ham eating by having used too much of this highly-flavored meat. And here's the chance to learn the "ropes" in regard to it. For there's a kindly gentleman who is going to lecture all about Smithfield Ham . . . and hand out little booklets on it showing its proper use, and whatnot. Just dash right up to him . . . clutch his lapel . . . and pour your ham-ish questions into his willing ear!

* * *

But—lest we overlook the morning-after-the-night-before (in all our zeal for extensive New Year's preparations let us assure you that there is plenty of tomato juice in which to drown erstwhile sorrows!

Made by Crosse and Blackwell, no less, and appearing in great sturdy jars . . . 6 quarts for $1.35 (which is enough to leave the most unbelieving ears limp with amazement!)

* * *

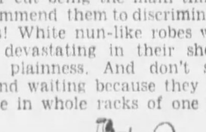
And also . . . see if you can resist casting sheeps'-eyes at the chaise longue which lies in wait for some luxury loving mortal!

Brown moire, this, in the two-arm reversible cushions style . . . with ivory piping and heavy cord fringe 'round the bottom! Only $65 . . . and well we remember seeing much less la-de-da chaises for double this sum! Meaning little chaise lounge lizards, that you would love basking in this!

Now . . . having gotten the cart before the horse . . . we take pleasure in presenting some of the sweetest evening frocks that feminine fancy could choose for New Year's or any other Eve!

There are just 150 of these to be exact . . . and after seeing them you'll realize that it would be impossible to have great gobs floating 'round loose at such prices as they are marking!

For they're REDUCED for clearance— $10.95 to $19.95 frocks at ONE-HALF OFF! Slithering things of red crepe with some red sequins spanning your chest in a novel way . . . and a big red bow drooping over one hip! Turquoise-y metal cloth gowns with their cut being the main thing to recommend them to discriminating girls! White nun-like robes which are devastating in their sheath-like plainness. And don't stand 'round waiting because they don't come in whole racks of one kind.



Finally . . . just because it's a good buy at this clearance price knockdown . . . do treat yourself to a look at the French coffee table which one shop is selling down-river for $55 instead of the $75 it should be!

Satinwood and rosewood with bronze ornaments at the corners . . . all the grace in the world in its design . . . and "that something" which a GOOD piece of furniture always has!

'The Servant in the House' Revived Admirably By Hampden

By GEORGE SEIBEL

It is 20 years since Walter Hampden brought "The Servant in the House" to Pittsburgh, and during these years there has been a vast change in the sort of drama presented for public consumption. Last night he revived Charles Rann Kennedy's symbolic play, and it showed that the fashions of the hour have not put it out of fashion. After the fall of the curtain the audience in the Nixon sat reverently for several minutes as in a church—but enough of them realized the duty of a theatrical audience to force the curtain upward again and again in recognition of a fine and moving performance, which became more spiritualized and intense as the action of the play progressed.

Walter Hampden acted Manson, the butler whose very makeup suggests the oriental prophet by its messianic aspect. He always moves quietly—his noble voice has in it a ring of benediction—there is a mien of majesty behind his mood of kindness and a depth of mystery behind his simplicity. Hampden is like a living sermon in this role.

Mr. Seibel

Ernest Rowan did one of his strongest pieces of acting as Robert Smith, the "gentleman of necessary occupation." When the play was first presented here, the late Tyrone Power appeared in this part, and acted it magnificently. Except in the scene where the Drainman is taken for a thief by his daughter, where there was hardly enough of the repellant or furtive to justify her suspicion, Rowan was grimly impressive and convincing.

The third magnificent impersonation of last night's performance was that of John D. Seymour as the Vicar. Dignity, sincerity and eloquence marked his characterization.

VERY SMALL CAST

There are only seven people in the very small cast, but they were all carefully chosen and put their full power into their work. Erna Rowan had the very difficult role of the niece, which requires an almost incredible guilelessness—and she made it credible. She looks almost too healthy for this ethereal and wistful impersonation, but she overcame this by girlish charm and spontaneity. Mabel Moore, who was her aunt, also has no easy task, but acquitted herself with understanding and fine discrimination.

The two rather humorous characters of the worldly bishop and the snobbish pageboy were taken by Edward Cushman and Le Roi Operti. Easy to overdo, these characters were not overdone. Hard to believe as the bishop is, Cushman resorted to comic emphasis to make him interesting. He is a subtler hypocrite who needs Thackerayan lardiness, as the pageboy might learn a few lessons from Jeames Yellowplush.

MEANING OF THIS PLAY

To go into the meaning of this play would be as tedious as to analyze any of the Parables and explain their lesson. Learned volumes have been written on Ibsen's "Brand," but Ibsen is easier to understand than the explanations. So it is with "The Servant in the House."

The lesson of human brotherhood, of the cesspool under the church that fills the sacred edifice with corruption and miasmata, of the servant that is really he Master, of the false pride that ignores the ties and duties first to be observed—all these lessons are in Charles Rann Kennedy's drama, easily to be read by the discerning heart. Mysticism is mingled with realism—there is an appeal to the conscience through the imagination—it is an eloquent sermon disguised as an interesting play. Walter Hampden is to be commended for having revived it and put it on with such fervent skill.

Cantor Learns to Save; New Film Ready

Eddie Cantor says he's learned how to save money, and it was in Hollywood that he learned it! Eddie says:

"In pictures, a fellow gets a chance to live like a human being—to have some home life—to cease being scatter-brained. You've no idea what an inspiration it is! No, I'm not kidding!

"The first thing I learned was to worry about getting the return of my money instead of the return on it. Anything that makes you lay aside so much every week—just like paying off borrowed money—is a big help.

"Then you know who's got your money at least—or where you left it the last time you saw it!"

Musical

Lillian Harvey is the star of "My Weakness," musical film with songs by B. G. DeSylva. It will be the New Year's feature in the Family Theater, opening at midnight, New Year's Eve.

Marriage of Cary Grant Hinges on 'Papers'

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 27.—If certain papers reached London in time, Cary Grant and Virginia Cherrill are man and wife.

Under the English law, a divorced person, seeking to remarry, must show a certified copy of the decree. Virginia neglected to provide one before she left for England, so she had to have her attorney rush the papers from this country.

Plans were for the couple to take the vows Christmas Day in the Durham Nursing Hospital, where Cary has been recuperating from an operation.

Had Randy Scott remained in England, he would have been best man. But Randy got homesick and returned to spend Christmas with his family in Charlotte, N. C.

Incidentally, Cary's illness may take his pal out of western roles. Paramount now plans to substitute Randy in "Thirty Day Princess."

* * *

W. S. Van Dyke has a memory as long as an elephant's. Last Christmas, John Miljan bought a dilapidated car of popular make and had it delivered on Van's front lawn. This year, Van purchased a falling-apart 40 passenger bus and trundled it onto the Miljan yard. It practically covered it.

* * *

It was Sally Eilers who got the idea, and her enthusiasm finally sold Johnna Ralston, Dick Arlen and the Charles Rogers' Company.

And so it happens that Baby Richard Ralston is to have a regular contract guaranteeing him at least $100 a week and is to appear before the camera in an important role.

* * *

You can believe what you wish but Ann Harding and Harry Bannister both tell me that his trip to Hollywood has nothing to do with a reconciliation.

"Harry came out to spend Christmas with Janie, and we're both glad to see him,," said Ann.

"I came out to see my little girl and maybe to cast a play which I am producing in New York," declared Harry.

* * *

Christmas was a real occasion at Joan Crawford's house this year, because the star's sister-in-law, Kasha Le Sueur, was able to go home from the hospital with Baby Joan, who is thriving and gaining weight despite the handicap of premature birth.

* * *

Jean Harlow (and wouldn't you know it?) had a platinum blonde Christmas tree . . . Mary Roberts Rinehart is recuperating from a five-weeks' illness at the Desert Inn in Palm Springs . . . Lawrence Stallings is another author who is spending the holidays at the desert resort . . . George O'Brien's farewell party at Al Levy's Tavern was a great success . . . It will be a six-month trip around the world for Eugene O'Brien. He will spend a good deal of this time in the islands of the South Seas.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"Hold Your Horses," the new Joe Cook musical show that will come to the Nixon Monday, January 8, will be presented with the original cast, including Harriet Hoctor, dancer; Tom Patricola, singing and dancing comic; Francis Upton, singer and dancer, and Dave Chasen, who always goes where Cook goes. Chasen is perhaps the dean of the "stooge" tribe, being a star in a shrinking violet yet conspicuous sort of way. Naturally, there are other principals, too, and a girl brigade that includes a chorus line of 50 damsels.

Songs Reflect Mood

B. G. "Bud" DeSylva began song-writing in the war period, when America's entrance called for popular war songs, some patriotic, some humorous, some sentimental.

He cites "Over There" as an example of the first, "Oh, How I Hate to Get Up in the Morning," as typical of the second, and "Till We Meet Again," written by Richard A. Whiting (DeSylva's collaborator with Leo Robin on the Lilian Harvey-Lew Ayres film "My Weakness"), as an example of the third class.

"They were all great songs," said DeSylva, "but it is significant that the humorous song, while is sold over a million copies, sold less than the patriotic song, 'Over There,' and it is also significant that 'Till We Meet Again,' the sentimental song, outsold even 'Over There,' which everyone regards as one of the biggest popular hits of our time. 'Till We Meet Again' sold over six million copies."

In peace time, when "We are either gaily riding the waves of prosperity or shooting down the slide of depression," as DeSylva puts it, the songs the people sing indicate prosperity or depression—but in "reverse English."

"Oddly enough," he says, "when we are prosperous we prefer ballads. We like to cry and feel sorry for ourselves. It was during the great boom period leading up to 1929 that the torch song, the wail of wails, reached the height of its popularity."

But during the past four years the people turned to the lighter, happier type of song, he says, "to sing ourselves out of our financial blues."

Settlement Children To Get Movie Treat

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

'I Told You So!'

BREATHES THERE a man with soul so dead, who never to his family has said: "I told you so!" I doubt it. If there's one thing in this world that all humans crave, it's the desire to be right about something that takes place in the future. It is for that reason that we have Wall street, the race tracks—and the divorce courts.

Well, to make a long story as short as Hellinger can make it, I will tell you at this point that I got the "I told you so" yen the other evening. I was running through my scrapbook in search of ideas for a new book of mine that will be published shortly by Farrar and Rinehart, and I discovered numerous predictions that I had made through the years.

With your permission, plus that of Mr. Ed Sullivan, I will inflict a few of them upon you in this column. Ready? Let's go:

* * *

An item, published in the column on August 9, 1925:

"Gene Buck sponsored a benefit at the Great Neck Playhouse of a recent Sunday for the local Legion post. We traveled down there for the world's greatest shows.

"The real applause hit of the evening was a youth named Morton Downey, whose voice for tone and beauty, surpasses any we have ever heard. We take the liberty of prophesying stardom for him within the next few years."

Mr. Downey's great success needs no comment here. . . .

An item, published in the column on November 22, 1925:

"Hooray for Florida! Everybody's going South! There are millions to be made! The press agents are spreading their stories. Tom Meighan, they tell us, made $150,000 in real estate. Florence Mills, not to be outdone, made $200,000. Hooray! Hooray!

"Of course there is money to be made in Florida real estate. But when the boom is over, look out! Before too many months have passed, there are going to be more broken hearts in Miami than Broadway ever knew."

I pass you the crying towel, and say no more. . . .

* * *

An item, published in the column on November 7, 1926:

"Last week, sailing for Europe, Mary Miles Minter spoke to reporters:

"'I do not know whether I will return to the screen or not. My professional future is on the knees of the gods.'

"Mary Miles Minter is mistaken. Her professional future is all in the past."

It was. . . .

* * *

An item, published in the column on April 17, 1928:

"Mae West is now starring in 'Diamond Lil,' a piece she authored herself. While the play may be forced and overwritten, it gripped the audience on the night I was present.

"Mae West may never write or act in a piece that will ring down through the ages. But she knows what the people want—and she gives it to them."

And how she gives it to them!

An item, published in the column on November 13, 1928:

"Ruby Keeler quit 'Whoopee' in Pittsburgh, and departed for the West without so much as a goodbye. But it won't last, for this girl is a potential star. Al Jolson will permit her to return to show business eventually. It may be a month, and it may be a year—but she's coming back."

Ruby did. . . .

* * *

An item, published in the column October 24, 1929:

"I recommend to you a little lady named Ethel Merman, at Les Ambassadeurs. Here's a great little songstress, undiscovered in a big way as yet, who should reach the top of the heap within a few years."

Ethel has arrived. . . .

* * *

An item, published in the column on August 28, 1930:

"Jack Diamond . . . A handsome chap with wavy black hair . . . When Jack Diamond dies, a human hand will pull a trigger and not a switch."

The man was dead two months later. A human hand had pulled a trigger. . . .

An item, published in the column on April 9, 1931:

"Jimmy Walker is the Mayor of the City of New York. That's a tough job—because the best you can get is the worst. If anything happens to him in the impending investigation, he will age plenty in a short time. Although I have never asked him, I know full well that Jimmy would reply to one question just as so many other Broadwayites have always replied to it. Ask them where they would like to be, and the answer is almost inevitable.

"'I'd like to be anywhere, except where I am. I'd like to be in some peaceful spot, many miles from Broadway.'"

An item, published in the column July 3, 1932:

"Johnny Weismuller and Bobbe Arnst are both swell people. I wish them happiness together, but I doubt that they will have it. Once you hit the spotlight in too brilliant a fashion, the game is almost over. Too many hands are fighting eagerly to reach in and turn the spotlight off."

And so it happened . . .

* * *

And so we have a column called "I Told You So!" Sorry I haven't room for more. I might add that I could write one titled: "Oh, How Wrong I Was!" But I don't think I will.

Davies Film Wins Raves

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—Marion Davies' new picture, "Going Hollywood," is being given its first New York presentation in the Capitol Theater, and it has been most enthusiastically received by audiences and critics alike. Not often have critics been so unanimous in their praise of a picture, or a star, as is shown by the following excerpts from the leading New York newspapers.

"As one of the cinema's most gifted comediennes, her return in a new offering is always in itself a matter for huzzahs, and when she is fortunate enough to find herself in a good one, it is a circumstance which calls for plenty of cheering.

"'Going Hollywood' is just such a good picture. Quick, colorful, rollicking and melodious, it possesses all the better class virtues of musical films.

"Frankly I had the pleasantest possible time at 'Going Hollywood,' which I recommend to you as a tuneful, witty, gay and tasteful entertainment."—William Boehnle, World-Telegram.

"One of the surprising things about 'Going Hollywood,' the new Marion Davies picture, is that it succeeds in taking a familiar plot and making it both fresh and amusing. It is smart, lively and variegated." — Thornton Delehanty, Evening Post.

"Revealing spectacular talent as a dancer, Marion Davies in her new picture, 'Going Hollywood,' does spirited work in a most congenial role. The film is magnificently mounted."—Bland Johaneson, Daily Mirror.

"I liked 'Going Hollywood,' Marion Davies, Bing Crosby, Stuart Erwin, Ned Sparks, Patsy Kelly, not to say anything of the three radio rogues from the networks—perform so cleverly that one feels that 'Going Hollywood' positively rates success on the excellence of its players." — John S. Cohen, New York Sun.

"Marion Davies' new musical picture 'Going Hollywood' is a tuneful and amusing film."—Kate Cameron, Daily News.

"'Going Hollywood' has enough basic loveliness to produce a sprightly and jocular mood."—Times.

"A gorgeous Christmas present for fans. 'Going Hollywood,' for sheer beauty, tunefulness and exhilarating charm, rates ever superlative in the book."—Rose Pelswick, Evening Journal.

"Bright, tuneful, merry as Christmas bells, 'Going Hollywood' has just about everything—beauty, charm, romance, loads of laughs, hummable melodies and lovable Marion Davies blithely dancing her way through the picture and into your heart. Bing Crosby was never better; in fact he was never quite as fine."—Regina Crewe, New York American.

Three Variety Shows To Greet 1934

Reservations for the Variety's New Year's eve midnight show Sunday night and the "Milkman's Matinee" show, at 3 o'clock Monday morning, are now being accepted at the box office. "Hello 1934," featuring Joan Barlow, plantinum blonde oriental dancer, will open the 1934 season. Five extra added attractions have been booked in conjunction to the regular burlesque show, including Schaffer and Nelson, a comedy team.

AUTO LIABILITY ON SALESMEN EXPLAINED

The new financial responsibility law for automobile owners and drivers will be effective January 1 in Pennsylvania. The Sun-Telegraph has obtained a resume of the law from the State Department of Revenue and the Pittsburgh Motor Club.

Q—If any operator is driving the car of any other person and by virtue of some condition or accident becomes subject to the Financial Responsibility Law, will it suffice for the owner of the car to furnish insurance on the car?

A—It will not suffice. The same requirements apply here as described in answer to a previous question applying to chauffeurs and truck drivers.

Q—If an operator is employed as a salesman, and while operating a car of his employer, becomes subject to the Financial Responsibility Act, may he be relieved of filing proof provided the employer has insurance on the vehicle?

A—He will have to provide proof in the same way as described in a previous question concerning chauffeurs and truck drivers.

Q—What is an insurance certificate as defined by this act?

A—It is a written statement by an insurance company to the effect that certain insurance has been provided in conformance with this Act. The certificate must be approved by Department of Revenue. The policy need not be approved by that department. Insurance companies will take up matter of policy approval with state insurance commissions or departments.

Q—In case of surety bond or cash being offered as proof of financial responsibility, where should these be submitted?

A—To the Secretary of Revenue, Harrisburg.

A—$5,000 in the event of injury or death of one person; $10,000 in the event of injury or death of more than one person; and $1,000 property damage.

Q—If a person's license to operate is withdrawn prior to January 1, 1934, and restored after January 1, 1934, will he have to furnish proof of financial responsibility?

A—No.

Q—If a person, because of a violation in 1933, has his license suspended after January 1, 1934, will he have to furnish proof of financial responsibility before the license can be restored?

A—Yes, this also implies that a person whose license is withdrawn after January 1, 1934, for violations committed after that date, must furnish proof of financial responsibility before restoration can be made.

Q—In case of a person's committing a violation for which suspension of operator's license could be made, does the Secretary of Revenue have to demand proof of financial responsibility?

A—He does not, but, on the other hand, he may demand proof of financial responsibility even though he chooses not to make suspension for a violation of the Vehicle Code.

Q—If a person has an accident because of some violation for which his operator's license is subsequently suspended, does the amount of damage in this accident have to amount to more than $200 to require him to furnish proof of financial responsibility?

A—It does not. Theoretically any violation of the Vehicle Code may result in the suspension of an operator's license. As a matter of policy, the Department of Revenue has not been doing this for all violations.

Q—Does a driver who has not had an accident in Pennsylvania in the past year have to file proof of financial responsibility?

A—No, not unless he comes within provisions of the act because of violations or unsatisfied judgments.

Q—In the event a person is involved in one accident amounting to more than $200, would he have to furnish proof of financial responsibility?

A—If involved in one accident only, during the 12 months preceding application for operator's license, it would not be necessary to file proof of financial responsibility, even though damages for which that person is responsible exceeded $200.

Q—If a person is involved in two or more accidents aggregating damages in excess of $200, prior to January 1, 1934, must he show proof of financial responsibility before he can renew his 1934 driver's license?

A—Yes. He must show proof if the accidents have occurred in the 12 months preceding application for the license, regardless of the date he applies, assuming of course negligence on his part and excluding damages to car he was driving and injury to himself.

Globe-trotting

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

"Now is the time for everybody to begin thinking about New Year resolutions," says Albert Hendricks.

He has submitted as his first resolve that hereafter he is going to listen eagerly to all the birthday, wedding, club and church announcements.

He also says that he himself happens to have several birthdays that he would like to have announced as well as some plays that his church contemplates presenting.

If you have some good resolutions that ought to be brought to the attention of the Globe Trotter, let me have them, will you?

* * *

The snow is here again. I'm glad of it for one reason. Many of you who never wrote before take the old pens in hands and jot down a few words about reminding the folks to feed the birds.

Mrs. J. W. Campbell especially points out that the suet for them ought to be firmly fixed and not swung from a piece of string. When it's hanging from a limb the birds can't get a clawhold any place to peck at it successfully. I get it. It's something like playing "Bob the Apple" when it's free swinging.

* * *

I can't see what I can do for the "South Side Bunch" who complain of a man spreading ashes on the walk before his house, thereby spoiling a sled-track.

Although I see the coasters' side of the argument, bitter experience enables me to understand the man's actions.

Why don't you offer to buy him a pair of "creepers?"

* * *

James Johnson, Fifth avenue—There is plenty of action down at CWA headquarters these days. Thousands are expected to be placed at some kind of work before the first of the year.

* * *

Harry Lewis, Homestead — I don't know of any specific place that might be interested in your proposition. You might try the various establishments listed in the telephone book. I'd make a personal visit if I were you.

Spanish Air Chief Sifts Plane Mystery

MERIDA, Yucatan, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Maj. Ramon Franco, head of Spain's aviation corps, arrived here today en route from Havana to Mexico, D. F., in his investigation of the disappearance of two Spanish fliers.

Eagles to Hold New Year's Party

The New Year's celebration of Pittsburgh Eagles' Aerie will be held Sunday night at the clubhouse, 431 Third avenue. Dinner will start at 10 p. m. A. J. Dougherty is chairman.

Local Highlights on WJAS Tonight

JUNIOR PATROL

JUNIOR PATROL PLEDGE

I promise to help children less fortunate than I am.
I promise to do my best to make my parents proud of me.
I promise to watch carefully when crossing streets and to aid other children in keeping out of danger.
I promise to study hard and do errands willingly.
I promise to be a 100% Junior Patrol member.

Date of Birth ..... Address .....
School .....

Address this pledge to the JUNIOR PATROL, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa. Upon its receipt you will be registered as a member of the JUNIOR PATROL and will be forwarded a membership card and an official emblem.

Yesterday and today, the ground is white, and we are slithering and sliding around.

Boys and girls are getting out their sleds, and now we are having both the fun and the bother of snow.

But it is a chance for Junior Patrol members to help others. Sled ride on a little-used street, fellows, where you won't be in any danger of cars. Or else find a snowy hillside that is even more fun. Keep your own walks in front of your house shoveled off, so that people won't fall down if you are big enough to use a snow scraper. The snow is a chance for some Junior Patrol members to make some money, too. Lots of people will give you a dime or a quarter to clean their sidewalk for them.

Wasn't that Christmas music beautiful on the radio, fellows? We heard many of the programs, both the singing and the playing of the orchestras, and it was grand all the time. Jingle bells and all the carols are pretty pieces of music.

Some boys and girls we know in our neighborhood had lots of fun singing carols Christmas Eve. They gathered in a group before houses where people were sick, or where they knew friends lived, and sang their carols. Some of their friends invited them in, and gave them candy, cake, fruit and hot chocolate to eat and drink! Boy, they had plenty of good fun!

The snow makes us wonder how the birds and the squirrels and the other little animals are getting along this weather. You remember, we have one Junior Patrol member whose father keeps a bird bath for the birds, and feeds them, too. We hope other Junior Patrol members aren't forgetting about them.

Now here we have eight pledges from Clairton, Pa., today. Some of them are from Pete Punac, Frank Orcini and John Nickeloc, all of 294 State street. We hope you boys can get a few more members in your patrol and elect a captain soon. We will send the badges for these eight right away.

"I am saving all the pledges I can get so that I can have a lot of members in my Junior Patrol. Will you send me a captain's armband so that I can wear it?"

Surely we will, Billy, just as soon as you are elected captain by 10 or more members—for whom we have signed pledges here at headquarters.

The Sun-Telegraph
DOLL LADY
Stays Until New Year's With
"HONEY-SUCKLE"

"Honeysuckle" is 18 inches tall, just the right size the average little girl would like to cuddle up to. The word beautiful doesn't really describe her. She's more than beautiful—she's GORGEOUS.

"Honeysuckle" has flexible rubber arms and hands and rubber legs that can be washed just the same as you would wash your baby brother's or sister's. And WHAT A SMILE! And behind that smile are the most lovable, most roguish eyes you ever looked into. They open and close and she rolls them from side to side like a real flirt. By pressing her legs or by moving her body forward or back, she says "Ma-ma" in the sweetest voice you ever heard. She's dressed like a little queen in dainty organdy and lace, with bonnet and shoes to match.

Oh, we forget to mention her cute dimples, and just as this was written "Honeysuckle" looked up and seemed to say, "Yes; you forgot to tell them about my rubber panties."

"Honeysuckle" is really the DOLL OF ALL DOLLS, and she is going to be so easy to get for New Year's. You must, however, get your orders in this week.

DOLL LADY HEADQUARTERS
622 GRANT ST.

Open From 9 a. m. to 5:30 p. m. Until New Year's.
Come in and Meet "Honeysuckle."

Easy to Get!

Every little girl in Pittsburgh and vicinity can easily secure one of these wonderful dolls for the New Year. All they have to do is to take the subscription blanks out among their neighbors, relatives and friends and get them signed. There is no money to pay and no money to collect. Just get the blanks properly filled in, send them to The Doll Lady Department, Sun-Telegraph Pittsburgh, Pa., and you'll have "Honeysuckle" for your New Year playmate.

ON RADIO TONIGHT

Ernest Truex Featured on WCAE

Ernest Truex, diminutive comedian of the stage and screen is guest of the Troubadors during their broadcast over NBC-WCAE tonight at 9.

Truex is substituted on the program for Kay Francis, whose scheduled appearance was cancelled at a late hour because of illness.

* * *

Regina Senz, coloratura star of the Monte Carlo Opera, makes a guest appearance with Robert Armbruster's ensemble over a CBS-WJAS network during the "Music on the Air" presentation at 7:30.

Mlle. Senz is said to strongly resemble the famous tragedienne, Sara Bernhardt.

* * *

TONE SKETCH

"The Swan," probably the best known of Saint-Saens' descriptive tone sketches, is featured by Albert Spalding in his violin recital with Don Voorhees' orchestra, over CBS-WJAS tonight at 8:30.

* * *

With the silver coins jingling to a new tune under the President's baton, Senator Wheeler, of Montana, an advocate of unlimited silver coinage, discusses the increased monetization of the metal in a broadcast over NBC-WCAE at 10:30.

Frank Black's NBC Symphony Orchestra, with Egon Petrie, pianist, presents an all-Russian concert over NBC-WJZ (760 kilocycles) at 10.

The Pickens Sisters' return to the air may be heard on the same wave-length at 11.

* * *

SYMPHONY

The third movement of Schuman's Symphony No. 2 is played by the Philadelphia Orchestra over CBS-WJAS at 9.

* * *

Fred Warings' last broadcast of the year is heard over CBS-WJAS at 10.

* * *

Colonels Stoopnagle and Budd, posing as two radio announcers, describe a cornhusking contest over WJAS at 9:15.

* * *

Harold Sanford, in a year's-end mood of meditation, leads his orchestra in "Through the Years," "Love's Sorrow" and Jarnefelt's "Berceuse," on the NBC-KDKA network at 7:15.

* * *

Pittsburghers wish there might be more cause for the "Smoke Abatement" discussion scheduled on WJAS this afternoon at 4:15. It is a network feature, with H. B. Meller, of the Mellon Institute, as speaker.

Makes Debut

'The Broken Coin' Strange Story

Altoona and Youngstown listeners hear the remarkable story of a broken coin that brought together, under tragic circumstances, a father and daughter who had been separated for many years, in a radio drama scheduled tomorrow afternoon and evening.

Adapted from a real life article in next Sunday's American Weekly, big magazine distributed with the Sun-Telegraph, "The Broken Coin" is dramatized over WFBG, Altoona, at 3 p. m. and over WKBN, Youngstown, at 8:15 p. m.

President May Ask Message Broadcast

By AIRCASTER

Those close to the White House were of the opinion today that President Roosevelt will break another precedent when his message goes to Congress, January 3rd, by calling on all radio stations to have it broadcast, as he delivers it in person.

* * *

The number of broadcasting stations in the country will be increased by from a dozen to 18, shortly, that number of licenses being made available with the opening of the 1,500-1,600 kilocycle band for entertainment service.

The Radio Commission has just completed many months of work clearing the band of police and television channels.

Radio receivers purchased during the past two years will be able to tune in stations on the newly-opened band.

COMPLAINT

An interesting situation has evolved about Eddie Cantor.

Recently, the Independent Theater Owners' Association complained that Cantor's Sunday night programs were keeping patrons away from the theater.

The complaint was made to the movie magnates who star Cantor once a year in films. They replied that they had nothing to do with Cantor's radio activity.

Cantor, oddly, is reported to have sympathized with the theater owners, and Hollywood gossip say Cantor will ask his sponsors to try to find a week night spot on the air (if any), when the time arrives for him to renew his contract with them.

* * *

"PAN" MAIL

Tony Wons appealed today to brother and sister radio artists to unite in an effort to establish an annual radio fan mail week.

He suggests that it be set for January 14 to 21.

During that designated time, Wons explains, the listeners should be asked to send in serious fan letters criticizing programs and individuals, or applauding them, and explaining why they like or dislike certain types of entertainment.

Such a week each year, Wons points out, would help keep the program designers and the artists on the right tracks.

* * *

Miss Faye will go into the movies, and make a bid for stardom.

SOCIETY QUAFFS WINE AS OPERA RETURNS IN N.Y.

By DOROTHY DUCAS
International News Service

NEW YORK, Dec. 27. — New York grew young last night with the opening of the fiftieth season at te Metropolitan Opera. Champagne, tiaras, trains, spangles, the presence of the socially great including J. P. Morgan, Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt and Mrs. Vincent Astor, brought back the days of "Little Old New York."

It was an opera opening such as the city had not seen since before the war.

The only modern note was Deems Taylor's opera, "Peter Ibbetson," the first American opus to fill the boards at a Metropolitan premiere. And the only reminder of "the depression" was the presentation of a floral tribute to Lucrezia Bori, the soprano who is called "Opera's Joan of Arc" because, with Lawrence Tibbett and Edward Johnson, she collected funds to make this season possible.

LAUD MISS BORI

Paul D. Cravath, president and chairman of the board, and Giulio Gatti-Casazza, who is celebrating his twenty-sixth anniversary as director of the Metropolitan, paid glowing tribute to Miss Bori, who was the star of the Taylor opera, for her collection of the one-million-dollar fund.

In the newly-licensed buffet on the grand tier, whisky (straight) sold for 40 cents last night. For 30 cents there was sherry, port and Du Bonnet. Manhattans, Bronxes and old-fashioneds were 40 cents; set-ups for whisky cost 10 cents extra. Champagne at $8 and $10 a quart kept moving.

One saw in the buffet Princess Alexis Mdivani, the former Barbara Hutton, with her Prince, both chatting with Cobina Wright. There too was Mrs. Henry Channon, the former Lady Honor Guinness of London.

ASTOR IN BOX

John Jacob Astor, the 21-year-old bearer of a name that has not been in the opera lists for lo! these many years, was in Box 28 with his fiancee, Miss Ellen Gillespie, and her grandmother, Mrs. Watts Sherman.

Opera, reported dying now for a long period, appeared to have experienced a revival, partially explained by three factors: The general recovery of business, repeal, and a half-year of 50-cent top price opera over on Sixth avenue. The latter's success has brought into being a new, youthful audience which, for some years, contented itself with motion picture and vaudeville entertainment.

Mendelssohn Choir To Present 'Messiah'

The Mendelssohn Choir of Pittsburgh under the direction of its conductor, Ernest Lunt, will present "The Messiah" Thursday at 8 p. m. at the Carnegie Music Hall featuring an all-Pittsburgh program.

Chicago Cuts Opera Prices in Half

CHICAGO, Dec. 27.—(Universal)—For the first time in two years grand opera on the grand scale and in the grand manner, with world-famed stars and world-renowned coductors, came back to Chicago last night when the curtain of the Civic Opera Company rose on a performance of Puccini's La Tosca, with Maria Jeritza in the title role.

From a viewpoint of performance and artistry it was grand opera along conventional lines. But as far as prices for seats were concerned there was a "new deal." The prices were about half those which held in years gone by.

Grand opera is back, which to Chicagoans is the most important thing. The season is only one of five weeks, but that mattered little to Chicago music lovers. To them the young opera season means but two things—the opera is back and the depression is over. They regard the return of the grand opera as the definite end of the economic winter.

ITALIAN OPERA SEASON OPENS

ROME, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Italy's opera season opened brilliantly in many cities last night playing to packed houses in some cases attended by royalty. This day, the feast of Santo Stefano, has been the first night of opera for many generations.

The famous, grey-pillared Scala of Milan began its season with Verdi's "Nabucco." Gina Cigna and Pasero sang the principal roles.

"Lucrezia Borgia," by Donizetti, was the inaugural number of the Royal Opera House here with Beniamino Gigli, formerly of the Metropolitan Opera in New York; Arangi Lombardi and Giacomo Vaghi in the leading parts. Gino Marinuzzi directed.

Mascagni directed his own work, "Le Maschere," for the opening of the Carlo Felice Opera House in Genoa. This had not been given in Genoa since 1901.

MERCHANTS DEFEND USE OF BLUE LAW TO ENFORCE NRA

WIDOW OF SLAIN CAFE MAN SHOT

Two Sons, Friend Held At Morals Court Hearing

Two sons and a friend of the widow of a slain Mt. Washington beer garden proprietor were held today to await the outcome of a bullet wound she received last night at her home.

At the Mercy Hospital today the woman shrugged her shoulders in answer to police questions regarding her injury.

She is Mrs. Anna Impellicceiri, 45, of 428 Williams street, whose husband, Louis was shot to death last July 4. She was struck in the thigh. Physicians said her condition is not serious.

THREE HELD

Her sons, Dominick, 19, and Louis, 17, were held along with Rocco Mamuletti, of Youngstown, O., after a hearing in Morals Court.

Dominick, who had previously told police he was cleaning a gun when it was accidentally discharged, changed his story slightly today. He said he was shooting at a mark in the cellar when the gun jammed, that he took it apart, but that a shell left in the chamber was discharged, accidentally striking his mother.

The woman had said she was holding the revolver when it was discharged accidentally.

MYSTERY KILLING

The husband was shot to death in his Blue Arch Beer Garden at 124 Southern avenue. A charge from a double-barreled shotgun, fired into the place through a screen door, struck Impellicceiri as he strummed a guitar.

Although homicide detectives arrested several persons for questioning in connection with the slaying, the identity of the killer was not learned.

Two years before the slaying, the Impellicceiri home was bombed, police said.

COUNTY BURIAL PLOT FOR VETS PLANNED

Civil Works Board To Begin Survey Tomorrow

The planning of a county burial plot for veterans of American wars was to begin today under the auspices of the Civil Works Administration.

Initial designs will be laid out in the office of the county planning engineers, and the actual survey will start tomorrow. The scene of operations will be the old Neville Farm on the Bower Hill road.

HISTORICAL SPOT

Rich in historical interest, the site was the battleground of the Whisky Rebellion, and was traversed by the Lewis and Clarke expedition in its famous march to the West.

Construction of the Memorial Park will probably start in the near future, since the present military burial grounds in South Side cemetery are almost filled. Only 10 empty graves remain there, and the plot, once maintained by the Grand Army of the Republic, and since taken over by the county, has been extended to its limit.

36-ACRE PLOT

Plans for work at the Neville Farm site will call for a memorial park of the most modern type. The plot covers 36 acres, and the landscape design will provide for the use of the entire site.

All graves in the cemetery will be marked by a specified type of flat stone, so that no headstones will rise to mar the symmetry of the arrangement. Places will be designated at various parts of the park for the erection of monuments to heroic figures from this district who died in the nation's wars.

114-HOUR WEEK CHARGED TO FEW STORES

Remission of Fines by Judge for Hill Dealers Scored

Defending themselves for using the Blue Laws to enforce NRA codes, the Merchants' Co-operative Association, composed of Hill district merchants, today said that invocation of the century-and-a-quarter-old statutes was the only way to prevent a few unscrupulous merchants from operating their stores 114 hours a week.

In a statement signed by D. Brown, the association's business manager, the association denied Judge Sara Soffel's charge that their methods are nothing but a "racket to compel one group of merchants to comply with the judgment and decisions of another group."

APPEALS PLANNED

Brown said there are only about 25 merchants in the district refusing to abide by the NRA code governing small stores. He added:

"Their competition may force all of us to thtrow the Blue Eagle out the window.

"We're going to seek the co-operation of ministers and civic leaders to protect ourselves. We'll also appeal to the NRA Compliance Board."

Judge Soffel yesterday reversed Justice of the Peace Ralph Parkhill's decision, fining nine merchants for violating the blue laws by staying open on Sunday. Brown said his group will appeal to the Supreme Court, if necessary.

Brown said:

"We have been keeping our stores closed on Sunday for the past six months at great expense and suffering many hardships due to the fact that the people we have prosecuted stay open to enjoy business belonging to somebody else."

OPINION SCORED

Judge Soffel's opinion was scored today by Dr. R. H. Martin, president of the National Reform Association.

Dr. Martin charged that it is not the function of the courts to nullify the laws they are sworn to uphold."

He stated:

"I am surprised at Judge Soffel's decision. It is true that the law is progressive and interpreted in the light of changing economic conditions. Some things are now 'necessities' that were not 50 or 75 years ago. But the courts in Pennsylvania have generally been reasonable in their interpretation of the law in the light of changing conditions.

"But for a Pennsylvania judge to rule that the sale of merchandise by storekeepers on the Lord's Day is within the limits of the Pennsylvania law is, I believe, a radical departure from the ruling of Pennsylvania courts."

RHEOLOGY BODY MEETS HERE

Dr. Wheeler P. Davey, president of the Society of Rheology and research professor of physical chemistry and physics at Pennsylvania State College, is presiding at the society's fifth annual convention, which opened today at the Hotel Schenley.

Dr. Davey is widely known for his study of the effects of X-rays on living tissue, the radiography of metals, the crystal structure of metals, emulsions and the preferred orientation of crystals in solids.

EX-DRYS SWORN AS 'REVENUERS'

A score of former federal prohibition agents were sworn in as deputy collectors of internal revenue today to investigate and prosecute violators of the federal liquor tax laws.

A few minutes after the ceremonies two of the agents made the first arrests. At Main and Liberty avenues they arrested Clarence Leonard and John Mullen, accused of having 12 pints of liquor on which no federal tax had been paid. They were charged with transporting and also with removing and concealing liquor with intent to defraud the government.

Gag the Experts And Let Money Do the Talking

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

Don't know anything about this bimetalist thing. We don't care how tall a bim is. What we want is money.

Can't understand this remonetization business. What we need is cash.

Whole affair is like the 60 scientists reassembling the skeleton of a sardine. Too many experts and not enough bones.

All we're getting out of it is a hash of big words and pictures of old men who just graduated from college.

Nick Murray Butler says it's a fine thing. Nick is inflated because his college is playing Stanford next Monday. If he wants to take the short end on Columbia, we will give him three to one.

But he will have to lay his coin on the line. None of that bim stuff.

RAIL VETERAN DEAD AT 101

Closely linked to the development of transportation in Western Pennsylvania was the life of the world's oldest railroad man, Kirby Jackson, of Chicago, for whom funeral services were to be held at Fort Wayne, Ind., today.

The veteran railroader, who would have been 102 years old March 8, was born in New Brighton in 1832, when Andrew Jackson was completing his first term as seventh President of the United States.

As a boy he witnessed the laying of the first crude rails which later were to become the Pennsylvania Railroad's main line between New York, Pittsburgh and Chicago. For 50 years he served as a locomotive engineman on the Pennsylvania.

Of seven brothers, six of whom also served as Pennsylvania engineman, and three sisters, Mr. Jackson outlived all except one—Mrs. Stephen Boss, of Pittsburgh. His wife died three years ago at the age of 90.

COUNTY CHECKS BRIDGE FEES

Allegheny County is preparing to seek an increase of revenue by exacting a full charge for utility lines carried on bridges.

Commissioner C. M. Barr was yesterday appointed to confer with the Bridge Department and county solicitors on poundage carried on all county bridges and revenue received. The proper revenue due the county will be determined.

The present rates are said to be low, and while many companies have contracts a number of others have not.

Restaurant Bandits Get $95 in Holdup

Two robbers escaped with $95 after holding up Eugene Cappi and a guest in Cappi's lunchroom at 500 Allegheny avenue early today. Cappi told police they took $55 from a cash register, $15 from his pockets, and $25 from Eugene Sylvester, who lives above the lunchroom and who was visiting with Cappi. The robbers fled in an automobile.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Dec. 27.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph.

I got my berries mixed up yesterday when I mentioned Stotesbury, when I meant Atterbury.

Will Rogers

Now I don't know which one to apologize to.

They say Japan imitates us in everything, but they certainly didn't get this idea from us. "In appointing an Ambassador to the U. S. at this important time, with the 1936 crisis ahead, such consideration as dignity, past career and sentiment must be discarded and a man of ability appointed."

Then they wonder why that country is going ahead. They appointed a fellow named Saito, who hadn't contributed a cent to the last campaign. Thats political treason.

Yours, WILL.

AGED BUSINESS MAN DIES

Henry P. Rosenfelter, granduncle of Thomas O. Hasley, county director of bridges and highways, died yesterday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Louisa Sprague, in St. Petersburg, Fla. Born in Oakland in 1850, he lived most of his life in Pittsburgh, and was well known in business circles here.

For the past several years he has resided at the home of Mr. Hasley, spending the winters with his daughter in Florida. He retired from business 20 years ago, after being head of the upholstery department of the McElveen Furniture Company for 25 years.

Besides Mrs. Sprague he leaves another daughter, Miss Mary Rosenfelter, of Pittsburgh, and three sisters, Mrs. Louisa Kaiser, of New York City; Mrs. George Grabe, of Los Angeles, and Mrs. Mollie Schoenberger, of Pittsburgh. Mrs. Schoenberger, at 93, is the oldest resident of Oakland.

Funeral services will be held at the Thomas B. Moreland funeral home in East Liberty.

$21,000 LEFT BY 3 WILLS

Annie M. Vaughan, of Jefferson Township, in her will asked that a friend, Mrs. Nellie Snee, be paid for caring for her. After providing for funeral expenses, she left the residue of a $2,000 estate to another friend, Hannah Griffiths, and names Charles Snee executor.

Mrs. Alice Briley, mother of Attorney John A. Briley, 5845 Center avenue, left a $12,000 estate to her son and to her daughter, Mrs. Mary Fritz, and named them executors.

John Schimmel, of 1325 Diana street, left a $7,000 estate to his wife, Auguste Schimmel, during her life and at her death to five children, excepting one son, Wilbert, who is to receive $10. He named his wife and son, Albert, executors.

Rare Biblical Codex Placed in Museum

LONDON, Dec. 27.—(INS.)—The codex sinaiticus, one of the rarest original manuscripts of the Bible in existence, was delivered to the British Museum under heavy guard today. It will be exhibited to the public in a glass case in the entrance hall.

The volume was purchased from the Soviet government by the British Museum and the British government.

WIDOW FLEES BLAZING HOME

Fire, caused by an overheated furnace, damaged the two-story frame home of Mrs. Ella Porter, 906 Mina street, Spring Hill, $1,500 last night.

Mrs. Porter, a widow, fled into the street after the flames had been discovered by William Weiss, 909 Mina street, who sounded an alarm. Mrs. Porter lives alone in the house.

Firemen fought the fire more than an hour and prevented it from spreading to adjacent homes.

SALAMANDERS PERFORM FOR GIRL SCIENTIST

Pitt Zoologist Tells Savants of Odd Experiment

BOSTON, Dec. 27.—Miss Helen Hilsman, youthful University of Pittsburgh zoologist, today told a gathering of eminent American scientists how she made salamanders lay eggs when they didn't want to.

Probably the youngest woman ever to appear before the American Association for the Advancement of Science—she is only 23—the Pittsburgh girl read a paper here as the gray-beards of the scientific world gathered for their second day's sessions.

The salamanders—or wrodles—were brought from Yale University to the Pitt laboratories and nurtured on things salamanders like to eat for nearly five years, she told.

And since salamanders should lay eggs in the season, some question of doubt arose about their ability when the fifth year came and there were no eggs.

Miss Hilsman, who has her master degree in things zoological, and is working for a doctor's degree, investigated.

She transplanted, over a period of 24 days, whole pituitary glands. That didn't work with the salamanders, so she tried a new experiment—injections of antuitrim. Egg-laying followed after the fourth injection—and what a lay. The first batch comprised 350 eggs, and succeeding ones brought the total to 500.

That was last spring—the time when salamanders are supposed to lay eggs.

MISS HELEN HILSMAN, URGING A SALAMANDER TO LAY AN EGG WHEN IT DOESN'T WANT TO

But last October, Miss Hilsman thought she'd try to have the wrodles lay more eggs. The salamanders were given a Christmas diet and, during November, after another series of injections, the newt (another name for the species) laid 500 eggs.

Which, totalling 1,000 eggs this year, makes that salamander eligible for a record even among the best of the egg-laying wrodles.

GARBAGE SITE HEARING JAN. 3

The County Commissioners will hear the pros and cons of garbage plants in Penn and Collier townships discussed at a hearing January 3.

A delegation, the majority from Penn Township, appeared yesterday to protest the establishment of reduction plants in their neighborhoods. Hearing was postponed when it appeared that the applicants for licenses had not been notified.

The Commissioners, under a new law, must grant licenses to concerns having contracts for garbage disposal or transportation. Forms for the licenses, for which three firms have applied, are being printed. Application of the firms ask two plants in Penn and two in Collier townships.

DECLARE CITY 'BUYS' STREETS

The city has been accused of buying 12,000 square feet of its own streets for playground purposes.

This is one of the objections raised in a bill in equity filed in Common Pleas Court opposing purchase of property from Florence M. Townsend at Chartiers and Lorenz avenues, Twentieth Ward, for $13,300.

'Free' Gold Mine Stock Warning Sounded

Warning—don't take any "free" gold mining stock.

Elton issued the warning today that some western gold mining companies were issuing shares free to Pittsburghers. The catch, he said, is that the stock is assessable and the new stockholders soon receive notices of assessment, which they must pay or give up the something they got for nothing.

Declaring there has been a marked increase in gold mining offerings, Elton said these were highly speculative. He urged investigation of individuals behind the issuing company.

Free-shares methods are a violation of the spirit of the Securities Act, if not the letter, Elton stated.

$2,000 Estate Awaits Peddler's Relatives

Thousands saw John Mitchell as he peddled needles and thread for more than two score years in the city, but none seemingly knew any more about him than that he was crippled and old and bent.

If there is any who knows more, the Orphans' Court is looking for that person. There is an estate of more than $2,000 to be distributed to Mitchell's heirs if they can be found.

Ralph W. Carson, appointed master in distribution of the estate, has been unable to find anyone who knows the least of the man's family history. Mitchell died in 1928. He was about 80 years old and lived at the Improvement of the Poor.

The estate, for the most part, consists of Liberty Bonds. The aged man carried them sewed in his clothing until the federal government persuaded him to get a safety deposit box. Mitchell lost them twice and reported the loss to the Treasury Department. They were recovered for him, and then were put in the box where they remained until his death.

If relatives are not found, the estate will become the property of the commonwealth.

MECHANIC SAYS HE WAS 'HIRED' TO KIDNAP, KILL BOY

VICTIM LURED TO DESERTED HOUSE

International News Service.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Dec. 27.—Authorities questioned Robert H. Wiles, jobless auto mechanic, further today in an effort to learn the identity of the person who assertedly "hired" him to kidnap Herbert Harris, Jr., 15-year-old high school boy found slain in a deserted house.

Behind the sheltering walls of the state penitentiary Wiles confessed, according to Sheriff Alex Heise, that he lured the youth to the farm house and there beat him to death when Harris tried to flee.

Wiles said he had been engaged by a second person to abduct the boy, whose wealthy father is a chain store executive here. Sheriff Heise said he was convinced that the mechanic had acted as an agent for another person.

SECOND MAN HELD

John M. Rushton, one-time employe of the elder Harris, was still being held at the penitentiary for questioning in the case. Rushton, although questioned at length, denied all knowledge of the asserted kidnaping and slaying.

The Sheriff hurried Wiles into the penitentiary office to prevent possible mob violence. Crowds gathered outside the forbidding prison walls when it was reported that Wiles had admitted beating the youth to death with an iron bar and hiding his victim's body beneath a pile of old cotton waste material in the abandoned farm house. The crowds remained orderly, however.

SEARCHERS FIND BODY

Sheriff Heise quoted Wiles as having admitted luring the Harris boy from his home last Saturday on the promise of employment. He took the youth to the lonely house in an automobile, he admitted.

Christmas Day the boy's body was found in the house by searching officers. Nearby was a length of iron bar that had served as a murder weapon.

BULLETS FATAL TO FATHER OF 'OUIJA' GIRL

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Ernest J. Turley, 46, retired naval officer, died in the Naval Hospital here yesterday from gunshot wounds inflicted by his daughter, Mattie, 15.

Authorities, at St. Johns, Ariz., the Turleys home, said the girl asserted she shot her father.

Turley was wounded last Thursday in his home and was rushed here in an airplane.

The daughter testified in an Arizona Juvenile Court that in an ouija board seance with her mother, the board told her to kill her father so her mother, Mrs. Dorothia Irene Turley, "could marry a young cowboy."

At St. Johns, Judge Lewis S. Udall, after hearing arguments of opposing counsel, last night took under advisement a petition for a writ of habeas corpus brought by Mrs. Turley, held as an accessory in the shooting.

Judge Udall indicated he might rule on the petition Thursday.

Mrs. Turley was bound over to Superior Court under $5,000 bond, and later was released on her own recognizance.

Mattie, who at her mother's preliminary hearing told of the alleged Ouija board seance and said her mother told her the "board could not be denied," pleaded guilty in Juvenile Court to a charge of attempted murder.

Judge Udall has under advisement the county attorney's recommendation she be sent to the State Industrial School for Girls for six years. He has indicated he will not pronounce sentence upon the girl until the case against her mother is settled.

Capone Gun Seized From Holdup Man

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Jack Whyte, horse owner and trainer, wrested an automatic pistol from one of three men who attempted to hold him up today, and police said it was from a consignment of 12 purchased for Al Capone, former Chicago gang leader, in 1929.

Another of the pistols from the lot, police said, was used in the slaying of Frankie Uale, New York gangster, in that city in the spring of the year.

New York Waiters' Strike Averted

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—A threatened strike of 30,000 organized waiters in New York City, scheduled for New Years Eve, has been temporarily averted by the Regional Labor Board.

Mrs. Elinore M. Herrick, acting chairman, said the union representatives promised to negotiate for a compromise agreement. The waiters objected to hour and wage provisions in the restaurant code now pending before President Roosevelt.

PAIR TO MARRY BY SEA PHONE

EL DORADO, Ark., Dec. 27.—There will be guests present on both sides of the Atlantic as Benjamin Lebowitz, 24, and Miss Weisz Hermina in Czechoslovakia, become man and wife via a trans-atlantic ceremony here tomorrow.

Lebowitz, a resident of El Dorado, will appear before Circuit Judge L. S. Britt, while his bride will be at Prague for the unusual ceremony. As the bride speaks no English her "yes" is to be translated and relayed to the United States by the United States Consul General, which will make her Mrs. Lebowitz at 4 p. m., Czechoslovakia time, although the bridegroom acquires his wife at 9 a. m., American time.

The bill for the phone ceremony will be at the rate of $36 for the first three minutes and $12 for each additional minute—the judge has promised to speed up the ceremony.

PAN-AMERICAN PARLEY ENDS

International News Service.

MONTEVIDEO, Dec. 27.—Delegates to the seventh Pan-American conference were leaving Montevideo today following a closing session which rang with harmony and was marked by another appeal to Bolivia and Paraguay to end their war in the Chaco.

American Secretary of State Cordell Hull was the central figure in this latest appeal, a gesture in the form of a surprise resolution, unanimously adopted with praise for Hull, urging the two nations to submit their conflict to arbitration.

The resolution pointed out that "honor" no longer was involved, and that "both nations can cease fighting with entire credit to themselves."

Then the parley adjourned, leaving the Chaco war, its only peace problem, unsolved and in the hands of the League of Nations' special investigating committee.

MUTE SLAYING HUNT PUSHED

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Search for William McMann, 20, in connection with the slaying of Miss Margaret Peevey, 22-year-old deaf mute, went forward with renewed vigor today after issuance yesterday of a warrant formally charging him with killing the young woman whose body was found in a meadow outside the city limits Saturday.

Shortly before the warrant was issued, Mann's mother and stepfather asked newspapers to publish an appeal from them that he give himself up.

An autopsy on the body of Miss Peevey showed she was slain about 9:30 p. m. Thursday. Three bullet wounds in the head caused her death, although two teeth had been knocked out and the girl had been otherwise mistreated.

Prosecutor Jonkman said today that authorities had established the shots fired into the girl's forehead and cheeks came from a pistol belonging to Judd Philpott, a special deputy sheriff. The weapon, authorities said, was borrowed from Philpott by McMann on Thursday and returned to him Friday morning.

Prosecutor Named By Predecessor

KANE, Pa., Dec. 27.—(AP.)—E. Gurdon Potter, of Smethport, is to be the new District Attorney of McKean County, by appointment of his predecessor, Charles C. Hubbard, chosen as president judge of the County Courts in the last election.

PRESBYTERIANS HOLD DANCE

Members of the Ben Avon Presbyterian Church held a congregational dinner at the Shannopin Country Club last night where the entertainment consisted of several song numbers, travel movies, short speeches, a recitation, dancing and bridge.

It was one of the first such affairs ever held by any church in the North Boroughs. More than 200 persons attended.

As for the dancing, the Rev. J. Howard Brinkerhoff, pastor of the church said:

"We must cater a little to youth. But don't think that we are featuring dancing on the evening's program. It is the minor part of the program."

And such was the case. The dancing—which was to radio music—did not start until after 11 o'clock and lasted less than an hour.

FATHER BURNED IN TREE FIRE

As Leo, the 9-year-old son of D. O. Tyler, 1464 Park boulevard, Dormont, was playing with his electric train under the Christmas tree in their home, the tree burst into flames.

The boy screamed for his father, who dashed from the kitchen, grabbed the flaming tree, and threw it from a window, severely buring his hands. Firemen who were summoned estimated the damage to the home at $200. The fire was believed to have been caused by a short circuit in the wiring.

DOOMED SLAYER GETS REPRIEVE

HUNTSVILLE, Tex., Dec. 27.—(AP.)—As he sat in death row scribbling a farewell note to his wife and mother, Paul Mitchell, 24, Lubbock, received word late yesterday his life had been spared by Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson for another 30 days.

Mitchell, condemned to electrocution shortly after midnight for a Lubbock grocery robbery in which a man was shot dead, jumped to his feet when he saw Emmett Moore, secretary to the warden, enter the death house with the reprieve.

RITES FOR SLAIN GIRLS HELD

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Funerals for two slain girls—one 8 years old, the other 15—were held in the heavy snow yesterday.

In the Polish Catholic Church at Hastings in Westchester County, services were held for 8-year-old Josephine Waropay, whose strangled body was found beneath a boys' clubhouse near her home early Sunday.

Two men are being held as suspects in the slaying. One of them, John Sulka, a 48-year-old laborer known locally as "Johnny the Greenhorn," police said, was heard by witnesses to have threatened to "kill" one of those kids teasing me."

In Manhattan a crowd of curious people forced the parents of 15-year-old Sarah Weiss, who was found beaten and strangled to death in front of a livery stable Sunday morning, to forego a synagogue funeral for their child and to hold only a brief service at the funeral parlors.

Detectives questioned more than 100 friends of the slain girl, but said they had made no progress in solving the case.

2 WOMEN SHOT OVER RENT

OAKLAND, Cal., Dec. 27.—(AP.)—The city jail holds Jack Kutsch, 61, safe from angry neighbors of the two women he allegedly shot because they failed to pay him rent due on a cottage.

Mrs. Adelia Wilmot, 40, shot through the body, was in a critical condition at a hospital where her less seriously wounded daughter, Mrs. Lois Maceto, 22, also was a patient.

Police said Kutsch admitted shooting the women yesterday while Vernon Wilmot, brother-in-law of Mrs. Maceto, and Victor Maceto, unemployed husband of the wounded woman, went in search of a policeman to restrain Kutsch. The women were preparing to move out of the cottage.

Kutsch was hurried to the jail when neighbors quickly gathered amid threats of summary violence to the landlord, who claimed he was owed $22.50 in back rent.

Roosevelt, Stalin Remembered in Will

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt and Chief Commissar Stalin, of Russia, each was bequeathed $1,000 by the will of L. G. McBurney, San Pedro, who died at his home yesterday.

McBurney left $1 each to his children "for reasons best known to themselves." The man died of a heart attack, and police, searching his effects, found the will.

N. Y. Society Woman Seeks Reno Divorce

SCHOOL TEACHER LINKS AMERICANS TO WOMAN SPY

FRANCE PUSHES ESPIONAGE INQUIRY

International News Service.

PARIS, Dec. 27.—Investigation of the alleged espionage ring uncovered here continued today with interrogation of Madeleine Mermet, French school teacher arrested in the series of raids which netted 18 prisoners.

Questioned by Examining Magistrate Benon, Mlle. Mermet gave evidence reported to link Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gordon Switz, of East Orange, N. J., two of the prisoners, with Mme. Lydia Stahl, mysterious Russian woman named by police as the "Mata Hari" of the ring.

Mlle. Mermet was reportet to have told the judge she first met Switz and his wife at a tea given by Mme. Stahl in the Latin quarter. Switz and his wife had told the judge they never met Mme. Stahl.

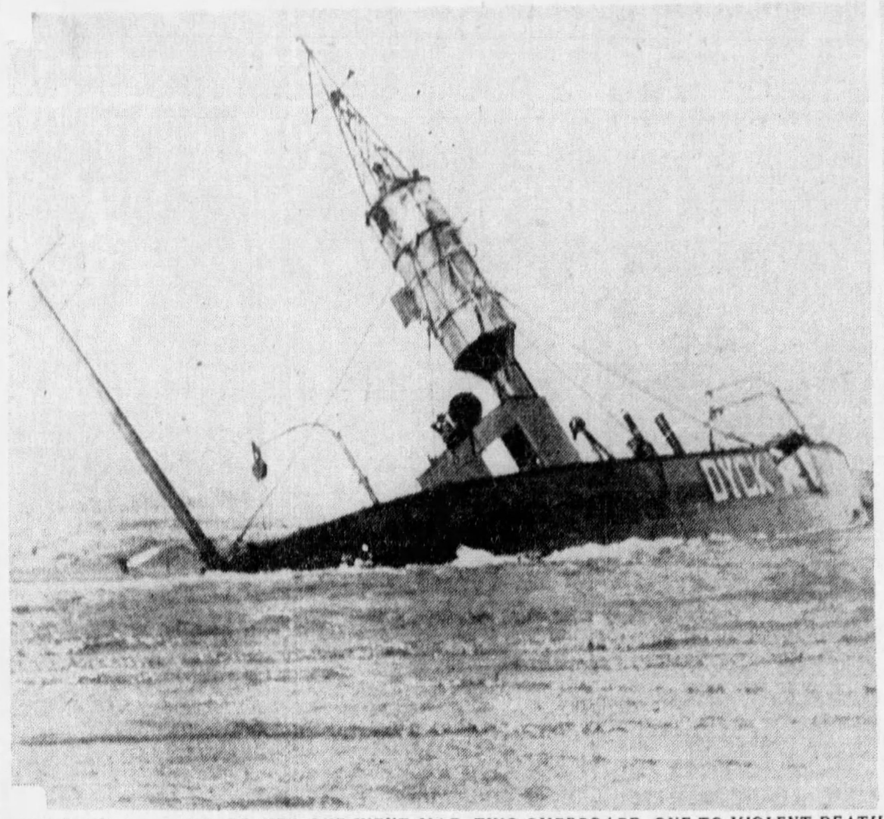
The Paris Midi stated it had learned Switz "spent many hours" at Mlle. Mermet's suburban apartment and once traveled to Berlin aboard the same train with her.

Mme. Stahl denied today that she had ever engaged in espionage work in the United States, as charged by the French authorities, or anywhere else. She said:

"I went to America because my child had died in France and I despaired of ever finding happiness here.

"I studied at Columbia University and obtained a master of arts degree."

A Drama of the Maddened Sea: Only Three of Seven Came Back Alive



THE DYCK . . . . ABOARD HER ONE WENT MAD, TWO OVERBOARD, ONE TO VIOLENT DEATH RESCUERS BRINGING ASHORE A SURVIVOR (CENTER) FROM THE DYCK, KING NEPTUNE'S NOW

The Lightship Dyck, off Gravelines, Scotland, on the rocks after a mad sea broke her moorings. Of seven men aboard her, three were rescued after an all-night battle to do so. Real life drama as one walked out of the roaring sea. One sailor went mad, leaped overboard, two were swept away, one killed. These are Wide World News Photograph Service pictures.

RETAIL COUNCIL ENLARGED

The new Retail Trade Council was enlarged to include representation of nine more trade classifications, at a final organization meeting in the Chamber of Commerce yesterday.

Leo Lehman is president, Irwin D. Wolf, vice president, and James Green, secretary of the organization, set up by the Chamber of Commerce on authority of the National Recovery Administration, to supervise operation of the retail code in the Pittsburgh trading area.

Funds for its operation will be raised by assessing each retail establishment under its jurisdiction on the basis of number of employes.

THEFT OF WINE HOLDS BOYS

Accused of breaking into the home of an uncle on Christmas night and stealing a 10-gallon jug of grape wine, Joseph Koskoden, 17, of 3207 Juliet street, was held for court in Morals Court today.

William Connors, 19, of 3237 Parkview avenue, was held for court in connection with the same offense. A third youth in the case has not been apprehended. The charge was entering a building.

The Koskoden boy's uncle, Nicholas Bancale, of 3226 Juliet street, preferred the charges. He said he valued the wine at $50.

WEST VIEW MAN DENIED DIVORCE

The names he testified his wife called him do not constitute sufficient grounds for a divorce, Judge Thomas M. Marshall decided at a hearing today on charges brought by William J. Kelleher, of 142 Chalfont street, West View, against his wife, Mrs. Catherine Kelleher of Carnegie avenue.

The husband testified his wife called him vile names. She denied it, making counter charges that he did not buy her enough food or clothing. She declared he had not bought her any clothing since their marriage in January, 1930. Kelleher, asked when he last bought clothing for his wife, testified:

"I don't remember."

Judge Marshall said:

"Under the testimony, I cannot see my way clear to grant a divorce and unless you can offer further testimony, you might as well save the cost of the record."

NEWSIES TO BE MOVIE GUESTS

More than a thousand Sun-Telegraph home delivery carrier boys are scheduled for their annual Christmas entertainment when they gather at the Davis Theater tomorrow morning for a talking picture show through the courtesy of Harry Kalmine, general director of the Warner Theaters in this area.

A characteristic boys' picture—"Telegraph Trail"—has been selected. It stars John Wayne, a favorite with all youngsters who like adventure in the films. Then there will be comedies, newsreels and short subjects.

The big show will start at 9:30 o'clock in the morning, so that it will not interfere with the regular showing of "Alice in Wonderland," the holiday attraction at the Davis. Admission to the carrier boys' affair will be by ticket only.

TROLLEY MEN FIGHT TAXIS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Street railwaymen of the country joined their employers in a drive to force out low-rate taxi competition by placing the taxicab companies under a code of fair competition.

A letter to the National Recovery Administration, signed by W. D. Mahon, international president of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway and Bus Operators of America, said the workers "are now being threatened with destruction by a 'cutthroat' system of competition by cehap, irresponsible taxicab companies," and that the industry is not going to be able to pay code wages if the taxi competition continues.

5 Men Die in Wreck As Train Hits Cattle

CALVERT, Tex., Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Three members of the crew and two hoboes were killed when a Missouri Pacific freight train struck some livestock and was derailed near here shortly after midnight.

R. J. Delhomme, 48, engineer; Fred Wallace, 45, fireman, and Otis Green, 47, brakeman, were killed when the engine and eight cars left the track. The two tramps, riding in a refrigerator car which turned over, were not immediately identified.

NEFF PLEA LOST IN WIFE KILLING

International News Service.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Dec. 27.—With the jury's verdict upheld by the Court of Appeals at Toledo, Cyrus H. Neff, wealthy Canfield lumber dealer, convicted wife slayer, today was ordered to prepare for entrance to the Columbus penitentiary to begin serving a life term.

An appeal was heard a few weeks ago on a point of change of venue from this district. The Common Pleas verdict of second degree murder was upheld by 2-to-1, Judge Harry Lloyds dissenting. In his opinion Judge Lloyds held Neff was guilty only to the grade of manslaughter and suggested modification of the life sentence. The majority, however, affirmed the jury decision.

Mrs. Neff was fatally shot last October 20 while asleep on a couch in her home. Police said death resulted from a charge of a shotgun in the hands of her husband. The defendant had contended the shooting was accidental.

An appeal to the State Supreme Court may be taken.

Eagles Ask Return Of Keys, Papers Taken in Raid

A rule was granted in Federal Court upon United States Attorney H. S. Dumbauld and prohibition authorities to show cause why papers and two keys seized by prohibition agents in a building in St. Marys, Pa., November 3, should not be returned and alcohol seized suppressed as evidence.

The petitioners are Thomas Ritter, Fred C. Ritter, Albert T. Lenze and Fred Hoehne. One of the keys, the petition avers, was for the lodge and social rooms of the Fraternal Order of Eagles of St. Marys.

GAS OVERCOMES 57 WORKERS

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Seven persons were rushed to hospitals yesterday and 50 others were affected by carbon monoxide gas on the nineteenth floor of a building in the garment district where all the windows had been closed due to the snow storm outside.

A number of gas-operated machines were in operation in the dress manufacturing department of Rhinelander and Schwartz on West Thirty-ninth street.

About 4:30 p. m. the first employe collapsed, and before police emergency crews and ambulances arrived more than 50 men and women had collapsed on the floor.

None of the seven taken to hospitals were in a serious condition, but physicians feared pneumonia threatened them as a result of the carbon monoxide they inhaled.

EASTERN PEN'S WARDEN UPHELD

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Given a vote of confidence by the prison board of trustees, Warden Herbert Smith, of the Eastern State Penitentiary, today set about putting a rehabilitation program into effect and prepared to receive an assistant.

The trustees, at a special meeting yesterday, created the position of assistant warden and approved the program suggested by Gov. Pinchot's investigating commission, headed by Dr. Louis N. Robinson.

The program, calling for extensive educational and welfare activities among the prisoners, was recommended by the commission while it was investigating the conditions that led to riots at the penitentiary in September and again in November.

WARNS NUDISTS ON SUNLIGHT

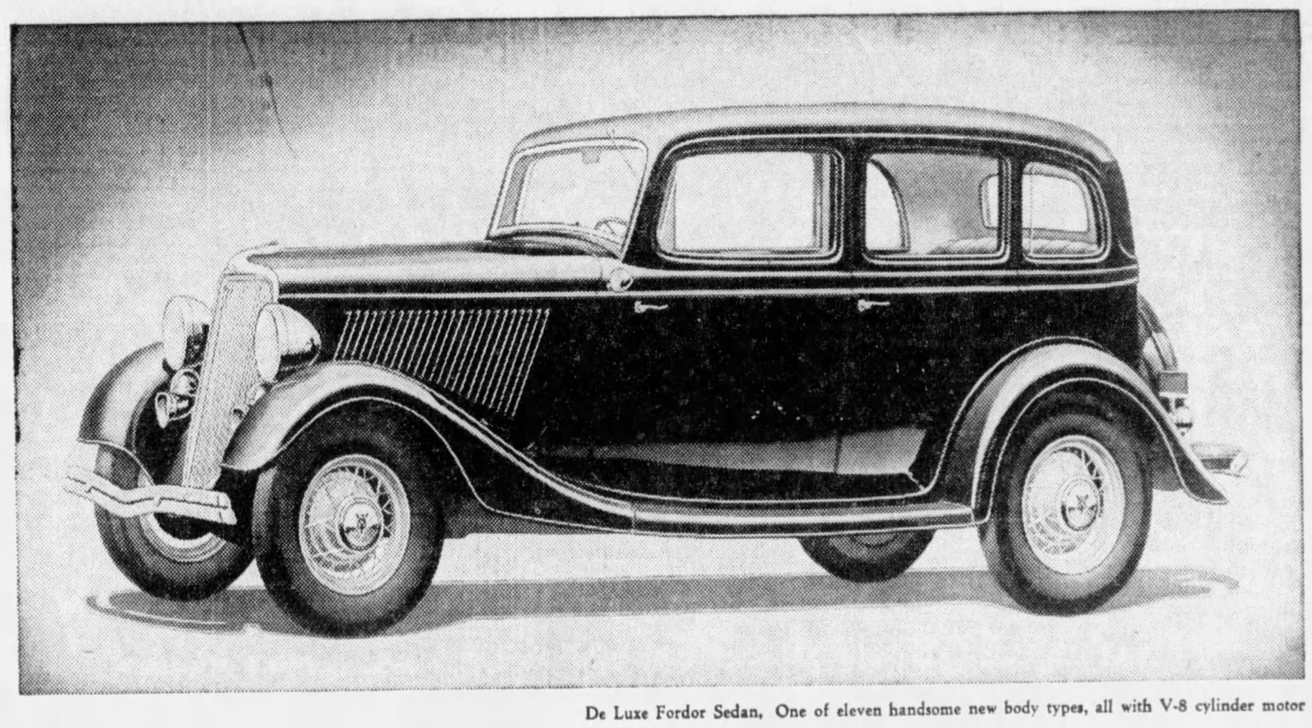
CHICAGO, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—There are, in the opinion of Dr. Carl Loeb, too many new wrinkles under the sun.

The doctor, president of the International Biotherapy Association, speaking at the organization's convention, gave out a warning to nudists, saying:

"Sunlight has the same effect on the body as on the top of an automobile. It causes dehydration and premature wrinkling.

"The nudists are victims of a mistaken fad, for by increasing the speed of metabolism, and consequently, of living, their addiction to sunlight causes the body to age more rapidly."

A Real Advance in Motor Car Engineering



De Luxe Fordor Sedan, One of eleven handsome new body types, all with V-8 cylinder motor

NEW DUAL CARBURETION AND DUAL INTAKE MANIFOLD ADD TO POWER AND ECONOMY OF THE NEW FORD V-8 FOR 1934

LIKE a pair of lungs for this powerful motor, this new system of carburetion and intake supplies vaporized gasoline evenly to all eight cylinders. Two distinct advantages result from it:

1. More even compression of fuel, giving still greater power, faster acceleration, quicker starting and smoother performance in cold weather.

2. More complete utilization of fuel, more miles to the gallon of gasoline, with consequent economy. Crankcase dilution is reduced to a minimum, thereby conserving oil with still further economy in operation.

Increased efficiency at less cost is a notable achievement. Yet it is only one of many improvements which distinguish this new and greater Ford V-8 for 1934.

Clear-vision Ventilation. Constant Supply of Fresh Air without Drafts or Obstruction to View

As perfected in the New Ford, this system of ventilation operates efficiently at all speeds, winter or summer.

In cold or stormy weather, the new adjustable window ventilators can be opened the desired amount to provide fresh air. Individual control on front door and rear-quarter windows enables passengers to obtain desired ventilation without causing discomfort to others. Windshield and windows do not fog when ventilators are opened.

In warm weather, the windshield—which opens—and the cowl ventilator provide additional fresh air.

This New Ford is a more comfortable car. It has new spring flexibility, improved shock absorbers, softer seat springs, and deeper seat cushions.

But above all it is an efficient and economical car, a wonderful value for the price, and an automobile on which you can depend for long and satisfactory service.

Some 'Abused' Youngsters Are Just Pests

Why do the family pick on Dolly?

Is it just because they're horrid and unfair and "have it in for her"?

Or is there maybe another reason?

Dear Elsie:

I am so miserable that I can hardly stand it, and I wish that you would help me.

I am the younger of two sisters, and the family just pick on me all the time. Everything Sis does is okay with them, because she is the family darling, while nothing I do is ever right.

I am 18 and Sis is 20. Whatever she does is simply perfect, but the whole family is forever slamming me and telling me about my faults. They never yell at her about what time she comes home or where she goes, but if I dare to stay out late I get landed on.

Lots of times we have regular battles at home, because I tell my mother and brother that they are not fair and give Sis all the breaks. Then my mother will tell me that I never think of anyone else—that I am too loud, too selfish, and downright mean.

Sis and I never can seem to agree about anything, either. She is quiet and "goody-goody," while I am full of life and pep, and love a good time. And that seems to make the whole family sore at me. Even Dad yells at me, though he never scolds her.

DIFFERENT TASTES

I just can't stand it. I can't see why they can't treat me decently, but I guess I am just the family goat. It makes me so mad! I can't even turn on a radio program that I like. Sis and Mom like heavy stuff—symphonies and such—and I like jazz, but I hardly ever get to listen to it. If I turn off one of their programs and hunt for one I like, they get mad and yammer at me. I don't see why they can't realize that I am full of life, and like lively music, and let me listen to it when I want to. Symphonies bore me to death.

Sometimes I think I will leave home and go some place where I will be appreciated. I have a job and I could do it. But I suppose that would start a lot more battles.

Why do they treat me like a stepchild? Do all families make pets of older sisters, or are mine more unfair than the rest of them?

What can I do? DOLLY.

Why do the family pester you?

Do you really want to know? I warn you it will hurt, youngster—but if you have the courage to take it it will save you far worse misery.

The family probably pester you because you're a pest.

Yes, I know. You think you're a poor, abused martyr. But my guess is that you're just what Mom told you you were—a selfish, spoiled little brat, with no consideration for other folks. Why don't they yell at Sister? Because she has learned to give other folks a break. Why do they yell at you? Because you haven't.

THINK OF OTHERS

If you want to be treated with the same consideration as Sister, earn that kind of treatment. Stop throwing tantrums, and see how many nice things you can do for her, for Mom. Think of someone besides yourself. Act regular and you'll be treated regular.

As for "not liking the things you like"—that will happen wherever you go. The mere fact that people are of one blood is no guarantee that they'll share a single taste. But one can bridge these difficulties with kindliness in the home, just as one does outside the home.

Leave home? Well, it might be good for you, youngster. You might have some sense thumped into your head.

For don't fool yourself that the world is going to "appreciate" you, if you show it the same faults you're showing the folks.

And, while you're about it, you'll find it profitable to thank Mom for trying to make you the kind of young lady the world will appreciate! For that's what she's doing. She realizes, if you don't, that the world will wallop you plenty, if you can't learn to play the game with the rest of the team.

Fay King Tells Parents' Side of Children's Early Marriages

By FAY KING.

Naturally all good parents hope to see their children married and happily settled in life.

But parents do not like children to rush into matrimony the moment school days are over. They would have them enjoy a few youthful years free from the cares and responsibilities the best of marriages brings.

Also, is it too much to ask for a few years of appreciation from their children for the many years of love, care and expense parents gave to bring them up from babyhood?

First loves are often only the infatuation of propinquity, which passes. Too youthful wives or husbands often become but added dependents in parental homes.

Madge Assigns Avis to Her Own Room—for Safety

Dicky gave a distinct start as I acquiesced in Avis Arlen's suggestion that the couch in the library would do her admirably for a bed.

"What the—" he began aggressively, but I nipped his knee with my forefinger and thumb, and he obediently choked back the rest of the diatribe.

"Didn't you see that cat?" I said with the air of an expert back seat driver. "You almost ran over her. Really, dear, you ought to watch the road more carefully."

Dicky caught the cue and played up to it with realistic fervor.

"My husband is a wonderful driver, "I said unctuously. "He always comes so near to hitting things that he keeps my heart in my mouth almost all of the time—or he did, until I became used to him."

"That's better," Dicky murmured, almost upsetting my laughter muscles again.

"But he never hits anything," I went on, then amended my dictum quickly with "that is, hardly ever," which brought a growl from Dicky.

"What did I ever hit?" he demanded, and I answered demurely:

"I can't remember."

SPEEDS AUTOMOBILE

"I'll bet you can't," he said triumphantly, and Avis giggled appreciatively. Before she could make any comment, however, Dicky spoke decisively.

"Look here, girls! I don't want to cramp your style, but I'm going to do some tall stepping on it as soon as we've rounded the next corner, and I wish you'd close the sound traps until we get home. You'll be talking enough then, so you can afford to rest your faces now. I'm a bit nervous this afternoon, for some reason or other."

"I'll be just as still as a little mouse," Avis promised coyly, and I had hard work to keep from laughing aloud as he murmured, "She means as a little rat. She's too complimentary to herself."

He kept his promise to do "some tall stepping on it." I never have known him to drive at such speed or with such superb skill. I was not at all afraid, but I heard little gasps and smothered exclamations from the rear seat, which told me that Avis was not as fond of fast driving as she had claimed to be.

When we turned in at the gateway to the farm, however, she was absolutely ecstatic in her praise of Dicky's driving, and when he had helped her to alight, she seized his hand and looked up at him coyly.

"Promise me that some time you'll let me ride beside you in the front seat, while you go as fast as that. I was envying Mrs. Graham all the way. Oh, do say you will!"

WELCOME PARTY

"You'll have to ask Mrs. Graham about that," Dicky said with a broad grin. "She always arranges my feminine dates for me. The line forms on the right, and she checks 'em off."

"Oh, lovely fun!" she gurgled, and then the door opened and our young people came rushing out in as beautifully staged a welcome party as they would have given any of their own mates.

"Avis! What a darling surprise!" Marion cried, and Carolyn echoed, while Ronald and Bob, evidently groomed for their roles within an inch of their lives, came rushing up to her with hearty welcoming hands.

"Hurry up, darling," Marion said. "We're getting ready for the rehearsal of the wedding march. We'll take you in and feed you first, and then we'll begin."

"Oh, but I can't go in it this way," Avis cried. "I'm simply a sight, all blown to pieces. I must prink a bit. Where did you say I could dress, dear Mrs. Graham?"

It was with malicious joy that I answered her.

"You will dress where you are going to sleep, Avis—in my room."

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Hernia Is Due to Weak Muscles

It is quite common to compare the human body to a machine. Like anything in the way of mechanical construction, it may be due to the use of inferior material, not putting it properly together, or it may be the result of constant wear and tear.

Dr. Copeland.

Contrary to the popular belief "hernia" or "rupture", as it is commonly called, is not a disease. It is a defect due to muscular weakness. This weakness exists in several locations of the body, such as around the umbilicus or "belly button," and in the groin.

As a rule, the defect is present at birth, but it is not detected until adult life. It may disappear during the development of the body, but usually the weakness becomes more and more marked. The rupture is increased by manual labor, especially work that requires sudden and forceful exertion, like lifting.

I am glad to say that hernia is no longer neglected as it was in former years. In those days the victims of hernia avoided the necessary operation. They dreaded "the knife" and resorted to the use of a mechanical appliance called a truss.

The trusses are likely to be uncomfortable. They often cause more pain than an operation and rarely, if ever, cure or have any permanent valuable effect on the rupture. In fact, many surgeons believe that in some cases it is more harmful to wear a truss than it is to leave the rupture alone.

But do not neglect a rupture. Bear in mind the operation for the correction of this defect is a simple one and not to be feared. It is dangerous to delay since it may become necessary to have an emergency operation. This occurs when loops of intestine become caught in the hernial sac. This causes what is called "strangulated hernia" and requires immediate operation. In such cases the convalescence is prolonged and more difficult than that following a simple hernia operation.

I am often asked, "when is the best time to perform an operation for rupture in a child." If the health of the child is good and he has developed normally the operation may be performed as early as the fifth year. In cases of underweight and undernourishment, it is best to delay the operation until the child is well and strong.

Consult with your doctor about this simple operation. It is unwise to carry this handicap through life. Bear in mind that the best results obtained by operation are those performed in early life.

Perhaps you are unaware of having this physical defect. When next you visit your doctor ask him whether you show any evidence of it. This can easily be determined by a routine physical examination.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Table Talk

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—Is it right to eat fish with your fingers at any time?

2—If coffee or any other drink is served in a cup, should it be sipped from a spoon or from the cup?

3—When a meal is finished, who should get up from the table first—the hostess or the guest? When and in what manner should such a meal be thanked for? H.

1—No; fish should be eaten with a fork, or with a fish knife and fork, or with the luncheon knife and fork.

2—The first few sips are taken with the spoon . . . to test the heat . . . and the rest of the liquid is drunk from the cup. This is true for coffee, tea, consomme, bouillon, and so forth.

3—The guests look to the hostess for the signal to rise. That is, they do not rise until she does. When the guest leaves the party, he or she thanks the hostess and the host for a "happy time" or for "a most pleasant evening" or "for your delightful hospitality" . . . something like that. Usually the food isn't mentioned, being considered as part of the hospitality.

The Engagement Ring

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have been going with a fine young man several years and due to the present circumstances, we have only become engaged this September.

He is working a few days a week . . . earning but a small amount, and as I know he cannot afford the size diamond he would like to present, and as I have what I think is a fair-sized stone, would it be all right to have a sapphire for my engagement ring, which is my birthstone, and would be within his means? Or would it be better to use my stone and have two beautiful blue sapphires on either side? READER.

Anything that the bride-to-be decides that she would like to do about her engagement ring is proper. It isn't at all necessary for you to have a diamond ring for your engagement ring . . . and under the circumstances, you shouldn't, I agree with you, think of doing this. It will be thoroughly correct for you to use either your stone, or to carry out the other plan you mention for the ring. And I like your spirit of co-operation and understanding about the ring!

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

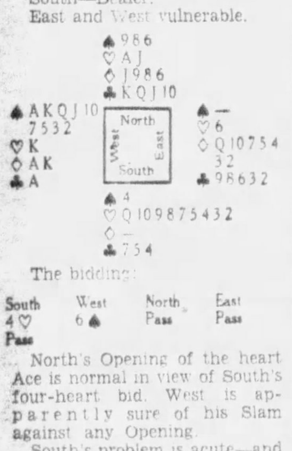
By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Imaginative Play

The good Contract Bridge player requires a combination of qualities. One is mathematical ability. Another, which is equally important and in some cases even more so, is the quality of imagination.

The hand below, in which Mr. Walter Wyman, of Arlington, Mass., held the South cards, is a splendid example of imaginative play. Mr. Wyman's unusual defensive play enabled his partner to know the exact distribution of every high card and also the exact distribution of each suit at the end of the first trick. Here are the hands and the bidding:

South—Dealer.
East and West vulnerable.



The bidding:

South	West	North	East
4♡	6♠	Pass	Pass
Pass

North's Opening of the heart Ace is normal in view of South's four-heart bid. West is apparently sure of his Slam against any Opening.

South's problem is acute—and without apparent solution. West may have the King-Knave of hearts and be counting on a heart Opening for his Slam contract, but it is more likely that he holds only a singleton heart—either King or Knave—since North may hold the Ace-King, or even Ace-King-Knave, with West void.

In case West holds both the King and Knave North has but the singleton Ace and must shift. If North holds the Ace-Knave then West has the singleton King, and as Dummy is void of trumps North might continue with the heart Knave to force Declarer, even though South played the heart deuce. For North could well reason that South could not possibly know that West's King would drop on the first trick.

South solved the problem by playing the heart Queen, denying the King and asking for a shift. North was frankly puzzled for a moment, for his own holding of the Knave barred the "Queen Play" from Queen-Knave-Ten. But since South was clearly denying the King, it could only be to ask North to shift.

Note the perfect count North gets on the West hand with only one trick played. As South would not ask for a shift without a trump, this limits West's spades to nine, as North has three. As North holds solid clubs except the Ace, West must have either the singleton Ace or be void of clubs. But West cannot have three diamonds as he has a "sure" heart loser and the Queen of diamonds in Dummy could not be known to him, and anyway, all but two of the diamonds are in sight. Hence one heart, the King, plus one club, plus nine spades, plus the only two missing diamonds, the Ace and King, must be West's complete holding.

This diamond Ace-King count proves South to be void. Four diamonds are in the North hand; seven on the table; and West's located Ace-King leaves no diamonds for South, and South's distribution is absolutely marked as 1-9-0-3.

At every other table the contract was made with ease. Strangely, few Souths attempted to pre-empt, and where they did, North led two rounds of hearts.

TODAY'S QUESTION

♡ A J 9 8 2

South is playing a heart declaration and the lead is in Dummy. How should he play the trump suit?

Answer—Lead the seven from Dummy and if East plays small play the deuce. On getting into Dummy again, lead the five and finesse the eight unless East plays high. In this way four tricks may be made in trumps if King-Ten or Queen-Ten are with East.

Give Child Mental Start

By LISA GRENELLE

"I can't concentrate." How many times have you heard that despairing cry from grown men and women—from writers and such who must creep away into some quiet corner before they can work; from those whose train of thought is irretrievably broken by the slightest disturbance?

Apparently a moody and illusive lady is concentration, a lady who can be relied upon only by the very few who have made her acquaintanceship early in life—possibly at the age of three!

Of course the schools are supposed to attend to developing concentration in children as they are supposed to attend to so much—part of that happy American illusion, that by sending a child to a good school you can more or less wash your hands of him and he will come out all right.

Certainly every good school will make an effort to teach their pupils concentration. But with nothing to start on, and little or no co-operation at home, it is impossible that any mental habit can have roots. The moment the school room pressure is lifted, the rootless twigs topple over.

To have sufficient root to stand the storm and distraction of life, any mental habit must be first grown and planned in the nursery. Concentration should not be taught first over a lesson book, but over a box of blocks.

And what exactly is concentration? Simply the habit of mental control, the ability to focus the entire attention and thought upon the matter in hand so that it may be easily and quickly dispatched.

A child can be taught concentration with his first steps. Remind him to keep his attention on what he is doing. Refuse to have your own attention withdrawn; answer no questions that do not pertain to it. Give him only one toy at a time to play with, and interrupt him in his play as little as possible.

I know this may sound impossible at times. You have an appointment at the doctor's in 10 minutes; supper is on the table, and so forth. But a little planning ahead will make most interruptions unnecessary.

Don't let Bobby start what you know he will not have time to finish. Start Bobby getting ready to go out, or to dress, in plenty of time so that he will not feel hurried, and will have time to tidy up his toys.

When Bobby has learned to concentrate alone in his own room—to finish whatever he commences, as a matter of course—take him into the sitting room where you are working. Let him learn to concentrate there despite the simple distractions of your presence, the telephone ringing, and so forth.

Refuse to answer his questions until he has completed his task. Remind him that you, too, are busy and cannot be interrupted. In this way you both give him the example and teach him consideration. You can do him no greater service.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Keen and eager ladies who go in for hand painted complexions have found a new field for their art. They are concentrating on eyelids and results vary. Shadows placed on eye shutters can be subtle, or they can be scenic. It is the subtle touch that the wise gal is after. An enchanting effect is achieved when there is nothing more than a line of blue, green or purple close to the lashes, doing a fade away as it creeps toward the eyebrow. To be extremely tra-la, the lashes should be of the same coloring. One has to be brave and bold to attempt that tricky touch. Most of us are content to let winkers stay as is, or to brush lightly with mascara.

By two means can eyebrows and lashes take on the color of the raven's wings. They can be touched lightly with a tabloid brush that has been skimmed over the mascara bar or they can be dyed. Mascara does a disappearing act when it comes in contact with a wash cloth. A single tear can turn it into a muddy smudge. But the dye sticks like a friend and a brother. We must caution the beautifying dearhearts against home dyeing. It almost can't be done, and there is danger of getting the coloring agent in the eyes which is bound to lead to serious trouble, no matter how harmless it may be. Beauty shops do the work for a moderate charge.

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Coaches' Action Popular. Fans Back Suggestions. Mack Smart Financier. Origin of Grid Numbers. High Rank for Willigs. Fight Won By Instinct.

Having opposed some of the rules in question when they were first written into the code, football fans in general naturally will approve the action of the country's coaches in recommending the changing or repeal of those regulations. This business of adopting rules one year and abolishing them a few seasons later indicates there is entirely too much experimenting, and that the interests of football would be better served if, as in baseball and other sports, a code once proved satisfactory were allowed to stand. But there can be no objection to the righting of mistakes, and it will hardly be denied that it was a mistake to adopt in the first place some of the statutes which the coaches now seek to alter or abolish.

Harry Kipke

Even though they may have been actuated to some extent by business motives in following the lead of the pros after seeing the latter gain public favor by making several of these changes a year ago, Harry Kipke and his co-mentors must be said to be helping the college game by recommending the abolition of the dead ball and fumble rules, thus permitting of forward passing from any point behind the scrimmage line, the widening of the sideline zone from 10 to 15 yards, the return of the goal posts to the goal line, and the changing of the forward pass rule so that an incomplete pass into the end zone will mean the loss of the ball only on fourth down. The recommendations tend to give the offense some needed help, encourage forward passing, revive field-goal kicking and bring more scoring, and it's to be hoped the rules committee at its meeting in February will adopt the suggestions, at least in part.

MACK MAKES RARE RECORD AS FINANCIER

Connie Mack may be criticized, and justly, for the deal he gave Philadelphia fans in wrecking their club for cash, and according to reports he couldn't keep the A's out of financial difficulties during the last year. But when his record for buying and selling players is scanned Connie must be ranked as baseball's greatest financier.

Mack bought Lefty Grove from Baltimore in the fall of 1924 for $100,600, got nine seasons of sensational work out of the star southpaw during which his club won three pennants and two world championships, and then sold the pitcher for $125,000. Connie obtained Mickey Cochrane from Portland in 1925, got the benefit of his services all these years as the best catcher in baseball, and then sold him to Detroit for $100,000. Max Bishop cost $50,000 and Rube Walberg only $4,500, and now Connie gets $50,000 and two players for the pair.

DAVIS CONFIRMS USE OF NUMBERS IN 1908

Comes a letter from Karl E. Davis, former graduate manager of athletics at Pitt and now at Western Reserve in Cleveland, confirming the Sun-Telegraph's recent statement that, though the distinction has been claimed for other cities years afterward and the Football Guide fixes the time as late as 1915, Pittsburgh introduced the numbering of gridiron players at old Exposition Park in 1908. Davis reveals that the late Bob Murphy and W. & J. cooperated with Pitt in the first wearing of numbers, and that Pop Warner, then coaching the Carlisle Indians, refused to go along, fearing that the local men were aiming to spot his redskins.

Pop Warner

"Your article regarding the numbering of football players was absolutely correct," Davis writes. "It is a fact that we started numbering the boys in Pittsburgh back in 1908 and were the first in the country to do it. Moe Kornblum, Walter Smith and I started the plan. I figured that if men in track meets wore numbers, football men should do likewise, to help the game. Frequently I left games without knowing who had made important plays, and the spectators were in the same boat.

"I finally prevailed on Bob Murphy, of W. & J., to let his team wear the numbers. Pop Warner demurred and refused to wear them, as he thought we were trying to spot his Indians by numbering them. We had large numbers painted on oil cloth and changed the numbers for each game. In other words, Tex Richards would wear No. 8 in one game, and No. 20 in the next. Now a player wears the same number all year. We guarded the numbers carefully and had the oilcloth sewed on the jerseys every Friday night. It was a great success. The game was improved greatly, and eventually the system was adopted officially in 1915, but we beat them by seven years. I am writing to Parke Davis, of the Football Guide, to correct the erroneous assertion that numbers were not used until 1915."

VET RANKS WILLIGS BEST SINCE MORRYS

Johnny Freund, basketball veteran, who is promoting the game between the Rosenblum Celtics and McKeesport Willigs to be played in a cage at Motor Square Garden tomorrow night, rates the Willigs as the best independent team this section has boasted in several years. He insists that they have not been approached by any team since Joe Goldman's Morrys.

There is no doubting the class of a lineup that includes Smith, Lawry, Brand, Crum and Rice. Those players come close to being the pick of the best in the independent ranks around here, and the impressive manner in which they defeated some of the Western Pennsylvania college teams indicates that with their speed, cleverness and exceptional shooting they may give the famous Celtics plenty of trouble.

INSTINCT CARRIES LOUGHRAN TO VICTORY

Reviewing with Joe Vila his hardest fights of the past, Tommy Loughran, who will get a shot at the world heavyweight championship in a match with Primo Carnera at Miami on February 22, disclosed there was one battle in which he fought his way out of a hole and then on to victory without knowing what he was doing. It was his meeting with Leo Lomski in New York on January 6, 1928, when Tommy was light-heavyweight champion. Right after the first bell, Lomski nailed Tommy with a hard right to the chin and floored him for a count of nine. Near the end of the round, another smashing right made Tommy fold up and sink in sections, and only the gong saved him from being counted out.

Leo Lomski

In the second round, Lomski fought desperately for a knockout, but Loughran fended off the blows with his left, crossed his right to Leo's jaw and gave a remarkable exhibition of boxing that indicated he had the fight well in hand. He kept it up in the later rounds, and though Lomski always was dangerous, Tommy went on to win the decision with plenty to spare. After the fight, Loughran was amazed to learn from his manager, Joe Smith, that he had been knocked down twice in the first round. It developed that he remembered nothing from the instant he was hit the first time until he found himself moving out for the fifth chukker. Instinct alone had kept him going.

Back in 1929, Al Norgard played just two minutes as a substitute for St. Ignatius College against the West Coast Navy eleven in a game won by his team, 12-0. As a result of the discovery of this he has been declared ineligible to compete further for Stanford University and is barred from the Tournament of Roses game against Columbia University at Pasadena, Cal., New Year's Day. Columbia has asked that the ban be lifted, but Stanford insists upon enforcing the rule limiting varsity competition to three seasons. Norgard was a star. He snagged the forward pass which defeated California this year. Columbia is emulating Pitt's policy of last year in drilling for a week at Tucson, Ariz., prior to moving into California, and first photograph of a workout there is shown above. Despite the loss of Norgard, Stanford remains a prime favorite to win the Rose Bowl football classic battle. This is an International News Photograph Service picture.

AMATEUR CUP BATTLES HEAD SOCCER CARD

By TOM BIRKS

Two national amateur cup frays head the district soccer card this week-end as the Riehls, of Castle Shannon, hook up with Morgan, probably at Greenlee Field, and Moon Run plays a return engagement with Gallatin at Moon Run.

The national amateur cup commissioner made known the draw today. Inasmuch as Morgan proved to be such a good drawing card in Pittsburgh against the Rochester Celtics, it is believed that Greenlee Field will get the Riehls-Morgan clash.

Monday, the annual American-born and foreign-born match is scheduled for Greenlee Field.

Four games are carded in the Central League Saturday. Union Switch goes to Carnegie, the Pittsburgh Rovers and the Dunwicks have the Lawrenceville district all to themselves, Clan Douglas faces Ambridge and the Aliquippa eleven travels to Warrington Park to meet Beltzhoover. Arsenal is idle.

One game will be played in the West Penn open tourney, Heidelberg and Sturgeon clashing at Heidelberg.

With the announcement from the United States Football Association that a representative soccer team will be selected and sent to the International meet to be held in Italy during the first two weeks in June it is likely that the local governing body will start to work making some suggestions to the national body regarding players from this district. Mike Bookie, former Curry star, was on the team four years ago and went to the international games in South America.

DUNLAP WINS MEDAL HONOR

PINEHURST, N. C., Dec. 27.—(AP.)—George T. Dunlap, Jr., of New York, playing his first competitive golf since winning the National Amateur title at Cincinnati last fall, yesterday won the medal in the thirty-first annual Pinehurst mid-winter championship with a 37-35—72.

Dunlap's score, one over par, was the same with which he took the medal in this tournament last year, but was registered under more difficult conditions. Rains had left the long course slow and showers fell at intervals during the champion's round. Dunlap's nearest rival, Eric D. Thomson, of St. Andrews, N. B., was six strokes away with a 41-37—78.

Halbert J. Blue, of Pittsburgh, a finalist in the tournament last year, took an 85 and Dick Wilson of Southern Pines, who recently tied Dunlap's course record of 65, an 80. Wilson and R. P. Davidson, of Washington, who also shot an 80, tied for third place in the qualifying list.

Chillysauce

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

A greeting card from Jewel Ens recalls Jewel's favorite Christmas story, heretofore unpublished. It seems that when Jewel was manager of the Pirates he visited the home of Groundkeeper Jack Fogarty and the seven little Fogartys when the Yuletide spirit was rampant. Beneath a big Christmas tree the father was attempting to set up a mechanical train as his oldest boy leaned quite heavily on his shoulder. Eventually Jack weakened and gently brushed his boy aside. As he did so, according to Ens, seven little Fogartys fell down. The other six were leaning on their brother.

Lloyd Waner put on five precious pounds as he golfed and hunted for two months after the baseball season closed. He took it off in two or three days as he fell for the lure of handball and squash racquets. The indoor sports are a fine thing for most people, but they don't work out properly for those who must have well-conditioned legs. The poundings on the hard floors stove the muscles.

Fred Lindstrom played basketball strenuously through one winter. He thought he was in top shape when he reported at the Giant camp, but he said he needed several weeks to get the kinks out of his legs after he began to sprint on good old terra-firma.

Lindy is playing a little handball this winter just to remain active. He takes on two big Chicago cops at a time to increase his agility. Bill Kern, Panther line coach and scout, is also a star in floor sports. Bill would challenge Ray Montgomery and Andy Gustafson at handball or squash and hold his own against the pair. This goes if Andy and Ray don't read it.

Many of the standouts of the diamond remained in the outdoors for their off-season exercise. Good examples are Honus Wagner, Babe Ruth, Ty Cobb, Eddie Collins, Frank Frisch and Jimmy Foxx. Wagner was generally found near a small stream or in a big woods; Ruth often played golf around New York City when more fragile persons were hunting warm corners; Frisch goes in for winter sports around Lake Placid.

The Banquet League is one of the biggest sandtraps for outdoor athletes. Consider the plight of the highly-paid diamond stars who made the jaunt to Japan two years ago. The Japanese are "daffy" over baseball and they insisted on nightly feasts for the Americans. When Frisch returned from the Flowery Kingdom he was as fat as Kate Smith, and the Fordham Flash didn't flash with his usual luster the subsequent season.

Pie Traynor spent more than a month in the cold lumberjack country of Wisconsin after the last season closed. The Pirate captain pulled up stakes just before Christmas and was reported headin' for California. Traynor says he feels better in the hot summer months when he gets a lot of winter into his system.

COLUMBIA GRID TEAM DRILLS IN SECRET

By BILL CORUM
Universal Service.

TUCSON, Ariz., Dec. 27.—It was that genial humorist and philosopher, my friend Arthur (Bugs) Baer, who was the first to remark that when you leave New York you are just camping out.

What Bugs neglected to add was that camping out can be great fun.

Yesterday, while the folks back home tramped to work through snow and slush, the writer played baseball with Hal Chase on a desert diamond as green and bright as the greenest spot in the Emerald Isle. You see and do strange things out here on the desert. So strange that you sometimes wonder if they are not mirages.

WORK ON DEFENSE

Behind us as we played baseball in perfect baseball weather, Lou Little's light but racy Columbia University football team toiled through a secret practice in the miniature stadium of the University of Arizona. Even as we chased the ball, we could hear Little's big voice roaring across the valley toward the gold and purple peaks of the Catalinas:

"You, Montgomery, come up, come up; you've got as much right to that ball as he has. Just because he is a pass receiver you don't have to have a personal introduction to him. Go after that ball. If he gets hit, let him worry about that. Don't be afraid to see red. You'll see plenty of red and white jerseys out yonder."

Or again:

"Oh, you say you would have got him if it had been in a real game, do you? Well, let's see you get him this time. Now hit that man and hit him hard. One-two-hike-go!"

DRILL UNDER LIGHTS

It was growing dark rapidly now. The twilight doesn't last long in these climates. Even before the sun had disappeared behind the mountain range to the West, the floodlights went on above the field. They play most of their football games at night here because of the excessive daytime heat in October and November.

The secret practice over, newspapermen and other spectators climbed the sides of the little stadium to watch the rapid-fire signal drill that topped off the day's work. Now it was Quarterback Montgomery's high-pitched, boyish voice that took up the pep refrain where Little's had left it off. He was driving his first team hard. Maybe a mite too hard, for he is sharp and peaked and fretful these days, this slight youngster from Pittsburgh.

No doubt it is the responsibility that sits heavy on his shoulders for he is the only one to display a sign of nerves or care.

Fame Finds Our Kingfish Home, Awaiting Knock

By HARRY KECK, Sports Editor

What do we care if Chicago has its Kingfish Levinsky?

We have Kingfish Max Elling. If you don't think that's something, ask Max.

On Christmas afternoon, Elling was supposed to box General Burrow, of Aliquippa, in one of the preliminaries in the Moose Temple, and, when Dominic Mancini reported sick for the main bout against Marty Gornick, the promoters shoved up Elling from his second bout to oppose Gornick.

Max Elling

Elling never had fought or trained more than six rounds at a time since he began to box, but that didn't deter him. He went right in there and defied the hard-hitting Gornick, and really won the fight, although Gornick got the decision, on an afternoon when the judges were having a swell time guessing them wrong and the fans were having their fun telling them about it.

So what does Elling do the next day? He hits the trail for the newspaper offices and dashes into the sports departments yelling:

"Here's the Kingfish, in person!"

Naturally he attracted no little attention. You would have thought he was Huey Long. Some of the folks who hadn't had time to read about Maxie's Christmas surprise party wanted to know what he had done and they were duly impressed, if not actually amazed, when told.

The story behind this story is that Elling has been trying for more than a year to get some sort of a break around here. Several months ago, he gave up in despair and went to Syracuse, where he engaged in a series of bouts. Then he came home for Christmas, and tried to make expenses. The promoters offered him a second preliminary, and he took it and was glad to get it. Then he got a chance to show in a substitute main bout that he could beat a fellow who has been highly touted around here for some time—even if he didn't get the decision—and you can't blame him for letting the cockeyed world know about it.

And, what's more, he says he's ready to fight again next week, and wouldn't mind being billed in a top spot for a change, just to see how it feels, and he'll take Cornick again or anybody else the promoters can get.

"I've just found out it pays to advertise. From now on I'm going to do plenty of it. For months I've been reading and hearing that what we need in this town is fighters with color or box office appeal. That's what I have, if I do say it myself. Just let me fight a good opponent in a main bout and watch the entire Hill District turn out. Do you know who I am? I'm the answer to the promoters' prayers for a fighter outside of Ted Yarosz who can lift the mortgage off the old homestead. Yes, sir—the Kingfish, none less, at your service."

Maybe he's correct, at that. He certainly took the dope for a merry buggy ride in that bout with Gornick. He didn't tire until the last round, although he had trained for not more than six rounds, paced himself nicely and boxed better than ever before. He kept Gornick all at sea right up to the time he had to stall through that last round. And all of the time Gornick was trying to set him up for a sockdologer on the whiskers.

Funny thing about that fight, too. For lack of other sparring partners in the Pittsburgh Lyceum gymnasium, Gornick and Elling worked out with each other last Friday and Saturday, never dreaming they would be opposed to each other in the ring.

TINY DRIVES CARDINALS

International News Service.

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 27.—(INS.)—Pulling no punches, Stanford's "A" football team defeated the "B" team, 13 to 6, in a practice game yesterday before 1,200 spectators.

Working out in deadly earnest for the Columbia game in the Rose Bowl New Years Day, Coach Tiny Thornhill sent his squads through two spirited dress rehearsals.

So spirited, in fact, that Bobby Grayson and Bones Hamilton, backfield aces, playing on the two mixed teams, were somewhat bruised, but not so much they won't be able to start against the roaring Lions from New York City.

Jim Moscrip, star end, did not practice, but spent the day under a lamp burning the misery from a bum leg. Wes Muller, invalid center, still is in the hospital recovering from influenza, but coaches expected him to be in the starting lineup.

Bill Corbus, All-America guard, came through the stiff practices undamaged.

Both teams used Stanford plays on offense and used a six-man line on defense. There was no scrimmaging against Columbia's pet plays, but the air was filled with passes, indicating that Stanford plans a wide open game.

Thornhill said the public would be admitted to all Stanford practices, including two today. Light signal drills are scheduled tomorrow and Friday. The team goes into seclusion Saturday.

Minnesota's Gophers are in town today and tonight they'll "go for" Pitt's basketball Panthers in what they, the Gophers, hope will be a big, big way. A victory for the visitors will give the Minneapolis collegians their second athletic triumph of the year over Pitt, the football team having spoiled an otherwise perfect Pitt record this season by winning a 7-to-3 decision at Minneapolis.

Walter Sochacki

The Panthers are making their fifth start of the season in tackling the Big Tenners. To date, they've taken Georgetown and Northwestern and been taken by Butler and Purdue. Minnesota, too, boasts a 50-50 rating, having bowed in their inaugural clash to St. Thomas, of St. Paul, and defeated Cornell College, of Iowa.

PITT LINEUP STANDS

Pitt's coach, the fiery Dr. Cliff Carlson, after threatening for a week to bench two or three of his regulars and generally shake up the starting lineup, has decided to give the varsity one more chance to come through in the way he expects, and in the way such as veterans and experienced a combination should. Skippy Hughes and Don McCamant will start at the forwards, Claire Cribbs is to go at center and Russ Ochsenhirt and Charley Hughes at the guards.

On the bench, straining at the leash, will be perched the two reserve forwards, Slim Wainio and Ted Roderick, ready to break in the minute the first stringer show any signs of bogging down.

On the other hand, Coach MacMillan, of Minnesota, has announced his intention of shifting in a radical fashion his lineup. Originally, the Gophers presented a big, rugged array, but these big fellows failed to click and the coach was forced to juggle his players to a considerable extent in order to produce a team that combines a maximum of speed, power and co-ordination.

SOCHACKI BENCHED

As a result, two veterans, Walter Sochacki, a forward, and Dave MacMillan, a guard, son of the coach, have been shunted to the sidelines and their places taken by Chuck Wallblom and Mal Eiken. Gordon Norman remains at center and George Roscoe, a sophomore forward, and George Svendson, sophomore guard, retain the positions they won prior to the opening of the campaign.

The Gophers are scheduled for

INJURY SURVEY SHOWS MANY AVOIDABLE

CHICAGO, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Seven changes in the college grid-iron rules for 1934, designed to open up the game for the benefit of thrill-seeking customers, have been suggested by the American Football Coaches' Association, but not one coach was brave enough to predict they ever would become more than suggestions.

The proposed changes, most of them requested by a majority of the 400 coaches in attendance at the annual convention yesterday were:

1—Permit forward passing from any point behind the line of scrimmage. (Under the present rules, a forward passer must be at least five yards behind the line of scrimmage before firing his tosses.)

WANT POSTS MOVED

2—Move the goal posts back to the goal lines. (Present rules require the goal posts be 10 yards back of goal lines.)

3—Abolish the dead ball rule. (Present rules declare a ball automatically dead when any part of the ball carrier's body, except his hands and feet touch the ground.)

4—Increase the sideline rule from 10 to 15 yards (under present rules when a ball goes out of bounds except on forward pass or kickoff, the ball is brought in 10 yards from the sidelines).

5—Abolish the fumble rule. (Present rule declares a fumbled ball is automatically dead on point of recovery).

6—Adopt a new "windy day" rule whereby a team in possession of the ball within its own 20-yard line on windy days can surrender the ball 25 yards nearer its opponent's goal without kicking. Coaches on both teams would have to agree to use of the rule before the game started on exceptionally windy days.

7—Modify the forward pass rule whereby only incomplete passes on the fourth down into the end zone shall be ruled as touchbacks. Incomplete passes on first, second and third downs shall be counted only as downs.

COACHES DISAGREE

The suggestions will be forwarded to the national rules committee, which meets in February. Coach Harry Kipke, of Michigan, chairman of the Coaches' Rules Committee, said the proposed changes were merely suggestions or recommendations.

A canvass of the coaches failed to reveal one that would predict success for all seven suggestions when the National Rules Committee studies and acts on them. The consensus was that the proposals to abolish the dead ball and fumble rules and to modify the forward pass rule on touchbacks had the best chance.

The report on the survey of football accidents and deaths last season, made by Floyd R. Eastwood, of New York University for a coaches committee headed by Dr. Marvin A. (Mal) Stevens, former head coach at Yale, indicated that more than one-fourth of the injuries might have been avoided.

A big share of the serious mishaps and 27.8 per cent of the total could have been avoided by "adequate leadership"—closer attention to coaching, playing fields and players' condition. The preventable injuries listed by Eastwood were divided as follows: Inadequate coaching and poor playing fields, 17.7 per cent; fatigue, carelessness, etc., 4.9 per cent, and physical condition, 5.2 per cent.

MORE ACTIVITY URGED

Football coaches, now members of a star transient class, would stick on their jobs longer if they taught another sport and made themselves more indispensable to their schools, H. J. Stegeman, director of athletics at the University of Georgia, told the association today.

Recruiting and subsidizing of athletes are on the wane, Dan McGugin of Vanderbilt University, president of the association, said, but where those two ills are found, the responsibility lies squarely on the administrative board and its president.

Discussion of rule changes was continued today, but it was more and more evident among the coaches that they favored a "hands off policy."

TEUTON DELAYS U. S. RETURN

Joe Jacobs, the German's manager, said Maxie would sail for the United States some time during the first week of next month. Plans to match Schmeling and Tommy Loughran for a bout in New York or Atlantic City January 31 were dropped when Loughran came to terms with Madison Square Garden for a title match with Primo Carnera in the South.

Cleto Locatelli, of Italy, European lightweight champion, will get another whack at Tony Canzoneri and this time at a longer route. The game Italian, who dropped a 10-round decision to Tony recently, will meet the former world titleholder in a return match in the Garden, January 12, over the 12-round route.

The New York State Athletic Commission has renewed its working agreement with the California Boxing Commission. Secretary Bert Stand announces. Stand also revealed that Jack Buckley, manager of Jack Sharkey and Andy Callahan, had been suspended here in concurrence with a ruling by the Massachusetts commission.

THE LATE TOD SLOAN

'Monkey Seat' Riding Result of Intensive Study Of Horses—Based on Bridge Construction

This is the fourth of a series of five stories on the glamorous career of Tod Sloan, one-time greatest jockey, who died last week, written by his long-time friend, Hype Igoe, one of America's veteran sports writers.

By HYPE IGOE
International News Service

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—Tod Sloan's forward position when perched on a race horse's back wasn't merely a matter of accident.

When Sloan began his career as a stable boy and later as a rider for Ed Corrigan, one of the most powerful and influential turfmen in this country, Tod found the gruff old "czar" always back of him. Corrigan listened to little Sloan's theories and was especially impressed with Sloan's "horse sense" and his explanation of why he had adopted his unusual position on a horse's back, which was:

"Any race horse is built like a bridge. The weakest point is at the center of a bridge. It is strongest under the supporting pillars, at the far ends. It will sustain weight over these arches without danger of collapsing. There is always danger if the weight is allowed to gather in the center. It's like that with horses.

EXPOUNDED THEORY

"A horse is the same as a bridge. Weight in the center of his back sinks him. When I crawl up across his shoulders I am balanced over the axis of his running movements. He doesn't feel weight there one-tenth as he would if I sat far back, English fashion, and permitted my weight to sag."

Sloan went the weight problem one better by clinging to his horse's withers with his knees. In this way, his legs serving as a belt, he held his mounts "together" and eased his own weight from the animal's shoulders.

The clinging knees worked like ball-and-socket joints and when the horse's front legs hit the ground Sloan's body was clear of the horse entirely, save where his knees clung to the racer's withers.

Sloan never overlooked an opportunity which would assist his mount in getting under the wire first. This story, which he once told to Jack Doyle, concerning the running of horses over English grass courses, proves that Sloan considered important the slightest detail in the winning of a race. He said:

"Jack, no doubt you have experienced th difficulty of holing out a golf ball against the grain of a closely-mowed putting green. Any good golfer will try to pitch his ball so that it will have a r n-up to the hole, going 'with' the grass after the lawn mower has push d it down.

ANDERED ALL ANGLES

"If you stand some distance from a freshly-mowed lawn, you can plainly see where the mower has gone in a line across the green and then back again. In one path the grass is brushed up. On the return trip, say, it is brushed down.

"I made a study of the mowed race courses in England. The grass is mowed just as any lawn is cut, and you'll find the same with and against-the-grain paths which are so vital on a putting green. Every time I came down a long English home stretch I purposely picked out a path which had the grass shoved away from me and my horse.

"You may not believe it, but a horse running into the grain of the grass in a long race takes all the worst of it. Grass bending into a horse's plates over a mile or more of distance slows him up by several seconds. That is margin enough by which a good horse can be defeated."

WEIGHED 65 POUNDS

When Sloan began riding he weighed 65 pounds. He was powerfully built for one of his weight, and, with this poundage, plus a remarkable riding "bean," he was a gold mine to those who shared in his triumphs.

He was a sure-fire "money" rider if his horse had it in him to win. Tod went as far as to gauge the wind which swept across a course, this way or that. If it came toward him, he placed his mount behind the others, taking advantage of running wind breakers. If it came from behind, Sloan would place his horse in such a position that nothing in the race would prevent the wind boosting his horse along.

He studied the condition of the "going," taking the trouble to visit the turns if the weather was bad, that he might sound the depth of the slush, mud or heavy sod. Mentally he took tabs of where and where not to ride in a race to come later. He always worked his own horses in the morning. When it came time for the real test, he knew better than any other man on the race track just what he had under him. He knew the champions of his day needed proper guiding and this he gave them to the utmost degree.

TO BY BETTORS

Sloan once told me that the fastest horse he ever sat on was Eclipse, and the gamest, Ballyhoo Bey.

Riley Grannan, one of the great plungers of that period, was a Sloan follower. He would bet them up higher than any man of his time, and, when one of his tremendous wagers was recorded, all he asked for was an "intelligent ride."

Sloan always had his "noodle" on tap, and, if his mount lost, the most daring of the soldiers of fortune were willing to admit that the "horse simply wasn't there."

PITT BATTLES MINNESOTA

a light workout on the Stadium Pavilion floor this afternoon. In a preliminary game, the Panther Freshmen will meet Taylor Allderdice, the contest being scheduled to get under way at 7:15 o'clock.

Plans have been completed for Duquesne University's football junket to Florida and the footballers, coaches, managers and a possible score of followers will depart via the Pennsylvania Railroad tomorrow afternoon.

The snow and cold put an effective check on yesterday's drill and Layden and Bach held slight hopes of having the boys practice out of doors today. It is not likely that the squad will be able to hold any more workouts prior to their arrival in Miami Saturday morning.

PLAYS TROUBLE MIAMI

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 27.—(AP.)—The University of Miami varsity had difficulty yesterday in stopping a second team, using the Notre Dame tactics of Duquesne University in scrimmage in preparation for the intersectional game here New Year's Day.

The varsity had more success on offense, but was repeatedly halted without gain. Coach Tommy McCann sent his charges through signal drill and putting practice in addition to the scrimmage session.

Fairhope Baseball Player Suicide

CHARLEROI, Pa., Dec. 27.—Joseph Rasko, star Fairhope baseball player, is dead today from the effects of swallowing three tablets of bichloride of mercury. He died in the Charleroi-Monessen Hospital yesterday.

Rasko, who had been involved in domestic troubles recently, according to Deputy Coroner Joseph Frentz, went to the bedroom of his home yesterday, and after singing the chorus of "Tiger Rag," swallowed the poison.

WICKER, SWAIN BEST HURLERS IN M-A LOOP

Wicker, of Wheeling, and Swain, of Johnstown, tied for the lead in pitching in the Middle Atlantic League during the 1933 season, according to official averages released today. Both scored 14 victories and lost six games for an average of .700.

While none of the Middle Atlantic League pitchers was able to break into the hall of fame with a no-hit contest, five managed to turn in one-hit affairs. They were Samuels, against Springfield; Pickering against Zanesville; Bratton, against Wheeling; Brigham, against Zanesville, and Sunbra, against Beckley.

SLOAN FUNERAL RITES HELD

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Tod Sloan rode for the last time yesterday, but others held the reins.

The cheer of crowds, bookies making bets, the strident cries of jockeys as they booted their horses home—of this there was none.

In their place were the myriad noises of the city, the hum of automobile motors, screech of brakes, raucous honking of horns, the clang of street car gongs, but the once mighty mite of the race tracks heard nothing of them as he rode his last ride in a gray hearse over a track that led from a funeral parlor to a cemetery.

The funeral services at an undertaking parlor brought a small group to a chapel to bid farewell to Sloan, who died last Thursday from a liver ailment, as penniless at the end of his primrose path; where he strewed a million dollars, as he was when he started his famous climb to fame and fleeting fortune.

Paying silent tribute to his memory were fighters, baseball players, sports writers, actors, a few unknowns, probably curious admirers, and his former wife, Betty Maloney Sloan and their small daughter, Jane, who were on the arms of Lou Tellegen, the actor, and Mrs. Michael Cudahy, who helped Tod through his last lean years.

MADDEN GAINS SECOND ROUND

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Frankie Parker, 17-year-old star who has been nominated for the No. 8 position in the senior ranking, made an impressive debut in the first day's play of the annual national junior indoor tennis championships when he breezed through first and second round matches with the loss of only two games.

The Milwaukee youth, seeded first in the junior draw, yesterday defeated Stephen H. Ogilvy, of Northwood School, New Rochelle, N. Y., and Nathan Ritzenberg, of Central High School, Washington, D. C., by the same scores, 6-0, 6-1.

Robert Madden, of Pittsburgh, seeded No. 8, defeated Herbert Scoville, of Yale, 12-14, 6-4, 8-6, to advance to the second round.

Two other Pittsburgh entrants, William C. Fay and James Arensberg, were eliminated, Fay losing to John Totten, of Paterson, N. J., 6-1, 6-1, and Arensberg bowing to Bernard Diamond, of Cornell, 6-3, 6-4.

Youngsters to See Rosenblums Play

Arrangements have been made to admit 1,500 boys and girls 14 years old and under for 10 cents each to the basketball game in the Motor Square Garden cage between the Rosenblum Celtics, of Cleveland, world professional champions, and the Willigs, of McKeesport, and high school squads and their coaches will be admitted at special rates, it was announced today by John J. Freund, sponsor of the game.

The Celtics played in Johnstown last night and will appear in Wheeling tomorrow night. Before playing the Willigs, members of the Celtics will appear as guests of the Trained Seals of the Sports Department of the Sun-Telegraph in their weekly program over WCAE at 7 o'clock tomorrow night.

The ELKINS RIFLE and PISTOL CLUB was organized in Clarksburg yesterday. LIEUT. CHARLES BARTON was named chairman.

The IRENE KAUFMANN SETTLEMENT HOUSE passers meet the McCann South Siders in an Allegheny County League game at the I. K. S. tonight.

Word that the Cincinnati Reds would be interested in a working agreement with the Charleston (W. V.) club of the Mid-Atlantic League has been sent to officials of that club by LARRY MACPHAIL, general manager of the Reds. The proposal, MACPHAIL said, was made by LON BARRINGER, of the Charleston Club.

Wesleyan University, of Middletown, Conn., today emphasized its denial that CLIFF MONTGOMERY, Columbia University quarterback, would coach there next season.

Rubi Reinstated For Mat Bout Here

Announcement was made today that Bert Rubi, the Hungarian wrestler, who was announced yesterday as being on the ill and unavailable list of the State Boxing Commission for failure to go through with a bout at Reading, Pa., on December 19, has been reinstated to permit him to oppose Murray Braizin, of New York, in one of the preliminaries to the Jim Browning-Stanley Pinto bout at the Arena on the North Side tomorrow night.

When the promoters learned that Rubi had been suspended they immediately got in touch with the commission, which arranged to have the Reading promoter release his claim against Rubi so he could appear here. It is customary for a boxer or wrestler who fails to honor a contract to be automatically suspended for 30 days to permit him to recover from any ailment which may have prevented him from appearing.

LENORE KIGHT AFTER RECORD

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 27.—(AP.)—An attack on the 300-meter long course record now held by Helene Madison, is planned by Lenore Kight, of Homestead, Pa., the world's fleetest free style swimmer, tomorrow, opening day of the three-day second annual National Olympic stars' aquatic meet in the Miami Biltmore pool.

Anne Govednik, of Chisholm, Minn., place winner in the 1932 Olympic breast stroke competition, is trying for the 100-meter long course title. Agnes Geraghty set the time of 1:24 4-5 for this in 1929.

Other entrants include Johanna Gorman, of Homestead; Lisa Lindstrom, Susan Robertson, Jessie Conway, Dorothea Dickinson, Elizabeth Harrison and Jan

STOCK MARKET GAINS SPEED, COURAGE

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—The stock market picked up speed and courage today, absorbing a substantial volume of belated year-end tax selling and, at the same time, rallying some of the recently depressed leaders.

The turnover in equities during the early hours was about three times that of yesterday, with several blocks of 10,000 shares appearing. The utilities and tobaccos made the best recoveries. Wheat, cotton and other commodities displayed firming tendencies. The dollar also moved up moderately in foreign exchange dealings as the domestic gold rate was again unchanged. Bonds were fairly steady.

Share gainers of 1 to around 2 points included American Telephone, Consolidated Gas, Public Service of New Jersey, Chrysler, Du Pont, Liggett & Myers B, American Tobacco B, United States Smelting, Allied Chemical, Santa Fe, Union Pacific, Delaware and Hudson, Auburn, Johns-Manville and International Business Machines. The more active issues, with minor losses, included Marine Midland, Northwestern, St. Joseph Lead, International Nickel and Radio. The alcohols were a bit hesitant.

With the bulk of tax selling expected to be out of the way at the close of business today—transactions must be on a cash basis during the remainder of the week—the eyes of Wall Street were again turning toward Washington and the forthcoming session of Congress.

Some financial quarters were confident that President Roosevelt will devote a sizeable portion of his annual message to the monetary situation. In support of this it was recalled that the Chief Executive recently has held lengthy conferences with leading Federal Reserve authorities and other fiscal experts.

Various politico-economic observers were of the opinion that the President would request specific monetary legislation which might permit the Treasury to recall some $4,300,000,000 of gold stocks from the Federal Reserve banks if there is to be a subsequent devaluation of the dollar in terms of gold to between 50 and 60 per cent of its former parity.

The sustained improvement in the foreign trade field was cheering to industrial analysts. The figures on November exports and imports, just issued, showed the former totaled 184 million dollars against $138,834,000 in the same month last year while the latter aggregated 128 million dollars, compared with $104,468,000 in November, 1932.

GRAIN PRICES TAKE DIP

CHICAGO, Dec. 27.—A sag in grain values characterized early trading today. Despite severe cold and absence of a snow blanket Southwest, buying lacked volume. Opening unchanged to 3/8 lower, wheat afterward showed an all-around setback. Corn started at 1/8-1/2 decline, and subsequently held near the initial limits.

An advance of more than a cent a bushel for wheat ensued. Apprehension as to crop damage to winter wheat increased with receipt of advices from the Southwest and West confirming widespread dearth of snow covering and of extreme low temperatures. Corn and oats rallied with wheat, while provisions were responsive to a downward trend of hog values.

Silver Price Boost Aid To Stocks

By B. C. FORBES

GREAT is the power of psychology!

AT A MAXIMUM possible cost to the government of, say, five million dollars in a year, President Roosevelt made a move which immediately increased market values of stocks, commodities, silver, etc., by hundreds of millions of dollars.

Mr Forbes

In its way, this is the most astute, the most diplomatic, the most lucrative step Mr. Roosevelt has made since he entered the White House.

SIMPLY by declaring that the government will pay 64½ cents an ounce for silver hereafter mined in this country, he so electrified sentiment that the Stock Exchange, the commodity exchange, the silver market all instantly marked up quoted values impressively.

The quotation for silver was above 40 cents an ounce before he—in conjunction with other governments—acted. By offering to take some 25 million ounces at approximately a 50 per cent increase (representing five million dollars), he not only made clamorous silver producers happy, but he convinced others that he is bent on attaining his avowed objective of raising the general commodity price level, he inspired fresh optimism, and he was instrumental in influencing buyers to swell the quoted value of stocks, commodities, etc., enormously.

For example, the President's announcement, published on Friday morning, boosted the quoted value of the capital stock of the following companies by the amount stated—the day's net gain in price multiplied by the number of shares outstanding:

Company	Gain
Allied Chemical	$14,400,000
American Can	9,896,000
American Smelting	10,980,000
Anaconda	17,354,000
Cerro de Pasco	5,615,000
Chrysler	17,480,000
Du Pont	54,360,000
General Motors	67,000,000
Howe Sound	1,984,000
Johns Manville	2,250,000
Kennecott	20,874,000
Montgomery Ward	8,800,000
Pullman	11,460,000
St. Joseph Lead	3,900,000
Sears-Roebuck	12,652,000
Timken Roller	4,824,000
Union Carbide	18,000,000
U. S. Smelting	5,300,000
U. S. Steel	17,406,000

NOW WE HAVE two sharply different prices for silver just as we have two different prices for gold. The government, as already told, pays 64½ cents for newly-mined silver, against the open-market price of 43½ cents. The government's quotation for newly-mined gold is $34.06 an ounce, whereas the "open-market" price is at least $10 an ounce less.

Abnormalities? Yes. But we are living under abnormal conditions.

Our duty, as loyal citizens, is to exercise to the limit whatever influence we may possess to bring about wise, statesmanlike action by Washington, to criticise, when we cannot conscientiously indorse, but to play the game patriotically, constructively under whatever rules are in force.

Persuasion, sure! Sabotage, no!

HAPPILY, President Roosevelt has little occasion to complain that his policies and programs have not been accepted with remarkable grace and supported with unprecedented unanimity. Indeed, no Chief Executive since Washington has ever been accorded such carte blanche or so universally upheld by citizens of all political shades.

By ROBERT W. CHAMBERS

(Republished from Cosmopolitan Magazine and soon to appear on the screen as a Cosmopolitan production made for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and starring Marion Davies.)

By ROBERT W. CHAMBERS

The girl untwisted herself from his arm and stood with small fists whitely clenched and lips parted for the breathless blast of words to overwhelm him.

None came. He moved toward her, two steps; she took two more; took his lips again, trembling.

In the intoxication of the throbbing moments the girl clung to him, satisfying her long thirst for him with quivering mouth. Nothing else mattered, not even that he did not know whom he kissed. There was no word exchanged; she gave him one supreme instant as though her very soul were passing through her clinging mouth; and left him dazed, unsteady, gazing after a phantom dissolving in starlight and the scent of roses.

That night the girl slept badly, doing considerable crying, happily and otherwise. Artillery jolting interminably through Franklin street wearied her at last, and to the jarring clank of it she finally fell asleep.

Billy Dix and his "mewl" were at the back door with tomatoes and new corn, her maid informed her after breakfast in her room next morning. Because Nikka and the cook were within ear shot, she decided to go out to the alley, where Billy's cart and gigantic mule stood, and pick over his produce for herself.

Handling the fresh ears of corn and plump tomatoes, she took the memorandum which he smuggled into her hand and listened to the boy's whispered description of Sheridan's advance.

"Thirteen miles of cavalry in column, ma'am," he said under his breath. "And later I saw five brigades of them coming on in line of battle, just one huge trampling sea of glittering sabers . . . Stuart's dead, and it can't be very long now, ma'am, can it?"

Operator 13 nodded carelessly as Nikka shuffled by. "Yes," she said, "I'll take the corn and tomatoes and three heads of that French lettuce and the cherries, too." She glanced after the lazily moving Negress. "How is it before Petersburg?" she whispered.

"Awful, ma'am. A stinking, filthy shambles—an endless mess of blood ten miles long. Our ships can't get up the river. No gunboat could live five minutes under their heavy batteries . . . It's all Bullfrog Butler's doings. If he'd had the sense to come out! There were only two thousand Johnnies in Petersburg."

Quick Warning

Jilly Lou and Nikka were approaching with baskets and Operator 13 went indoors about her business which, first of all, was to copy the map which Billy Dix had slipped into her hand with plans of new Confederate gun emplacements along the river—a new masked battery south of Batting Dantzler, another at Trent Reach. The task took her some time. She had then to make her report, mentioning the arrival of John Gailliard.

She was not going to ride that day. Scobell had told her the week before that there was a rumor a blockade runner had slipped through the Federal guard fleet.

Every woman of her acquaintance in Richmond very soon heard about it and hoped that the ship had brought in such necessities as women's shoes, thread, bed and table linen and dress goods. As for Operator 13, she hoped that the blockade runner had not brought the young lady whom she was impersonating.

When John Scobell arrived for orders that morning she had told him to bring around the victoria after lunch. She was at lunch now in her boudoir when Rosie came to say that Scobell was below and wished to speak to her about the carriage which needed a new rear wheel. Wheel trouble was the signal agreed upon when the latter found it necessary to see her privately. So she told Rosie to send Scobell to her and take away the tray.

Plans Escape

"Done fetch de hosses, ma'am," he said cheerfully, "kaze de off hind wheel am bus'." But when Rosie had vanished: Reckon we-all better ride, ma'am," he said. "Train comin' in today. Tole me at de station dey's folks an' goods aboard from de blockade runner, Sea Spray."

"De ship done slip into Wilmington," he said.

"Is she British, John?"

"Yaas'm."

"Reckon its yuh, ma'am," he said.

"It resembles me, don't it?"

"Yaas'm. Look lak you-all wuz twins."

"It's a picture of that Miss Cleburne I'm impersonating. If—and God forbid it!—she's on that British ship, and on that train that's coming in, I've got to leave Richmond quickly. I don't imagine there'd be any danger to you if you remain."

"I ain't quittin' yuh, ma'am," he said.

"You needn't risk yourself, John."

"Thank you, John." She smiled, laid the miniature away. "Of course," she said lightly, "there's always the chance that Miss Cleburne may return. But I doubt it. However, in case of trouble, do you think I'd better ride by Glendale and try to reach Willcox's Wharf?"

"No, ma'am. We-all gotta ride by Highcastle."

"Tonight about 9 o'clock. Is yuh did youh map an' all, ma'am?"

"Yes." She remained thoughtful for a moment. "That's not true about the carriage wheel, is it?"

"No'm," he smiled.

"Very well; I'll put on my habit and we'll ride out toward Malvern. Nobody goes that way and we can talk over matters."

Finds Hiding Place

Scobell returned to his waiting horses; Operator 13 went about her dressing, singing blithely, although that odd premonition made her careless gayety an effort.

John Scobell put her up, mounted his own nag and followed her sedate pace through Franklin street under the spreading foliage. The terrific fighting around Petersburg drew great crowds to the bulletins. Otherwise, the city was deathly still in the hot sunshine.

Halfway to Glendale they turned south toward Malvern, where, in a weedy field, Operator 13 jumped her lively horse to and fro over an ancient snake fence, and tiring of this, cantered on down a rutty red road until she came in sight of the old Henrico Tavern. The aged inn was closed; a riot of briers, jasmine, honeysuckle and roses nearly buried the veranda, now occupied by several squirrels.

"Yaas'm, so 'tis," he said, quietly. "An' jus' soon as I done hyah wuz a-comin' to Richmond, I traipse out hyah an' I fix de well an' de do', an' I hid me a bucket an' a sack o' grain an' hard rations an' ammunition."

"Why, John?" she asked, amused.

"Kaze I reckon we-all gwine skedaddle some day."

"You're a good scout," she said. "I've heard all about what you've done. You're really wonderful."

"No'm, I ain' so much," he said modestly.

Gail Apprehensive

However, it appeared that he had been watching affairs more closely than had she. For she now learned that the Glendale road was heavily patrolled by provost cavalry at night.

"You really are a jewel," said the girl gratefully. "If I'd had to skedaddle, I'd certainly have gone that way and run my neck straight into the hangman's noose! Are our nearest pickets at Mountcastle?"

"Yaas'm."

"Well, John, I don't expect we'll have any reason to run—not for a long while, anyway. All the same, thank you for taking such good care of me." She turned her horse, put him to a canter.

When they again rode into Richmond, she had not shaken off that curious apprehension of threatened evil. She did not go out that afternoon, pleaded headache to all callers and kept in her boudoir behind locked doors and lowered blinds.

Again and again, sitting there with nothing on but her China-silk chamber robe in the afternoon heat, she wondered at her silly apprehension. It was not like her to submit to such senseless nervousness. And yet some vague intuition remained unsatisfied as though her own ghostly soul were alert and watching.

Into the girl's strange young mind came, gradually, a sensation of fear. She stared at the blind, as though, beyond them, danger lurked. And so powerful became the menace of imaginary peril that she rose and peeped into the street below.

A sudden mist seemed to possess her eyes and mind, blinding both. Then, instantly, both cleared, and she looked down at the man of whom in all the world she was most afraid.

He was roughly dressed, his shirt collarless, his spurred boots dusty. He wore an old felt hat. He stood leaning against a large tree, his piercing eyes wandering along the house fronts but seeming particularly interested in the curtained windows of her own small dwelling.

After what seemed years to her he walked away past General Lee's house and on up the deserted street. When he had disappeared the girl unlocked her door, rang for Rosie, and sent her to the stable to fetch Scobell and both horses.

MARBLE STATUE OF AUGUSTUS (Vatican)

ROMAN ARCHITECTURAL ELEMENTS

ROMAN ART—THE THIRD PERIOD OF CLASSIC ART

In the historical period of the kings (from the legendary foundation of Rome in 753 B. C. to 509 B. C.) Romans had little art of their own. However, after the conquest of the Etruscans, (third century B. C.) they began to develop their art in the period of the Republic (509-27 B. C.).

Following the conquest of Greece (second century B. C.) Roman Art received great impetus: Hellenistic Art was transplanted into Rome.

The period of the empire (27 B. C.-476 A. D.) saw great advancement in Roman art, which reached its highest level, from Augustus to Hadrian (27 B. C. to 138 A. D.).

Roman art amalgamated the Hellenistic and Etruscan elements, developing under the influence of the characteristics of a conqueror and constructor nation the realistic style of the latter, manifesting itself especially in the minute accuracy of Roman portraits.

Roman architecture used the vault and arch of the Etruscans, the Ionic and Corinthian orders, the cupola, the types of basilica, portico, theater and circus of the Greeks; they created by combination and profuse embellishment the composite order, the triumphal arch, the amphitheater and thermae (baths). The materials were sun-dried bricks, stone, marble and concrete, cast in wooden forms. The Roman Forum (above left, restored), the center of the Roman world was filled with public edifices, triumphal arches, statues, monuments of glories of Rome.

INTERIOR OF THE PANTHEON, ROME

This structure of great magnificence and harmony is still in astonishing state of preservation; it was begun under Agrippa (26 B. C.) and finished under Hadrian (123 A. D.), when the original square building adjoining the atrium was replaced by a round cella covered by a semi-spherical dome, marking the introduction of this type of roofing into Italy.

HEAD OF ANTINOUS

In the time of Hadrian, when Roman Art, about to decline, still flourished, the Greek style in sculpture was revived again in Rome. Among the last ideal statues of Classical Art are several of Antinous, the head of one, famous for its effeminate beauty, shown above.

STATUE OF MARCUS AURELIUS

This, the only Roman equestrian statue beside two marble statues of the Balbi which are Greek imitations, is of gilt bronze. It pictures Marcus Aurelius in natural and dignified posture about to meet vanquished enemies. It was placed on the Piazza of the new Capitol in Rome by Michelangelo, to whom the pedestal has been attributed. This statue as well as the colossal bronze figure of Theodosius (?), of which the head is shown at right, are imposing representatives of the declining phase of Art in the Roman Empire.

ROMAN PAINTING

Roman painting was largely influenced by the Alexandrian School. The few paintings found in Rome and the numerous in Pompeii and Herculaneum show the technique of the Greeks.

Above: A charming panel of a Pompeiian house, representing a mythical scene, a centaur harassed by a maenad.

Moochers and Sippers

Oscare says, "Don't wolf it. Sip it."

Oscare says, "Sip it. Not this way. Sip it this way."

As Oscare illustrates his lectures with lantern slides and gestures you can see that he works in many a sip between the cup and the 40-hour week.

Oscare will give free sipping lessons to anybody who cares to watch a one-sided drinking bout. But even Oscare is vulnerable. After the thirty-seventh sip he starts gulping.

Seems that the winesters are encroaching upon personal liberty. They should allow the public to drink free style.

The drys never went that far with their instruction. Admitting that they told us to drink water they never stuck our heads under pumps. They let us go about the operation in our own rough, manly manner.

So, if Oscare wants to sip it let him sip it. If we want to gulp allow us to gulp. By the time Oscare gets through showing us the technique and the finesse the bottle is as empty as a channel swimmer's clothes.

Oscare is an experienced European decanter destroyer. He noses a cognac glass with a dexterity born of long practice. He inhales the bouquet and smacks his lips like popping corn. But, we notice that Oscare is always giving the lessons and the pupil is paying the tuition.

We don't know how much you have to sip before you become a professor emeritus. The big idea is to get a class of pupils and never allow them to graduate.

In the old days this would have been called mooching on government reservations. Today any authority on wine drinking can enthrall an audience and sip himself silly.

We prefer the old days with the bouncer bearing down north-by-north-west and the moocher vainly trying to get a toe-hold in the sawdust. It was a short fiercey journey to the door and solved a mystery in transportation. The moocher got transit without traction.

A Creditable Decision

Mayor John S. Herron's decision not to sign the ordinance repealing the authorization for the subway bond issue is another testimonial to his good judgment and does him credit.

It may be, as Council thought, desirable to repeal the bond issue and thus extend by about $5,800,000 the city's borrowing power. But there is no urgent necessity for haste, and Mayor Herron wisely desires to leave it to the administration of Mayor-elect W. N. McNair to determine what shall be done about it.

Mr. McNair may have a different view of the matter. At any rate, if he favors repeal of the bond issue, there is no doubt that he can effect it within a few days.

In thus striving to spare the succeeding administration embarrassment Mayor Herron has again given proof of his broadmindedness and his concern for the best interests of the city.

The Blue Law Attacked

But Prudent Pittsburghers Will Not Accept Judge Soffel's Decision as the Last Word

Judge Sara Soffel has reversed the decision of a Justice of the Peace who fined nine Hill District merchants on the ground that they sold merchandise on Sunday. Ordering the fines returned, Judge Soffel points out that the law banning business on Sunday was enacted more than a hundred years ago and that conditions have greatly changed since then.

This sounds very much like a decree declaring the Blue Law null and void.

But prudent citizens will not accept it as such.

Judge Soffel's decision probably is not the last word on the subject. Wait and see.

Shopkeepers may run a risk if they take this ruling as an excuse for keeping open on Sunday.

There is no question, however, that public sentiment favors liberalization of the Sunday law to permit movies.

Clean the Sidewalks!

The Law Requires It, and It Is Necessary for the Safety of Pedestrians

Strict enforcement of the ordinance, we fear, would send many Pittsburghers to Police Court today.

There is a good reason for the law. Failure to remove the snow results in discomfort and even danger to pedestrians. Many a limb is broken as the result of slipping on a sidewalk from which the snow has not been cleared.

There are numerous unemployed men and boys in the city who would be glad to get the work.

Two Notable Children

The Stories of Regina Hartman and "Little Jakey" Negley Are Worth Knowing

Movements are on foot to erect monuments to Regina Hartman and Jacob Negley, pioneer children who played romantic parts in the early history of Pittsburgh. Their stories are worth knowing.

Incidentally, they were ancestors of two Secretaries of the Treasury, W. H. Woodin and A. W. Mellon.

In 1755, when Regina was a little child, the Indians killed her father and brother, burned their home, and carried her off as a captive. After defeating the Indians at the battle of Bushy Run on July 5, 1763, Col. Henry Bouquet compelled them to bring all their captives to Fort Pitt. Among them was Regina.

Later she was taken to Carlisle, and there her mother came in search of her. She found a dark-skinned girl who could speak only the Indian language. It seemed impossible to establish recognition. Then the mother thought of a German hymn that she had taught her baby. She sang it, and the girl remembered it, sang the refrain, and rushed into her mother's arms.

According to Col. Henry W. Shoemaker, chairman of the Pennsylvania Historical Commission, William Hartman Woodin, Secretary of the Treasury, is a descendant of Regina Hartman.

It is an interesting coincidence that a former Secretary of the Treasury, Andrew W. Mellon, is a descendant of Jacob Negley. You can read about Negley in Dr. C. Hale Sipe's splendid history, "Fort Ligonier and Its Times." As "Little Jakey" Negley, 12 years old, armed with a long rifle, he covered the retreat of his mother, brothers and sisters as they fled into Fort Ligonier when their home was besieged by the Indians.

Remarking that there are no statues of historical boys in Pennsylvania, Col. Shoemaker proposes a monument to "Little Jakey," also. He suggests that the monument to Regina Hartman be paid for by contributions from the schoolgirls of Pennsylvania, and that to Jacob Negley by boys' contributions.

Neglect of Duty

The Legislature Was Recreant in Not Requiring Approval of Public Utility Rate Increases

Gov. Gifford Pinchot recommended to the Legislature at the outset of the recent special session the enactment of a law forbidding public utilities companies to raise their rates until the proposed increases had been submitted to the Public Service Commission and approved.

Bills embodying the recommendation were introduced in both chambers and referred to committees. Both the House Committee and the Senate Committee refused to report the bills.

This was inexcusable neglect of duty. There was nothing unjust or unreasonable in the proposal. Such legislation is necessary to protect the public from unfair rate increases.

The State Republican Organization, which presumably dictated the burial of the bills in committee, has laid itself open to attack on still another front.

Let Him Remove the Barrier First

(Copyright, 1933.)

We understand that France is perturbed.

France is perturbed lest the United States refuse to throw the domestic market wide open to French wines and liqueurs.

Why does France anticipate and fear such treatment?

Because France has treated Uncle Sam very badly. France has defaulted three times on the war debts. In addition France has imposed discriminatory tariffs on imported American products and has levied discriminatory taxes on American firms domiciled in France.

Moreover, France has shown Uncle Sam how to treat other countries that behave as France has done. For, when a certain nation defaulted recently on a debt to France, France retaliated by laying a trade embargo against that other nation's products.

So France has to ask, Suppose Uncle Sam should do as France has done?

However, if any barriers exist against the French wine trade in this country France raised those barriers—and France knows how to remove them.

All France has to do is to take care of the war debts honestly, as little Finland is doing, and to give Uncle Sam a square deal in trade.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Dec. 27. — Irrepressible Gilbert White, portrait painter and raconteur deluxe, is in the last vanload of self exiles in Paris to pull up stakes for America until the dollar quits bouncing. He arrives shortly and writes: "Don't let the Blue Eagle moult in the meantime."

White is a brother of the novelist, Stewart Edward White, and for 20 years has circled the Place Vendome with the magnificence of an Augustus John. His weekly jets at the American Club luncheons are often printed in full in the English speaking dailies of the city.

His summers are spent in his 200-year-old chateau, now modernized, a half hour ride from Paris. His young wife, the beautiful Dodo, former model, is his constant companion. A great artist, some suspect his Buffalo Bill hair and Latin Quarter hat are concessions to a love for comedy.

In his apartment in the rue Jadin are perpetuated the old and glorious French salons. In a not unusual gathering there one winter afternoon, I recall seeing Mrs. Marv Harriman Rumsey, Floyd Gibbons, Marcel Proust, Jo Davidson, the famous Fratellini clowns and Ralph Barton.

* * *

There was the time White missed a taxicab step and was trundled home with a severe strain. A local jotting in the Paris edition of the Tribune next day announced: "Gilbert White is forced to remain in his room for several days with a well turned ankle." From his couch of pain he dispatched a petit-blue to the editor: "What do you mean—forced?"

Manhattan's reigning Grand Old Man is Col. G. Creighton Webb, a gallant and handsome remnant of that fine old Knickerbocker stock that once supplied the city with its real 400. Col. Webb is 80 and wears his crisp white mustache, evening clothes and silk hat with the jauntiness of a young blood. A chevalier, whose ribbon was handed to him by Marshal Foch in person, he has the courtesy and repertory of genteel phrases of a long-lost social era. His firm double row of teeth are without a single filling and he has the springy gait of an athlete.

* * *

So far as I've noticed, only one chauffeur-driven car maintains a footman. The car is owned by an upper 5th avenue nouveau riche, who employed two press agents—one for the social end, one for feature stories. The livery has a double row of brass buttons marching down the front, and collar and cuffs are pure sable. O yes, the lap robe is of ermine.

* * *

Fortunates with a flair for dudeing up chauffeurs like Mrs. Astorbilt's plush horse get along all right until they come to the leather puttees so fashionable in London. Invariably there is a balk. Every possible excuse is made—the most popular being varicose veins. One thing may be said for British chauffeurs, they are proud to be chauffeurs.

Louis Bromfield's long stay in Senlis, France, resulted in collecting a lot of good stories not between book covers. Some are for the drawing room and others for the smoking car. Almost every new yarn is dubbed "a Bromfield."

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

Strange Man

Strange man, so faulty and so frail,
But with a spark divine
Of some bright hope that cannot fail,
Some vision pure and fine!

Through many conflicts, many cares
Your changeful paths must lead,
And yet, through raptures and despairs
Runs still this urgent need
Of something dimly glimpsed, maybe,
But lending with its gleam
A promise and a dream.

And much of evil wrought;
Still something shining as the sun
Dwells ever in your thought!

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

'Be Good and You'll Be Lonesome'

New Year's almost here. Everybody making good resolutions. But here's a gentleman who's packing a grouch. Why? Somebody hasn't appreciated him. Good people, he's sure, are never appreciated. Therefore goodness doesn't pay. So won't I write an article on the old saying:

"BE GOOD, AND YOU'LL BE LONESOME."

Do I believe that? Of course I do—but why cry about it?

Because it's a new experiment in human behavior. And being new, it's bound to be dangerous, uncomfortable and unpopular.

Goodness isn't natural. We aren't born wanting to be good. We are born timid—wanting to be safe—dreading danger—shrinking from everything that is new—hating everything and everyone that represents possible risk.

In short, we are born uncivilized — still shuddering savages, only a few thousand years removed from the jungle.

But goodness implies brave, honest, industrious, unselfish, civilized human behavior. And that's too much for us. We're not ready for it yet. So what?

SO WE'VE FOUNDED OUR HUMAN SOCIETY ON RESPECTABILITY RATHER THAN RIGHTEOUSNESS.

Respectability is safe. It doesn't require much courage or intelligence—and it camouflages 57 varieties of laziness and selfishness. But righteousness messes everything up. Righteousness issues challenges, demands experiments, sends a soul off on long, lonely crusades.

WHY IS RIGHTEOUSNESS AND WHY ARE RIGHTEOUS PEOPLE A PAIN IN THE NECK?

That is why. And that is why you're lonely if you're good. A good person—a really good person—is the most upsetting thing in any neighborhood or any social circle. His courage and honesty make our common human cowardice and cussedness look and feel like 30 cents. Naturally the neighbors take him for a ride!

But aren't there lots of Good People who don't have such terrible times? The answer to that is—there are lots of "Good People" who aren't good. They seem good, but actually they are merely tidy, amiable, polite, and law-abiding.

They never go to jail. They rarely hurt anyone's feelings. But just try to get them to sponsor a really righteous but extremely unpopular cause and watch them do a fade-out.

IT ISN'T THE CRIMINAL AND STUPID PEOPLE WHO HAVE HELD THE WORLD BACK IN ITS JUNGLE DARKNESS AND CRUELTY.

IT ISN'T THE CRIMINAL AND STUPID PEOPLE WHO ARE RESPONSIBLE FOR CHILD TORTURE AND CHILD SLAVERY, FOR KIDNAPING AND MURDER AND WHOLESALE LAWLESSNESS.

IT'S THE RESPECTABLE PEOPLE WHO ARE RESPONSIBLE.

Think of these things as you face the New Year with its New Chance.

Wipe your chin, and lift up your eyes, AND THANK GOD THAT YOU HAVE WHAT IT TAKES! For loneliness is such a little price to pay for the chance to own the sky line.

MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

Assorted Husbands

Choosing a husband would be simpler than selecting a pair of gloves or a head of lettuce, if men were not so complex and could be classified and catalogued.

* * *

You'd merely decide what type of man would match your temperament and fit into your life, and then look around until you found him, or wait until he came along. Nature has provided us with every type and combination.

There is the Regular Husband—the nice, tame, domesticated type, who works hard at his job all day, punches a time-clock when he comes home to dinner every evening, pays the bills on the first of the month, hangs up his own pajamas and never looks at any woman except his own wife.

* * *

And there is the ornamental husband—the charming, dashing, irresponsible playboy, who makes life for any woman a merry-go-round one day and a lament the next day.

* * *

There is the domestic tyrant—the big caveman, who keeps his wife in a perpetual state of fear and trembling and has to be treated like the big Pooh-Bah and waited on like an Oriental potentate.

* * *

And there is the delicate, helpless but handsome fellow, who never has grown up, and who marries in order to get a mother and a soft berth; who never seems to be able to hold down a job and hasn't the strength to steer his cigaret ashes to the ashtray.

* * *

There is the impressive husband, who looks like a judge or a banker or a college president, but is just six feet of protoplasm, who permits his capable overworked wife to tow him all through life while he makes the Big Noise and does the showing off.

* * *

And, last but not least, there is the gay philanderer, who seems to think that marriage is just a part-time affair and that a wife is merely an incident or an accident.

* * *

That is to say, in plays and novels and screen dramas, men are all distinct "types"—heroes or villains, lightweights or false alarms.

* * *

But, in REAL LIFE, they don't come that way. They are mixtures of good and bad, of brains and folly. Many a big "caveman" has to be coddled and mothered and pampered like a small boy. Many a Regular Husband has his little weaknesses and his grouches.

Many a weakling is a bully at the same time, and many a philanderer is a Good Provider and a "sturdy oak."

* * *

That's why it's so foolish for a girl to let anybody ELSE choose her husband for her. Because nobody can tell ANY woman just which man will make her HAPPY, or what type of man would be the ideal husband for HER.

* * *

Some women want a husband to lean on and cling to; others want somebody to manage and boss; and still others want an ornamental husband or one whom they can "mother" and coddle. And anybody who attempts to select a life-mate for anybody else is just playing with dynamite!

(Copyright, 1933, King Features Synd., Inc.)

Isn't It So?

Human Side of the News

Dr. Haven Emerson Denounces Euthanasia—Cites Advances in Medical Science

By Edwin C. Hill

DR. HAVEN EMERSON, a noted figure in the world of medicine, comes out with a vigorous and interesting denunciation of euthanasia—a word which means, simply, giving a happy or easy death to persons suffering from incurable diseases. It is, indeed, very much in the news, as the German Ministry of Justice proposes to authorize physicians to end the suffering of incurable patients, and as similar suggestions are made in our own country.

But it is against the whole tendency of civilization, as Dr. Emerson remarks. Society is steadily assuming greater responsibility for all human beings below par, whether they are lepers, originally ostracised and now often cured; the insane, who were once put in chains, but are now being cared for in hospitals, and quite frequently restored to sanity; the physically handicapped, who were once left to beg their way, or the so-called incurables.

But how do we know, in the marked advance of medical and chemical science that they are incurable? And who is to be the judge of what is incurable in these magic days? No one can say today what will be incurable tomorrow. The late Registrar-General of England told Dr. Emerson that he had two sisters apparently doomed to premature death, one by diabetes and the other by pernicious anemia—diseases which were considered incurable up to a few years ago. Both sisters were saved, one by Dr. Banting's discovery of insulin in 1922, and the other by the discovery of the effectiveness of the liver treatment, made by Drs. Minot and Murphy, of Boston, in 1926.

T. B. Once Thought To Be Incurable

EVEN in the lifetime of our grandparents, to diagnose tuberculosis in a child was to write its death warrant. Today almost everyone knows that tuberculosis is curable in most instances. All about us are friends, relatives or associates—healthy, happy and useful—who once were deemed incurable. Cancer is still regarded as incurable, yet the American College of Physicians, meeting in Chicago, reports 15,000 cured cases of cancer of all types; all, of course, where treatment was undertaken in the early stage.

Some of the greatest work of the world has been done by so-called incurables. Pasteur had an apoplectic stroke 15 years before his death, and did most of his wonderful work in those 15 years. Robert Louis Stevenson, Dr. Trudeau and Steinmetz, wizard of electricity, all would have been classed as incurable. The man who is generally regarded as America's leading dramatist, also such world-famous writers as Gorki and Gerhart Haptmann, are among the chronic sick of today.

It is not in the wisdom of man to cut short a life that may succeed in adjusting itself to useful and happy existence; to blot out, because they impose a burden, the lives of those who, though terribly handicapped, may yet succeed far better than many unburdened and unhampered in the only test of living worth while—our capacity for happiness.

Hari Kiri Is Common Practice

THE international difficulties of the Japanese government have brought on an open season for hari kiri in the Flowery Kingdom. For it is the tradition and the custom of the country that the proper and effective way to protest a national policy is to perform the rite of hari kiri, incorrectly called hari kari, and which means suicide by a knife wound in the abdomen.

A student goes to the home of Admiral Kyo Takarabe and reads to the household a document protesting against the London Naval Treaty which the Admiral had a hand in making. After reading his protest the young man gives himself a 15-inch gash with a dirk, but is set upon and overpowered before he can kill himself.

Hari kiri goes back through the centuries as the honorable means of a Japanese ending his life in face of a failure and disgrace. Back in the sixteenth century it was a privilege of a nobleman to demand this style of death rather than to die as a criminal.

This led to an elaborate ceremony. The self-doomed one dressed in his best and entered a white curtained room with his best friend and witnesses. On a table were a dirk and a sword. The suicidally-determined gentleman reached for the dirk, whereupon his best friend seized the sword and acted as executioner, thus making death easier, if no less gruesome.

In Japan today one may visit the shrine of the god Nogi, who up until 1912 was Gen. Count Nogi, the man who captured Port Arthur. On the night 20 odd years ago that they buried the emperor, Count Nogi followed the mikado to the grave by hari kiri. And as in the Greek tragedies of old, his wife, the countess, immediately dispatched herself.

In more recent years, the youth of Japan have adopted a more modern form of self-destruction. The city of Tokio, because of earthquake hazards, is a city of low buildings, but on the main street there are several department stores which go up to six or eight stories. Jumping from the roofs of these structures has been a common practice, especially in the spring, the time of love requited and unrequited. No less than a dozen such suicides happened in the space of several weeks during a recent spring.

But it is the romantic spots, the beautiful waterfalls, the volcanoes, and the seashores which are the favorite places for the rite of Shinju, which in English means "The Inner Heart," and which in fact means that the two lovers have decided to be united in death rather than be parted in life.

G. O. P. Must Aid Recovery Program, Says Hoover

By James T. Williams, Jr.

GOOD advice is reported to have been given the Republican leaders in both houses in Congress by Mr. Hoover. He will be the titular leader of his party until the next presidential election under the party rule that this is the nominal rule, at least, of the party's last presidential nominee.

This advice has been repeated at frequent intervals since last summer to Republican leaders who have written or visited Mr. Hoover. It is to the following effect:

That the Republicans in Congress should not oppose in its entirety the national recovery program of President Roosevelt because that is the policy of the party in power declared by the President and indorsed by the Congress at the last session.

That the Republican leaders in Congress should strive to aid the success of the recovery program by co-operating and carrying out as much of it as they believe to be sound and by offering amendments to those parts of it, which in the light of actual operation of the experiment appear to the Republican leaders to be unsound.

Principles That Do Not Change

THIS advice and counsel from Mr. Hoover as to general policy has been supplemented by suggestions regarding the application of principles that do not change with administrations.

For example, the principle involved in maintaining and extending the merit system in the federal service is one that Mr. Hoover is said to have been strongly of the opinion that the Republican leaders in Congress should uphold.

The principle of economical administration is also commended to the Republican leaders by the former President as one that should be defended at every point during the coming session of Congress.

If the Republican leaders follow this advice and accept the suggestions in this regard which they have been receiving from Mr. Hoover in response to requests for recommendations regarding future Republican procedure, they will have their hands full when Congress meets.

To adopt this procedure means that the minority leaders in both Houses must insist that Woodrow Wilson was right when he said in a book on congressional government, written long before he entered public life, that the investigative responsibility of Congress was at times more important than its legislative responsibility.

The indications are that the coming session of Congress will be a time when the most thorough scrutiny of the way in which the more important laws enacted at the last session are being administered will contribute to better administration and therefore to the national welfare.

Spoilsmen Assert Their Claims

EVERY President, during the first year of his term, is under tremendous pressure for patronage of all sorts. Mr. Roosevelt is no exception to the rule in spite of the fact that he was elected by a tremendous majority. Although his party was swept into power on a tidal wave of dissatisfaction with the Hoover administration and the Republican party, many Democratic politicians still insist that to them as "the victors" all sorts of patronage in the form of "spoils" belong.

At many points President Roosevelt has been able to resist this pressure. At other points the greedy politicians have prevailed.

If at the coming session of Congress the minority party in both houses can turn the searchlight of thorough investigation upon those federal agencies that have been disrupted or demoralized, harassed or weakened by the meddlesome interference of Democratic spoilsmen within its own political household, the minority party will not lose in public respect by such a cause.

It is doubtful, however, that the Republican leaders will follow this course consistently. They know that Mr. Hoover will not again be a candidate for the presidency and the more they reflect upon that fact the less they will be disproved to look to him for guidance.
